Homecoming Spirit Invades N. C. College

Student Congress Approves Budget

The Student Congress in its first regular session on Thursday, October 14, ratified a record budget purposed by the Student Government Administration for the 1965-66 school year. The total budget is for $7,539.50, and is subject to final approval by the Dean of Students.

Major items in the budget include $1,705 for Homecoming, $1,887 for Campus Affairs, $786.60 for Intercollegiate Affairs, and a $75 and $50 per month stipend for the President and Vice President of the Student Government, respectively. Another new item ratified is a $200 subsidy for clubs sponsoring "educational and cultural activities."

UN Day Observed By Forum Speaker

Jonathan Dean, Deputy Director of the Office of United Nations affairs, spoke at 10:00 a.m., Monday, October 25, at the North Carolina College forum during celebration of United Nations Week on the subject of "United States-United Nations Policy, 1965-66."

At one o'clock in Room 301, Classroom Building, Dean talked to History, Economics and Political Science majors and minors on the details of United States-United Nations policy, filling in details that he did not cover that morning. An extended question and answer period followed.

NCC Geographer To Address Meet

Dr. Theodore R. Speigner, chairman of the North Carolina College Department of Geography, has been invited to deliver one of the principal addresses at the forthcoming annual meeting of the North Carolina Geographical Society to be held at East Carolina College, Greenville, on October 30.

The subject of Dr. Speigner's address is "Natural Resources: Man's Greatest Heritage."

Dr. Speigner, who is recognized nationally as an authority in conservation geography and conservation education, has directed the NCC Resource-Use Education program for eighteen years. The statewide conservation and resource-use education program has been projected into seventy-two counties and is the oldest field service program sponsored by NCC for in-service teachers.

The North Carolina Geographical Society is being sponsored by the Geography Department of East Carolina College under the direction of Dr. Robert E. Cramer.

MISS LINDA WILSON

Miss Homecoming To Be Crowned

By Samuel Thomas

On Election Day, Friday, October 8, 1965, Miss Linda Wilson out-pollled three other candidates and was elected NCC's nineteenth Miss Homecoming.

Commenting on her election, Miss Wilson said that she was very pleasantly surprised to learn of her victory because she had not planned on seeking the title, and consequently had not campaigned strenuously.

She entered the race at the repeated suggestion of some of her friends, more to placate them, than to satisfy a yearning to be Miss Homecoming. When asked how it felt to be Miss Homecoming, she replied, "It was a wonderful feeling, but it was difficult to describe." She said that it was like being in love and that she was gratified to learn that her classmates held her in such high esteem.

It often happens that when a young lady wins honors of this nature, her relationship with her beau becomes somewhat strained, but Linda laughs at any thought of this happening to her and says that it won't affect the relationship at all.

Even though she is close to McDougal, her boyfriend, she is career-minded and looks forward to furthering her education. She would like to teach either the exceptionally gifted child or to work with the retarded. Whatever she decides to do, one cannot help but be convinced that she will do quite well at it. A quick examination of her academic record shows that Linda is as well endowed with brains as with beauty. The senior Health Education major is a member of the Alpha Kappa Mu National Honor Society, an achievement which speaks quite clearly for itself. Linda manages to be active in a number of worthwhile campus activities without any decline in her grades. She belongs to the Health Club, the Canterbury Club, the Student National Education Association and still finds time to serve as a senior counselor to the freshman women in Annie Day Shepard Dormitory. Linda is the oldest of four daughters, of which three attend NCC. When asked if her parents would attend the parade and coronation, she indicated she was not sure, but hoped that they could be present so that they might share some of the joys and excitements of the coronation.

Linda will be formally crowned Miss Homecoming during the half-time intermission of the football game between NCC and Shaw University.

Dr. Couch Wins Fellowship Award

Dr. William Couch, Jr., North Carolina College professor of English, is on leave during the 1965-66 school year to serve as a fellow at Duke University in the Ford Foundation-sponsored Cooperative Humanities Program.

He will engage in research on "The Metamorphosis of Tragedy in America Literature" for a forthcoming book on the subject.

A member of the NCC graduate school faculty since 1962, Couch is editor of the college journal, "Varia." He is a former director of the Woodrow Wilson Honors Program at Southern University, Baton Rouge, La., and a former instructor in humanities at Reed College, Portland, Oregon.

Couch holds the A.B. degree from Central YWCA College, Chicago, Ill., and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in English from the University of Chicago.

Mayo Wins Freshman Class Post

Maurice Mayo of the United Campus Party won the freshman presidential election by defeating four candidates in a landslide vote on October 8, 1965.

Mayo, a native of Tarboro, North Carolina, had a 62-vote plurality over his nearest competition, Bennie Holman, of the Action Group. Ulysses Downing, a member of President Daye's Student Party, finished a badly beaten third. Ronald L. Leak and John Fitzpatrick finished out the voting with 25 and 16 votes, respectively.

Vera Shaw was elected Miss Freshman by only 8 votes over the expected winner Cynthia Goodrich. They ran considerably ahead of the other seven.

The vice presidential election ran accordingly to form when Carl Enoch of the Action Group defeated three candidates in a closer than expected election. Christyal Brown, the only young lady representing the Student Party finished a strong second. Milton Jenkins and George Butterfield finished third and fourth in the four-candidate contest.

The United Campus Party also captured the office of secretary when Barbara Barrett outpolled Patricia Meddling, Jennifer Thompson, and Norma Brown in a close, well fought election. Harvey Davidson of the Action Group was elected treasurer by 38 votes

Marching Eagles Show Their Talent

The North Carolina College Band put on its first full half-time show of the season Saturday, October 16 during the game between the North Carolina College Eagles and the Virginia State College Trojans. The band is composed of 100 musicians and ten majorettes. The majority of the band is composed of freshmen.

The band elected Miss Camille Lowe, a senior from Winston-Salem, as Miss Band. Her two attendants are Helena Huntley and Jacqueline McDowell. Miss Lowe will represent the band in all Homecoming activities.
