St. Augustine's Game

The Eagles of North Carolina College bounced back into the win column Oct. 10 by defeating Coach Jesse Clements' St. Augustine's College Falcons 25-0 in a CIAA contest at NCC's O'Kelly Field.

Coach Herman Riddick's Eagles, who were blanked by Morgan State College two weeks before by a 27-0 score retaliated by white-washing the visitors of Raleigh to bring their record in conference play at 1-1 with a 2-1 overall mark.

The Riddickmen led their opponents in all departments except in yards penalized. NCC had a total of 14 first downs compared to six for the visitors. The Eagles led in rushing 355 yards to 58 yards for the Raleigh eleven. Riddick's charges gathered 46 yards by way of the air lanes while the Falcons collected 39. NCC lost 160 yards in penalties while St. Augustine's suffered only 72 yards. The Falcons lost three fumbles to N CC's one. The Eagles snared two enemy passes to one pass interception by St. Augustine's.

NCC scored when quarterback William Reid tossed a 16yard pass to end William Giles to take a 6-0 halftime lead. In the second half, the Eagles struck for three more tallies, while holding the visitors score-

The second Eagle tally came with the ball resting on the opponents' 48 yard line. Billy Alsbrooks, NCC halfback, tore off a 43-yard run to set up his own touchdown, and two plays later he scored on a hand-off from quarterback Reid. The PAT failed, making the score NCC's chief signal-caller, William Reid, scored in the opening minutes of the fourth period. After receiving a fourthdown Falcon punt which landed on the opponents' 37 yard line, Reid six plays later scored on a keeper from six yards out, and the PAT by Bobby Asmond made the score 19-0.

NCC scored the final TD of the game when Durham's Paul Perry caught a 14-yard pass from Reid. When St. Augustine's lost the ball on downs, the Eagles took over on the visitors' 48 yard line. Their offensive machine, consisting of Paul Perry, Billy Alsbrooks, and John McGill, rotated to carry the ball to the 14 yard line where Perry caught the final tally. The conversion attempt failed, but the Eagles had a 25-0 edge.

Maryland State Game

The North Carolina College Eagles were hosts to the Maryland State Hawks of Princess Anne, Maryland, for their homecoming game at O'Kelly Field Saturday on a beautiful autumn afternoon. But, when the final whistle blew signaling the end of the game for the Eagles, Coach Herman H. Riddick and his charges walked of the field dejected 7-0 losers to the invaders from Maryland.

It was a nip-and-tuck kind of contest, with neither team completely dominating the other.

Eight thousand homecoming fans saw the Eagles fall behind 7-0 to Maryland State just seconds before the first quarter ended. The victory for Maryland State over the Eagles was sweet revenge. In 1963, the NCC gridmen traveled to Maryland State to oppose the Hawks on their homecoming and emerged with a 20-7 victory. The win in 1963 made the second successive year that NCC had derailed the Hawks. However, this year the story was quite different.

The game's only tally came when the alert Maryland defense snared an NCC pass thrown by Eagle quarterback William Reid just minutes before the first stanza ended. Maryland's end Edward Hines intercepted Reid's aerial on NCC's 15 yard line and returned it to the five before he was pulled down by a host of Eagle tacklers. Within four goal-to-go plays, the Hawks scored. Charles Stukes, Maryland quarterback, faked to fullback Emerson Boozer and threw a strike to his end, Marshall Cropper, for a touchdown. The PAT made the score 7-0 in favor of the visitors.

From this point on, the Eagles seemed to have their problems. Their offensive machine was throttled by an alert and aggressive Maryland defense. NCC intercepted a Maryland State opponents' 22 yard line. The Hawks held the Eagles at bay with a stout defense and NCC was forced to kick on a fourth down situation.

The half ended with the Eagles behind 7-0

With the second half mostly a defensive struggle between both teams, Riddick's Eagles tried desperately to score. NCC threw a total 14 passes, completing only two. A fired-up Maryland defense stopped most Eagle scoring threats by constantly pressuring NCC's quarterback for tremendous losses and several passing miscues during the second half.

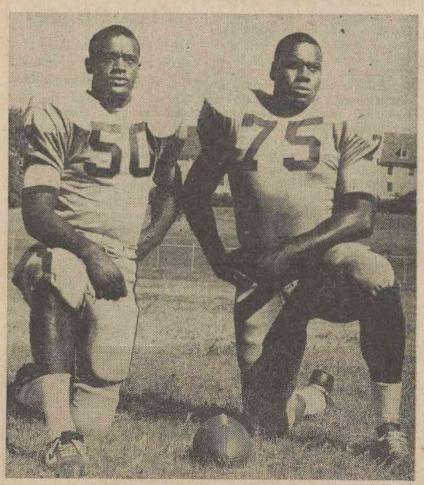

NCC's only serious scoring threat came with four minutes remaining in the contest. On a fourth down situation, the opponents kicked to the Eagles, and the ball landed on the Eagles' 39 yard line. Quarter-pass just before the half on the back William Reid completed a 15-yard pass that went to Maryland's 45 yard line to end Thomas Cameron. However, on the very next play, Reid attempted another aerial which was intercepted by Maryland State on the opponents' 30 yard line. From this point on, the Hawks played control ball and ran out the clock for a 7-0 vic-

> Next week the Eagles who are now 1-3 in the CIAA and 2-3 overall, face Shaw University in Washington, D. C., in the Capital Classic.
