

Photo by Thad Sparks

DISASTER STRIKES AGAIN! A simulated student riot on the Duke University baseball field on May 19 sent Duke Hospital into its 7th annual Disaster Plan. Playing the role of casualties were freshman medical students and nurses. There were almost 100 "casualties" transported from the baseball field in University trucks to the Hospital's emergency entrance where they were dispatched to the main dining room for registration, sorting and emergency care. From here "casualties" went to shock wards, pre-operative wards, or to areas where they would await treatment. As many as 1,000 persons were involved in the plan. The entire operation was monitored this year by television cameras mounted at strategic points along the disaster route. The main receiver was in the Disaster Control Center so that officials could see the over-all effectiveness of the Disaster Plan. Commenting on the success of the operation, Donald S. Smith, officer in charge, said, "We were pleased to see that everyone got to his post so quickly and played his role so well."

This 'n' That

NEW ARRIVALS

Congratulations are in order for Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Berry, who are the proud parents of a new baby girl, Courtney Lynn, born April 3. Mr. Berry is in the Department of Surgery office.

Dr. and Mrs. Patrick D. Kenan are due congratulations for their new son, John Patrick, born May 8. Dr. Kenan is in the Division of Otolaryngology.

From Surgical PDC comes news of the birth of a daughter, Johna Miles, to Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dominick on May 2. Betsy Dominick was formerly employed as a dental hygienist for Dr. Baxter B. Sapp.

The Division of Anesthesiology has two "April arrivals" to note: Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Atkinson, a son, and Mrs. Nancy Lassiter, a daughter.

The Department of Psychiatry informs us that Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Needell and Dr. and Mrs. Norbert Enzer have recently had new arrivals in their families. Congratulations!

Mrs. Peggy Roberts, of the OPD Central Laboratory, became the proud mother of a baby girl, Susan Lynn on April 7.

WEDDING BELLS

Two employees of the Department of Psychiatry, Gill Galloway Lunsford and Libby Wallace were recently feted at a tea given by co-workers. Gill was married May 21 to Elmus W. Lunsford, and Libby was married June 20 to Thomas Marsh.

OPD announces the marriage of Joanne Emory, Clinic receptionist, to William Conner Holland, of the Clinical Chemistry Lab, on April 6 in the Duke University Chapel.

The May 1 marriage of Brenda Jordan, secretary in the Clerical Pool, to Kenneth M. Jones is also announced by OPD. The couple is residing in Graham, N. C.

A September wedding is planned for Judith Smith and Bright Lowry, announces Nursing Service. Miss Smith is Assistant Head Nurse on Howland.

It is also reported from Nursing Service that wedding bells rang recently for Clinic nurse Carol Kreps, who became Mrs. Jon Wendt in May.

NEW FACES AND OLD

There are several new faces in the Outpatient Department. Mrs. Betty Desrosiers has replaced Mrs. Joanne Holland as Clinic receptionist in the Registration Area of OPD. Mrs. Peggy Pate, formerly employed by the EHO, is now in the OPD Business Office. Mrs. Margaret Ray has replaced Mrs. Sue Lucas as Clinic receptionist in the Eye Clinic, and Mrs. Edith Hudson is now in the