

13 Appointments, Promotions Announced

Ten promotions and three new appointments to the medical center staff were announced by former University Provost R. Taylor Cole last month.

Earning promotions were five members of the Department of Anesthesiology, one in the Department of Biochemistry, two in the Department of Medicine and two in the Division of Orthopaedics.

Dr. Frank W. Clippinger, Jr. in orthopaedics and Dr. Kenneth D. Hall in anesthesiology have been named full professors. Both were formerly associate professors.

Dr. Clippinger, who earned his M. D. degree from Washington University in St. Louis in 1952, has been at Duke since 1958. He has completed Duke's Orthopaedic Training Program.

Dr. Hall, who received both his undergraduate and M. D. degrees from Duke, was first appointed to the staff here in 1958. He has previously worked with the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness.

Three men have been promoted to the rank of associate professor. They are Dr. Heriberto Ferrari and Dr. Vartan Vartanian in anesthesiology and Dr. Frank Bassett III in orthopaedics.

Dr. Ferrari, who received his medical education at the University of Buenos Aires in Argentina, came to Duke in 1964 for a residency in anesthesiology. Dr. Vartanian, a graduate of Cluj University Medical School of Rumania, was on the staff of the Azounieh Hospital for Chest Diseases before coming to Duke. A graduate of the University of Louisville School of Medicine, Dr. Bassett is also assistant professor of anatomy.

Five men have moved up to assistant professorships. Dr. Patrick J. Breen, originally from Ireland, and Dr. James LeRoy King, a graduate of Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Wake Forest University, were named assistant professors of anesthesiology.

Dr. Jayant G. Joshi, who received his education at the University of Poona in India, has been promoted to assistant professor of biochemistry.

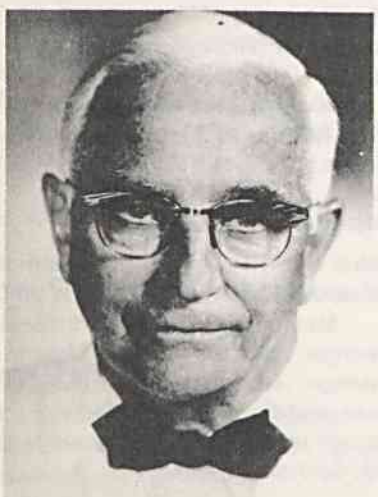

In the Department of Medicine, Dr. Michael E. McLeod and Dr. Robert H. Peter, both formerly associates in medicine, have been named assistant professors. Dr. McLeod and Dr. Peter are graduates of the Duke School of Medicine.

Appointed associate professor of experimental surgery and associate professor of biomedical engineering was Dr. Brian Andrew Hills, a graduate of Cambridge University. Dr. Hills was formerly associate professor of medical science at Brown University.

Dr. James E. Hammond II, formerly a research assistant and instructor at Duke, has been appointed assistant professor of community health sciences and assistant professor of biomedical engineering.

Dr. Rebecca H. Buckley, was named assistant professor of pediatrics. A graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Medicine, Dr. Buckley is also an associate in immunology.

Gardner Lecture Given Jan. 30

DR. WANGENSTEEN

A man whose association with the University of Minnesota as a student, teacher, and physician spans more than a half-century delivered the fourth annual Clarence E. Gardner lecture at the medical center Jan. 30.

Dr. Owen H. Wangensteen, professor emeritus of surgery and Regents Professor of Surgery at Minnesota, spoke on "The Historical Aspects of the Evolution of the Management of Acute Intestinal Obstruction." The lecture was also part of the Dean's Hour series.

The Gardner Lecture is named for Dr. Clarence E. Gardner, professor emeritus of surgery and former chairman of the department at Duke.

Volunteers Hear Report, Set Auxiliary Officers

Members of the Duke Hospital Auxiliary gave nearly 14,000 hours of their time to volunteer services at the hospital in 1968, according to the group's annual report.

The report was presented to the membership at a business meeting Jan. 15 at the Duke graduate center. New officers for the year were installed at the morning gathering. Installing officer was Mrs. Alan K. Manchester.

Serving as president of the organization will be Mrs. Harold Silberman. Other officers are Mrs. Roland Wilkins, first vice-president; Mrs. Samuel S. Wiley, second vice-president; Mrs. Robert Colver, third vice-president; Mrs. Blaine Nashold, recording secretary; Mrs. H. Franklin Bowers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. T. W. Minah, treasurer and Mrs. Cary Cole, historian.

Members heard a report on the memorial lectureship in cooperation with the Duke School of Nursing which has been
