to give it any "genuine" jurisdiction over student discipline. "It merely has the power to hear cases and make recommendations to the Welfare Committee," he stated.

"Further," Ferguson continued, "we will recommend that a plan be effected which will allow students the option of eating on or off campus. Simultaneously we will recommend that campus students be relieved of the compulsion to pay for meals which they do not eat."

The SGA president stated that the inadequate facilities and the almost invariable menus of the cafeteria have been the cause of much and grave concern among students and the administration alike.

Concerning intercollegiate relations, Ferguson said his administration will recommend that NCC participate more in nationally sponsored programs for colleges and universities.

"Such participation, he said, "will inevitably enhance the prestige and recognition of our student body with other institutions of higher learning."

Ferguson said that his reason for promoting the academic and cultural lives of NCC's students springs from the fact that the student body is lacking in an appreciation for the learning and culture outside the classroom and compulsory programs.

"We hope, Ferguson stated, "to get a bill passed that will provide for the student government to plan and sponsor debates, forums, panel discussions, outstanding speakers and possibly exchange programs. It is hoped that by such activities students will become more aware of the issues surrounding them on campus, state, national, and international levels," he said.

He said that committees have been set-up to work with these proposals.

The inaugural ceremonies for the student government association president and vice-president will be held next week.

by the state legislature in early July of this year. The money will be used for sixteen buildings, equipment, and improvement projects for the college.

In late July of this year, members of the college's administration, state officials, and representatives from architectural and building corporations toured the campus examining possible sites for new buildings.

The committees are anticipating needs and services, equipment, space requirements, and are considering various other details in the preliminary planning for the expansion program. Among the committees already constituted are the Committee on Equipping the Language Laboratory, Dr. Irene D. Jackson, chairman; The Committee on Closed Circuit Television, J. E. Parker, chairman; and the Committee on Construction of a Storage Facility, Jamin R. Peddy, chairman.

William Jones, business manager, is chairman of the Committee on Repairs to the New Residence Hall, the Committee on Repairs to Old Senior Dormitory, the Committee on Culvert and Fill, Dupree to Lawson Streets; and the Committee on Air Conditioning the James E. Shepard Memorial Library.

"the idea is not a plan; all the leaders did was to approve the idea.

"Of course," Rev. Elkins agreed, "the students will have to decide whether they'll participate. If it (the march) come about, they shouldn't let it interfere with their responsibilities as students," he concluded.

The committee planning the march on Raleigh said the date and other details of the 'march' are still indefinite.

North Carolina's Governor Terry Sanford issued a statement after first hearing of the proposed march saying he had "no intentions of letting groups over-run the governor's home. The place to transact business is in the capitol, where my office is located."

After hearing of the integrationists' decision to march on the capitol, Sanford reiterated his previous statement that such a march "would be extremely unwise (and) would produce nothing good."

NCC's leaders refused to comment on the governor's remarks.

junction with the March on Washington Committee, plans to stage a mourning march hour Sunday, Sept. 22, in honor of the four Negro girls killed by a bomb in Birmingham, Ala., while attending Sunday School.

Participants in the mourning march will leave NCC at 5 P.M., march to St. Joseph's Church on Fayetteville St., where there will be a bell tolling ceremony; then march silently through downtown Durham, according to Baker.

MEETING ANNOUNCED

The first formal meeting of the college NAACP chapter is slated for Wed., Sept. 26, in the Commerce Building auditorium.

A spokesman for the group said "the meeting is being held to solicit membership, to re-evaluate integration in Durham, and to set up test teams for checking once segregated businesses."

NAACP President Baker said it is necessary to establish a student chapter at NCC because it "helps students become a part of the nationwide move to eradicate racial discrimination in America.

"The present progress in Durham," he continued, "is inadequate in that no one knows what progress has been made. There are a lot of generalities and no specifics," Baker said.

This marks the fifth year NCC will have a chapter of the NAACP.
