Dennis Yost and the Classics IV, a rock music group from Atlanta, Georgia, appear here on November 21, at 8:30 p.m. Tickets will cost $2.50 per person. The group's first record, Spooky was followed by three successive hits. These were Stormy, Everyday With You Girl, and Traces. Formerly known as just the Classics IV, they became known by their present name when Dennis Yost gave up his drumming chores to concentrate mainly on singing.

Composed mainly by Buddy Buie and J. R. Cobb and ranging from blues to ballads, their music is considered to be unique and different from other groups. It has been described as ranging from a raving James Brown to a mellow Johnny Mathis style.

Senate Elects Students On Trustee Board Today

By ALLEN WINTER

Wesleyan's Senate today will at 7 o'clock conduct an election for representation on the Board of Trustees of Wesleyan College. The action of representation of the Board of Trustees is a privileged few college's in the nation possess. Last summer our President of the Senate was present at a meeting of SUSGA. The prominence of this representation on the Board of Trustees was pointed out to Mr. Gunter by the interest these schools gave him over this point. Our student presentation began with the ideas of the 1969-70 Senate and the fact of election tonight will complete a long and sincere with on our student governments part to present the student in another honest manner.

Our manner of representation shall be a no-vote, yet heard member of the three committees that the Board of Trustees divide into for research during the year. The Building and Grounds Committee with the faculty represented by Dr. Davis is concerned with future improvements to the college as well as the continuing improvement of the existing structures. A Public Relations Committee with the faculty representation on the part of Mr. Rushing is concerned with the image of Wesleyan in the eyes of Rocky Mount, the state of North Carolina. The Education Committee with the faculty representation of Dr. Kilgore deals specifically with the methods and practices of Wesleyan. The summation of these committees into one sentence is quite inadequate to distinguish the actual meaning of these committees into one sentence is quite inadequate to distinguish the actual meaning of these committees.

The Senate meeting tonight and a Student Government Convocations on December 3 will present the committees to the Student Body.

French Representative Speaks At 5:00 Today

A representative of the French Embassy will speak today at a dinner meeting in the private dining room at 5:00 p.m. The meeting is sponsored by the Economics Club and all interested students, and faculty members are urged to attend. His topic will be the proposed entrance of Great Britain into the European Economic Community (Common Market).

The French representative is the second in a series of diplomats being brought to the Wesleyan campus to discuss pertinent topics of world economic concern. The first guest speaker was Mr. Arnold Cliff, First Secretary for the Treasury of the British Embassy. His presentation in support of Great Britain's acceptance into the Common Market was both fascinating and informative.

Future plans call for a visit by a representative from the German embassy who will discuss the same topic. Bruce Wright, interim president of the club, commented, "We are trying to provide the student body with a lecture series that will be both interesting and stimulating. However, we must have the support of the student body, faculty, and administration, to warrant the continuance of the program."

Wiltrakis: 'Thomas More: Truly For All Seasons'

By MARY WILTRAKIS

Of all the saints who have won their charter Holy man, hero, hermit, martyr, Mystic, missionary, sage or wit, Thomas More is my favorite.

These famous words of Phyllis McGinley express a universal feeling concerning the 16th century "martyr to conscience" - "patron of lawyers" - creator of "Utopia" - the Lord Chancellor Thomas More, truly "A Man For All Seasons."

The old history books came magically to life as we watched the Wesleyan Players present a superb rendition of the life of the renowned English Don and his contemporaries. Were the characters advanced in time, the drama could be re-enacted in modern life. The theme is universal - a man of iron unwilling to compromise his beliefs to conform with the self-indulgence and corruption of other members of a fallen human race, even though such be his leaders.

Roland Shaw was the chancellor, his native talent utilized to the fullest under the inspired direction of Mr. Anthony Dingman. At first, he seemed to lack some of the fire and wit of the great man, but as the drama proceeded he visibly relaxed, and the authority became manifest in voice and action. His accent was a delight as he gave bite to the words.

This reviewer felt that the execution scene was too grim. Historically, Thomas went to his death joking and laughing with the executioners. Had some of this been introduced, audience tension would have been relieved.
