Cardiovascular Division Gives 1-Day Seminar

The Department of Medicine's cardiovascular division will present a one-day seminar on diseases involving the heart valves September 24 at the Medical Center.

The purpose of the program is to give busy internal medicine and cardiology specialists a current overview of some diagnostic and treatment procedures employed in valvular heart disease. Special emphasis will be focused on the use of surgery.

Visiting professor for the session will be Dr. W. Proctor Harvey, professor of medicine and director of the division of cardiology at Georgetown University Hospital in Washington, D. C.

Ten professors in the School of Medicine here will make up the rest of the workshop faculty. Dr. Henry McIntosh, chief of the cardiovascular division, is coordinating the program which will begin at 1 p.m. and end at 9:45 p.m.

Physicians from throughout the Virginias and the Carolinas are expected to attend.
