Hi there! The groundhog didn't see his shadow, but seems like he did, with all the rain we've been having.

Welcome to our new girls, Ernestine Edwards, Mary Alice Hill and Geneva Smith. Hope you like your jobs and enjoy working with us.

Mae Hamblin spent the weekend with her family in Wytheville, Va., says she saw lots of ice. Yours truly spent the weekend in Kannapolis visiting relatives.

We're glad to have Martha Jones back with us after her absence.

Welcomed to our department this month are Cora Dee Spencer and Aelyne Owens. Here's hoping you enjoy working with us.

Mae Flowers spent the weekend in Wadesboro visiting her grandmother, who is ill . . . Sorry to hear that Mary Wise was burned last week . . . Mary Alton and family spent a recent Sunday in Siler City . . . Beatrice Steele and family visited in Candor recently . . . Blanche Cheek's mother has shown some improvement.

Our sympathy goes to Betty Young and Connie Ward. Betty's father passed away two weeks ago and Carrie's mother passed away February 6.

Welcome to our newcomers, Drucie Bryant and Shirley McGrady. Both are former employees.

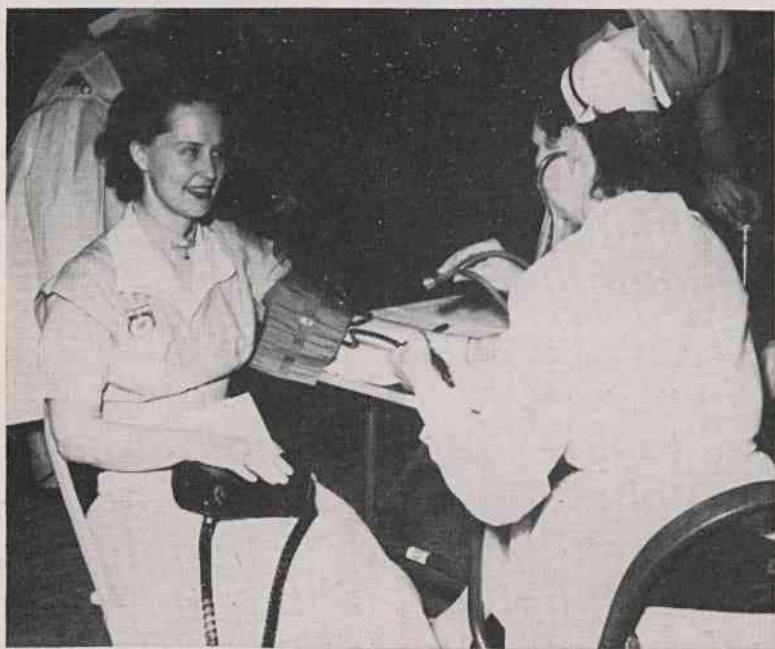

Carlene Hill Promoted

Carlene Hill, who has been with Anvil Brand approximately six years, has been promoted to the Sample Department, Helen Hughes, who is in charge of this work, has announced.

A new room is now under construction at White Division for the sample work and Carlene will work there. She will be in charge of keeping swatch cards for the salesmen up to date as well as keeping made-up samples readily accessible, Helen said.

In the past this work has been on a part-time basis with girls from other departments brought in when this work was particularly rushing. Helen said the demand for this work now requires a full-time employee for this job.

Carlene formerly worked in the shirt department. She lives at 403 Fairfield Road.

GIVES SECOND GALLON OF BLOOD — Kathryn Johnson, above, smiles as the Red Cross Bloodmobile nurse checks her blood pressure. Last week Kathryn donated another pint of blood to the Red Cross, bringing her total donations to two gallons. Herb Ross, who also was a donor last week, also marked up his second gallon this time.

Employees Donate Blood

Nine Anvil Branders visited the Red Cross Bloodmobile last week and brought to 23 pints, the total donations of blood from employees since last August. (This figure is just for donations through the Bloodmobile and does not include donations for emergencies in the hospital here or in Winston-Salem.)

Red Cross officials last week expressed thanks to the citizens who continue their support of the blood program. They emphasized, however, that far more blood was used for local citizens last year, than was donated from High Point.

This was possible because High Point is a member of the Charlotte Regional Blood Bank and can draw on the bank as long as the supply holds out.

An appeal for more citizens to visit the Bloodmobile during its next visit to help High Point replenish the blood bank, came from the officials.

Donors from Anvil Brand this time included Beatrice Brown, who joined the gallon club, Anna Harris, Lottie Kimsey, Dorothy Woodell, Ernest McCall, Velna Johnson, Beulah Gunter and Kathryn and Herb Ross.

All your danger in discord;
Therefore be at peace henceforward

And as brothers live together.
