Jim Jarvis will be in charge of distressed merchandise sales and will serve as liaison between sales and manufacturing for inventory control. Since 1956, he has worked in the Los Angeles area as a sales representative for the Hosiery Division. He and his wife, Alicia, are now making their home in High Point. Their only

In an effort to continue the improvement of sales and customer relations through better communication and contact with manufacturing, Donald G. Lindner, president of Adams-Millis Hosiery Company, has announced the centralization of virtually all sales personnel in the High Point office.

The New York and Los Angeles sales offices have been closed and Matthew LaMuraglia of the New York office and James A. Jarvis of the Los Angeles office, along with Robert P. Grant of the Chicago office, have relocated in High Point. New offices have been built in the lower level of the general office building on Elm Street; these offices will serve as main headquarters for the entire hosiery company's sales force.

Bob Grant, senior vice president of sales and marketing, has been with the Chicago office for the past four years. He has moved to High Point where his wife, Bette, and his daughter, Holly, will join him in the fall. Bob has another daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Ellsoos, who makes her home in Naperville, Illinois with her two children, Kristi and Troy.

Matt LaMuraglia, sales account executive, has been with the company's New York office since 1964. His wife, Mary Ellin, and their children, Matt, Jr., Thomas, James, Peter, Michael, John, Maria Francesca, Mary Elizabeth, Joseph and Mary Ellin, will join him in early June to make their home in High Point.

Don't flatter yourselves that friendship authorizes you to say disagreeable things to your intimates. On the contrary, the nearer you come into relation with a person, the more necessary do tact and courtesy become. Except in cases of necessity, which are rare, leave your friend to learn unpleasant truths from his enemies; they are ready enough to tell them. Good breeding never forgets that self respect is universal.

son, Captain James A. Jarvis, Jr., is with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers and he and his wife, Sharon, are living in Frankfort, Germany.

John Merrick will continue to serve in a sales capacity in the Chicago area, as will George Filardi in the New York area and Frank Gordon in the Kansas area.

Forrest E. Edwards and James A. Williams will remain in the High Point sales offices, Forrest as national sales manager and Jim as sales manager of the Supermarket Division.

At his recent retirement dinner, Bob Bates, center, was photographed with Bascome Loflin, left, and Robert Boyles, right. The trio has compiled a record of 132 years of service with Adams-Millis. Bates led with 48 years; Loflin and Boyles follow with 44 years each.

One needs common sense to succeed, and a sense of humor to be happy.
