Administration says "Thanks" to the Women's Auxiliary

On the evening of Tuesday, March 5, 1968, the Administration of Duke University Medical Center held a pink and white candlelight dinner in the first floor cafeteria in honor of The Membership of the Duke Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

Mr. Charles H. Frenzel (right), Administrative Director of Duke Medical Center, greets his guests (left to right): Mrs. Blaine Nashold, Recording Secretary of the Women's Auxiliary; Mrs. T.W. Minah, Treasurer; Mrs. George Maddox, Vice President; Mrs. Harold Silberman, President; and Mr. Thomas R. Howerton, the guest speaker.

Mr. Howerton, Administrator of Wilson Memorial Hospital in Wilson, pinpointed one of the major problems facing the delivery of health care today - inadequate personnel. His topic: "A New Approach to Health Careers Recruitment in North Carolina," (see page 3).

"Again this year we are very, very pleased to see so many of you here," Mr. Frenzel said, "and happy to have this occasion to express our thanks, in a small way, for all you are doing for Duke Medical Center. I think the Auxiliary begins to mean more and more to us as each year passes."

Three great ladies of the Women's Auxiliary were among the 93 members present (left to right): Mrs. Julian Ruffin, Mrs. Bayard Carter, and Mrs. E.L. Persons. All were charter members of the original Auxiliary 18 years ago; Mrs. Carter was their first president.
