

Buildings Receive 'Face Lifting'

regular banking services for hospital personnel and students.

The new chapel is located where the lobby enters the main hospital. Construction work is complete, but the chaplains are waiting for the arrival of the furniture scheduled to be here any day. The sanctuary is designed for persons of all religious beliefs.

The School of Nursing's Hanes House underwent nearly $190,000 in renovations and remodeling during the summer and part of the fall. Some furnishings are still being installed.

The changes concentrated living quarters and other student facilities, including the health service, in the central wing of the building. A number of faculty offices, a 14-seat seminar room and a 40-seat classroom were constructed from reclaimed space.

The lobby, formerly just a small room, was enlarged and redecorated into a lounge-type area for students and guests. Plans for the Hanes House project were begun in late 1967.

The hospital kitchen, which serves 650 patients and nearly 700 staff and employees each day, was the object of $40,000 worth of renovation and new equipment. The patient food service and the baking area along with some of the storage and cooking facilities were improved.

part series on renovation and construction

WAITING FOR FURNISHINGS—The new interfaith chapel near the main lobby will be ready for use as soon as furniture for the area arrives. The chapel has been planned for persons of all religious faiths.

Hanes House

Kitchen

NEW OFFICES—Hanes House, the School of Nursing new offices, a classroom and seminar space.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT—The hospital kitchen located in the basement improved its facilities to serve patients and personnel with $40,000 worth of renovation and new equipment.