New Counseling Program Initiated

North Carolina College's counseling-centered orientation activities started at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, September 11 in B. N. Duke Auditorium.

The opening service featured Dr. J. N. Hughley, college minister, who gave prayer, and college and student officials in welcoming remarks. NCC President A. Elder, Dean G. T. Kyle of the undergraduate school, and Jerome Dudley, Asheville, president of the student government, were speakers.

An important feature of the activities for Monday, September 15 was the Personal Problems and Services scheduled for women in Duke Auditorium and men in the Music Assembly of the Administration Building from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Routine tests and physical examinations were conducted during the week, but chief emphasis was directed at the counseling programs, the library orientation, and individual conferences with advisers.

Special freshmen advisers continued a program of frequent conferences with students on their academic progress. Other counselors were available to provide advice on health, religion, vocations, recreation, and psychological problems.

It was at the funeral of a woman who had been thoroughly disliked in a rural community—and for cause. With a sharply barbed tongue and a violently explosive disposition, she henpecked her husband, drove her children mercilessly and quarreled with her neighbors. Even the animals on the place wore a hunted look.

The day was sultry, and as the minister's voice droned on the sky grew darker. Just as the service ended, the storm broke furiously. There was a blinding flash followed closely by a terrific thunder clap. In the stunned silence a voice was heard from the back row of the crowded room: "Waal, she's got there!"
