

Department of Medicine Promotes 3 to Professor

The Department of Medicine at the medical center has promoted three men to the rank of full professor. Announcement of the promotions was made by University Provost Marcus Hobbs.

Dr. John B. Pfeiffer, Dr. Roscoe R. Robinson and Dr. Herbert A. Saltzman, all formerly associate professors, will assume their new positions April 1.

Pfeiffer, a native of New York, received a B. S. degree from St. Peter's College in 1934. He earned his M. D. degree at Cornell University Medical College in 1942 and served as an intern and resident at New York Hospital.

A former ward surgeon in internal medicine with the Army Medical Corps, Pfeiffer came to Duke in 1949 and has been associate professor of neurology since 1958. He is also a consultant in neurology at Watts Hospital in Durham.

Robinson, who came to Duke as an associate in medicine in 1960, earned his B. S. degree from Central State College in Oklahoma in 1949 and his M. D. degree from the University of Oklahoma School of Medicine in 1954.

He was named associate professor of medicine in 1965 and is presently also chief of the division of nephrology.

A native of Philadelphia, Saltzman attended Ursinus College in Collegeville, Pa., and received his M. D. degree from Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia in 1952. He served his internship and residency in both his native city and at Lackland Air Force Hospital.

He came to Duke in 1958 and was chief of pulmonary diseases at the Durham Veterans' Hospital until 1963. He is presently director of the hyperbaric unit.

DR. STEAD

Dr. Stead Presented ACP Award

Dr. Eugene A. Stead, Jr., professor of medicine and former chairman of the department, has received the first Distinguished Teacher Award from the American College of Physicians.

The ACP announcement of the award said the organization is "recognizing the enobling qualities of a great teacher who has achieved leadership in the field of medical education."

The award will be presented at the college's 50th annual session April 20-25 in Chicago.

Also at the meeting, Dr. W. C. Davison, first dean of the Duke School of Medicine, will be the recipient of a mastership in the organization.

Dr. Stead received both his B. S. and M. D. degrees from Emory University in Atlanta. He was formerly an instructor in medicine at Harvard University School of Medicine and served as dean of the Emory School of Medicine from 1945 to 1946. He has been at Duke since 1947.

In addition to his teaching work with residents, interns and medical students, Dr. Stead was instrumental in the development of the physicians' assistant program.
