Bishops Bow To Knights

N. C. Wesleyan Bishops lost to the St. Andrews College Knights in a basketball game by a score of 79-81, Wednesday night, January 29 in Everett Gymnasium. However, the final score relates little of the excitement which characterized the game.

Starting line-up for the Bishops was Dell Cartwright, Jerome Brown, Jimmy Dixon, Harold Sutton, and Roger Taylor. Wesleyan controlled the jump at center as Taylor tapped the ball to Sutton who passed it to Dixon. Dixon put the ball in for the first two points in the game. Fast team work coupled with their ability to out-manuever the Knights' man-to-man defense enabled the Bishops to remain in the lead during the first seven minutes of play. Taylor exhibited his usual ball-shooting efficiency while Sutton with his good position on the opponent's boards led both teams in the number of individual rebounds retrieved.

Drawing the Bishops' defense off balance and never giving its offense a chance to set up, the Knights gained and maintained the lead throughout the remainder of the first half. Trailing by 12 points at one time during the first half, the Bishops narrowed the lead to 6 as the first half ended with Wesleyan, 40; St. Andrews, 46.

Roger Taylor led the Bishops in scoring with 12 points while Harold Sutton accumulated 10; Jerome Brown, 9; Jimmy Dixon, 6; and substitutes, Dana Dickens, 1 and Wayne Horne, 2.

Except for Wayne Horne's substitution for Dell Cartwright, the starting line-up during the second half remained the same. During the first eleven minutes of the game, the Knights accumulated a 12 point lead; however, by the fine outside shooting of the Bishops, led by Dixon and Taylor, and the tap-ins by Brown, the opponent's lead was narrowed to 3 six times during the last nine minutes of play. The skill Sutton demonstrated on the boards during the first half was again evident in his second half performance. The pressure mounted; the spectators were wild with anticipation with 1:20 left in the game. The scoreboard showed Wesleyan behind by 4. In a tap-in, Brown narrowed the lead to 2. Taylor sank a foul shot with 26 seconds left to play. A Knight was fouled, made one of two shots; the lead was again 2. The game ended as Wesleyan lost to St. Andrews, 79-81.
