PLAUDITS

We are proud of Mrs. Claude Goswick of the nursing service, who was named one of Durham's Mothers of the Year.

Dr. Morton Bogdonoff was recently elected president of the American Federation for Clinical Research. Dr. Jay Sanford, formerly at Duke and now at Southwestern, is president-elect.

Dr. Herbert Sieker was recently elected to membership in the Association of American Physicians, an honorary organization of academic internal medicine. Only 25 doctors a year are elected and membership is based on "excellence and demonstrated leadership in teaching and research" in the field of internal medicine.

On April 20 at special ceremonies Dr. Eugene Stead received the Medical Alumnus of the Year Award at Emory University.

On May 23, a special program to honor Dr. W. C. Davison was held in the hospital amphitheatre. Open to the public, the program included a film of highlights of "The Commonwealth of Children," the symposium held in Dr. Davison's honor in 1961, and presentation of a bound collection of letters from eminent persons saluting Dr. Davison's achievements as dean. Dr. W. M. Nicholson presided.
