

Above: This laboratory for steroid studies is among facilities in the Diagnostic and Treatment Unit. The laboratory technician pictured is Mrs. Rhoda Billings.

Left: Although various laboratories and offices are in use in the new building, workmen are still putting on finishing touches. This photograph was made looking down a corridor of the Diagnostic and Treatment Unit.

(Duke photos by Sparks)

Right: Electricity is supplied to the new building through this transformer station.

Below: This is the new building photographed from a point near the emergency entrance of Duke Hospital.

