Government spending quickly

Stanley Neuberger recently left his $5.6 million estate to the United States. It took the government all of two minutes to spend the gift.

Bath time

All parents are rejoicing at the findings of a recent survey of 699 parents of children under age six. The survey, sponsored by Dow Bathroom Cleaner with Scrubbing Bubbles, revealed that kids love to bathe. The survey also found that 48 percent of parents say their kids bathe at least once a day, and 17 percent report an average of seven-plus baths a week. The survey also found that boats were the favorite bathtub toy followed by rubber duckies, cups, toy animals, and dolls or action figures.

Award-winning television

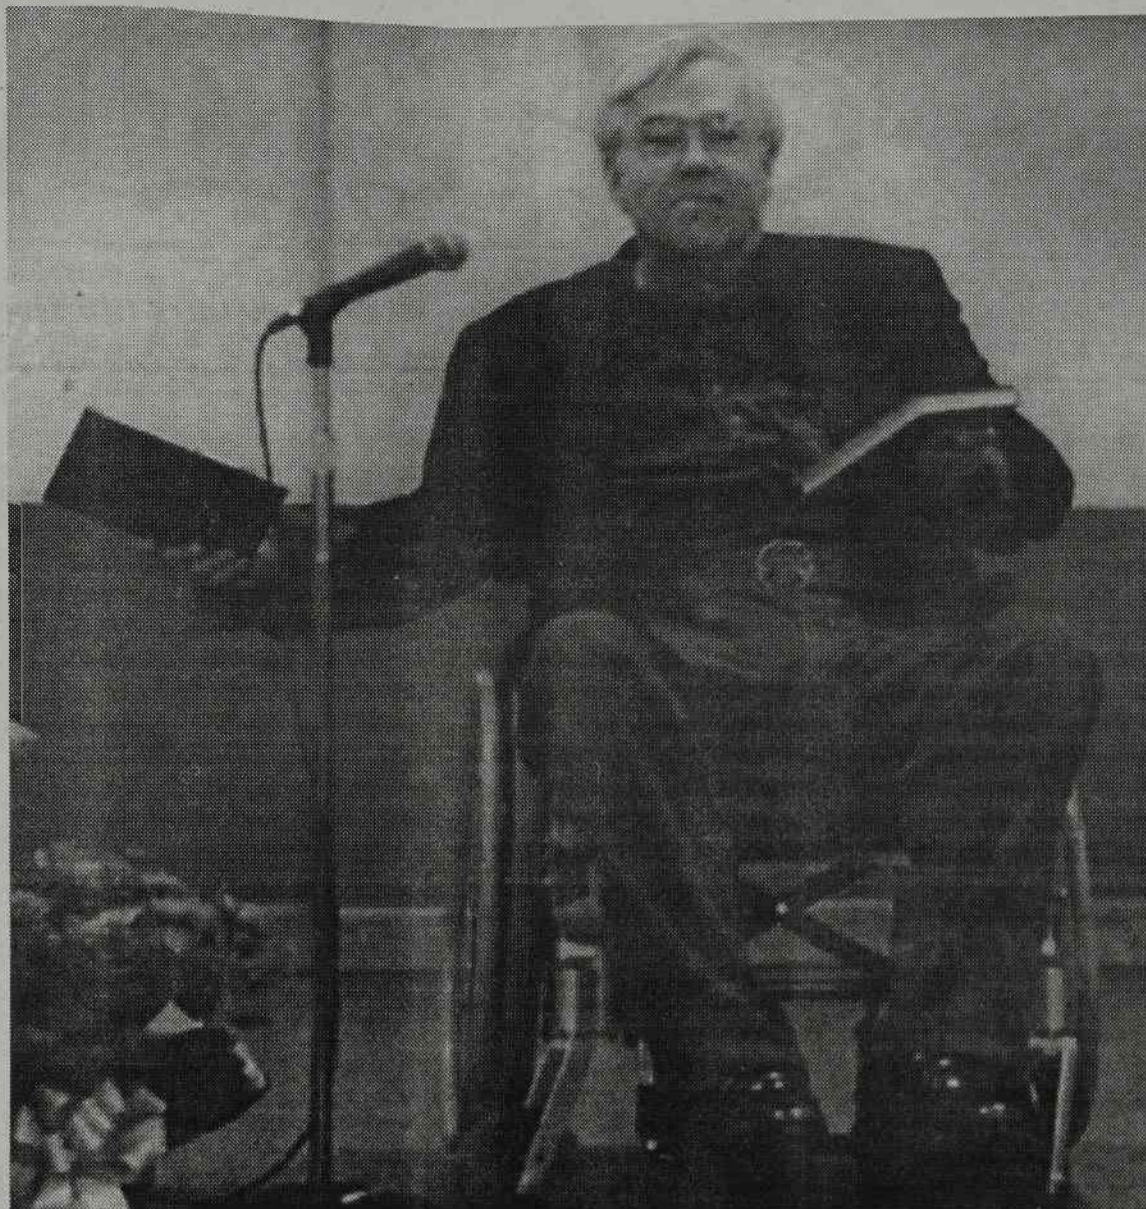

Only CBS award-winning series "Picket Fences" can mix a hot national topic and still carry a comic subplot. The episode for Oct. 28 features parental control over children, a witch religion, and government butting into individuals' lives. Still the small police force from Rome, Wis., was investigating the death of a woman who apparently fell into her freezer reaching for the peas and died as the top fell on her and trapped her.

Prisons equal to eighth largest city

For the first time the United States has a prisoner population over one million in state and federal prisons. This is almost equal to the population of the city of Phoenix, Ariz., the nation's eighth largest city. A Justice Department report showed that as of the end of June there were 1,012,851 prisoners.

Educational speaker

Kermit the Frog spoke to more than 1,000 students at the Oxford Union Society at Britain's Oxford University. The actor, singer, and amphibian talked about his education and environmental concerns for those on the lower half of the food chain. "I feel that the responsibility of representing an entire species is on my shoulders," Kermit said.

WRITER VISITS CAMPUS — Award-winning novelist Reynolds Price was on campus last week for a reading in the SAC of his latest works, including the newly published apocryphal gospel The Honest Account of a Memorial Life as well as from A Whole New Life, the story of his war with cancer of the spine, diagnosed ten years ago.
