

Front, back or side—anywhere you look—the site of the Medical Center's new "front door" is full of trucks, cranes, workmen and supplies. This is how the new Main Entrance Building looked in mid-September. InterCom hopes to keep you up-to-date with a pictorial record of progress as the building goes up.

(Duke photos by Sparks)

Chaplaincy Service

(Continued from page 3)

Service. Chaplain Aitken and his staff are "on call" 24 hours every day of the week answering requests for assistance. These requests may come from the patient himself, the family and friends of the patient, the home-town minister or the hospital staff. When requested, a visit from a local rabbi, priest or a particular protestant minister will be arranged.

For those who have known emergency and crisis, sickness and pain, the Chaplaincy Service will have a special meaning. It is good to know that Duke has such a service as this to offer and that the need for comfort and understanding is heeded.

Supt's Corner

(Continued from page 3)

meet the recommendations; others are planned. We are proud of our accreditation but, more importantly, we will strive to make patient care at Duke Hospital the best available anywhere.

ATTENTION: MEDICAL CENTER EMPLOYEES!

WE URGE YOU TO . . .

take the time for good health
take a smallpox revaccination

Dr. Long to Costa Rica

Dr. Caroline Long, Research Associate in surgery, left in September for two months in Costa Rica. She will serve as a consultant in virology for the Institute of Health in Costa Rica. The Costa Rica assignment was made by the World Health Organization of the United Nations.

Dr. Long, describing her assignment, explained, "This will represent an expansion of their current laboratory facilities in Costa Rica. And it will be predominantly to start a tissue culture technique for the isolation and typing of respiratory viruses."