

Leazer Resigns From NCC Alpha Fraternity Begins 22nd Year Here

A recent NCC graduate and former Echo sports writer has assumed the job as public information assistant here at North Carolina College.

John B. Henderson, 1963 NCC graduate in Sociology, has replaced Perry R. Leazer as director of the NCC's sports publicity program.

Leazer resigned the position to accept an appointment on the Fayetteville State College faculty as an instructor in the commerce department. He served two years as public information assistant in the News Bureau.

Henderson, a native of Lexington, N. C., has written for several newspapers in North Carolina. He published sports articles in his hometown newspaper, the Lexington Dispatch; the Carolina Times in Durham; and served as Campus Echo Sports Editor for four years.

Leazer, a native of Salisbury, N. C., did his undergraduate and graduate work at NCC, receiving the bachelor's degree in 1958 and the master's degree in 1963.

He has taught at Kentucky State College, Frankfort; and at the Durham Business College, Durham. Other work experiences include positions as office manager - bookkeeper, Service Printing Co., Durham, and interviewer with the Employment Security Commission, Durham.

Moore's professional career began in the Kings Mountain City schools, where he was teacher prior to joining the faculty of Second Ward High School in Charlotte.

His association with NCC began in 1940, when he was made librarian of the Law School. He remained in this position until 1942, when he entered the U.S. Army and later saw service in the Philippines. Upon his discharge from the Army, Moore accepted a position as librarian at Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo.

He returned to NCC in 1949 as dean of the School of Library Science.

Moore was married in Lylerly, Ga., in June, 1939, to the former Miss Onnie Ray Nichols. One son, Eric Nichols Moore, was born to the couple.

In addition to his widow and son, Moore is survived by two brothers, John H., Charlotte; Samuel A., Brooklyn, N. Y.; and one half sister, Soraya, Goldsboro, N. C.

Moore was active in many phases of the civic and religious life of Durham. As chairman of the Education Committee of the Durham Committee on Negro Affairs, he became one of the best informed consultants on school legal affairs in this section.

Members of the campus Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity recently announced their continued existence at NCC and their dedications to high principles.

According to a release sent out by the fraternity, the members of the local chapter have agreed "that this year must be a year of dedication, not only to principals, ideals, and individual aims, but to the student body and the administration."

The group adopted the motto, "First of all, servants to all. We shall transcend all." The motto was adopted by the fraternity many years ago however the local members said they are re-dedicating themselves to it and that it will be the impetus behind Gamma Beta Chapter during the 1963-64 school year."

Signs welcoming the freshmen and new students to campus have been placed on campus by the Alphas. They said that along with extending the welcome to the incomers, they "hope that the ideals of the organization may instill in many of them the urge to seek scholastic excellence."

The organization is under the leadership of William D. Shanks, a chemistry major from Burlington, N. C.

Other officers are Herbert Watkins, second in command; Leroy A. Wilson, secretary; James Tyson, treasurer; William M. Reid, historian; George T. Dunlap, chaplain; Freddie Hicks, sergeant-at-arms; Roy C. Street, and Marshall McCallam, co-deans of pledges.
