

Decent Food Comes To Wesleyan

Students at Wesleyan were given a pleasant surprise today when A. E. Slater Food Services Incorporated announced the transfer of Mr. Eckler. Mr. Eckler has not been fired and will not be fired from Slater, but he has been transferred out of Wesleyan. This abrupt change came as quite a surprise and it is hoped that we won't be disappointed once again.

The new change comes as a result of a telephone call placed by some concerned students who took the effort to get in touch with the officials of Slater. This set the corporate wheels of Slater in action; finally we were getting across the wall.

On Monday top administrative officials President Collins, comptroller Floyd Sawyer, and Deal Alvin Horn met with Slater officials. These people were Mr. Dale, regional manager, and Mr. Mayhan district manager. It seems as though this top level conference produced a new contract, one with which NCW students will be well pleased. This may be somewhat confusing to those of you who were told that there was no contract per se, according to Mr. Sawyer. It finally comes out that Mr. Sawyer was only doing as Slater asks all their customers. Slater requested that their contract policies not be revealed. The principle behind this is not to keep the customers in the dark but to keep the competition in the dark. This is best explained by the fact that Slater offers many things in their contracts that other companys do not. The term applied to this procedure is a "confidentiality clause."

As intelligent human beings we realize that certain company policies must be kept secret for reasons such as industrial espionage and competitive bidding. We also realized that Slater had a contract or else they wouldn't be here now. The point is that we should have been told that Mr. Sawyer was unable to disclose the provisions of the contract, rather than
