McNAIR

STREETMAN

E. C. Tatum, plant manager of the J. Ed Millis Finishing Plant in Kernersville, has announced the promotions of Danny McNair, Billie Stack and Douglas Streetman.

Danny McNair has assumed supervision of production control for the J. Ed Millis finishing plant of the Men's and Boys' Hosiery Division. He succeeds Carroll Lineback who will be returning to the Mt. Airy plant where he will coordinate production of that plant with the production control department in Kernersville.

McNair is a graduate of North Carolina State University with a degree in textile technology. Prior to coming to Adams-Millis, he was associated with Dan River Mills in Danville, Va. He is married to the former Towa Varner of Archdale; they have one child.

The department of production control anticipates orders so that the shipments can be expedited when the detailed orders have actually been received. The department also coordinates shipments with sales. Estimates furnished by salesmen are passed on to production control in order that materials can be ordered and knitting orders can be issued.

Carroll Lineback was employed as a supervisor in the knitting department of Granite Hosiery when that firm was acquired by Adams-Millis in 1963. He later managed the production department of the Mt. Airy plant, and transferred to the Kernersville finishing plant soon after it was built. He has twenty-five years of experience in hosiery knitting and production control.

Lineback married the former Josephine Eaton; they live in Mt. Airy and are the parents of four daughters and one son.

Billie Stack has been named to succeed Luke Jones as supervisor of box printing. Ms. Stack worked in the looping and folding departments of the Adams-Millis plant before being transferred to the job of printing machine operator. She resigned in 1965 to give full time to housekeeping, but returned to the new finishing plant in 1968 as a printing machine operator and as an assistant supervisor.

The box printing department prints labels and boxes which are then forwarded to the folding department. From orders issued by production control, boxes and labels are requisitioned from suppliers.

Billie has worked for no other employer. She says in addition to her job, the most important things to her are her family and her church. Her husband is a quality control inspector for a machine shop; they have a daughter, a son and a new daughter-in-law. They are members of Union Grove Baptist Church.

Doug Streetman has been assigned to succeed Bob Bates as supervisor of the shipping department. Bates retired after 48 continuous years of service in the shipping departments of the High Point and Kernersville plants.

Shortly after graduation from high school, Streetman started working in the order department getting up orders. He later moved to the shipping department where he worked in all phases of shipping.

Doug stepped into busy shoes when he replaced Bob Bates. Shipments for the first quarter of 1974 were the largest of any quarter in the history of the company.

Streetman is married and has two children. His mother, Gladys Rogers, is employed in the duplicating department in High Point.
