

CANDYSTRIPERS FETED -- Teenage volunteers were honored at a dinner September 18 by the Hospital Auxiliary.

Auxiliary Entertains Volunteers

Eighty-five girls between the ages of 14 and 18 devoted part of their summer vacation in service as volunteers at Duke Hospital this year. Their assistance during these months was valuable to the hospital and hopefully of value to their own possible future health careers.

The girls were honored Wednesday night at a supper given by the Duke Hospital Auxiliary. Nearly 60 of the candystripers attended the dinner.

Collectively, the volunteers gave 5,749 hours of service in the hospital's wards, clinics, post office, student health service and coffee shop.

The girls, officially called Junior Auxiliary Volunteers, assisted both patients and hospital personnel. In addition to helping patients, the volunteers answered call lights, made unoccupied beds, passed out mail and ran errands for clinic and ward staff.

The Candy Stripers received instruction in the fields in which they did their volunteer work. All received special cards acknowledging their participation in the program.

Freshman Nursing Class Under New Curriculum

Eighty-four freshmen last week became the first nursing class to participate in the School of Nursing's new curriculum.

The students, all women, will take two years of liberal education classes and then two years of professional nursing courses. Previously, students took some nursing courses in their freshman and sophomore years. The four-year curriculum leads to a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree.

The purpose of the program, according to a statement by the nursing faculty, is to "unify general and special education to the end that the graduate may effectively assume his responsibilities as a person, a citizen and a professional practitioner."

This year's freshmen come from 19 states and Mexico. They are:

Hospital Group Elects Frenzel To Fellowship

Charles H. Frenzel, administrative director of the Medical Center, has achieved the highest status obtainable in the American College of Hospital Administrators, a 7,000-member organization of leading hospital and health care personnel in the United States and Canada.

Mr. Frenzel was advanced to Fellowship status in the ACHA at a special convocation in Atlantic City in mid-September, during the organization's 34th annual convention.

A person elevated to Fellowship rank must meet certain tenure requirements, standards of moral character and ethical conduct, be an active participant in hospital administration, professional and educational activities and provide service beyond the ordinary demands of his position.
