Four Administrators Promoted

Four hospital administrators have been promoted to newly created positions in the director's office. All had assumed their duties by Feb. 1.

C. Edward McCauley, assistant director since 1967, is now associate director. George H. Mack and Howard R. Veit, both formerly administrative associates, and S. Douglas Smith, formerly administrative assistant to the dean of the School of Medicine, have become assistant directors.

Announcement of the new appointments was made by Dr. Stuart M. Sessoms, director of the hospital.

Mr. McCauley, originally of Charlottesville, Va., received his B. S. degree from North Carolina State University in 1956. He had previously attended Mars Hill Junior College.

After earning a physical therapy certificate at Duke, Mr. McCauley was granted a master's degree in hospital administration from the Medical College of Virginia in 1963.

Prior to his appointment at Duke in 1967, Mr. McCauley served as assistant director of the Division of Association Services of the American Hospital Association. He was also formerly assistant

National Academy of Sciences Elects Dr. Handler President

Dr. Philip Handler, James B. Duke Professor and chairman of the Department of Biochemistry, was declared president-elect of the National Academy of Sciences Jan. 17. Dr. Handler, 51, will begin a six-year term as the eighteenth president of the academy July 1.

He succeeds Dr. Frederick Seitz, president of the academy since 1962, who will devote fulltime to his position as president of the Rockefeller University after Dr. Handler takes office.

Dr. Handler, at Duke since 1939, has been active in enzyme research and has participated in national scientific affairs. He has been a member of the National Science Board since 1962 and its chairman since 1966. From 1964 to 1968 he was a member of the President's Science Advisory Committee.
