

Hospital Chapel To Be Dedicated To G. G. Allen

The George Garland Memorial Chapel and Supporting Rooms will be dedicated to the late chairman of the Duke Endowment Trustees during Medical Alumni Weekend.

The ceremony is scheduled for 4:45 p.m., Friday, November 7.

Chaplain P. Wesley Aitken will present the chapel to the University and Dr. Barnes Woodhall, chancellor pro tem, will make the acceptance speech.

Participating in the dedication will be the Rev. James T. Cleland, dean of the University Chapel, Rabbi M. Herbert Berger of Durham, Monsignor James McSweeney of Durham, and Dr. Morris Davis of the Duke faculty.

Mr. Allen, a native of Warrenton, N. C., succeeded James B. Duke as chairman of the Duke Endowment Trustees in 1925 and served as chairman of the building committee during the construction of the West campus. He was among the first to be honored by having a building named for him during his lifetime when the University Trustees voted in 1954 to rename the classroom and administration building the Allen Building.

Shortly after his death, his family and friends initiated a memorial fund to aid in construction of the long-awaited Duke Hospital Chapel.

The chapel was designed keeping in mind that it must be useful to all faiths. The only fixed religious symbol in the room is a circular altar. The chapel is always open for private use with services for various religious groups scheduled by the Medical Center Chaplains Service.

Supporting rooms, including a family meditation room, a group conference room and the chaplains offices are completed or near completion.

It is anticipated that Mr. Allen's two daughters, Mrs. Will R. Gregg and Mrs. J. W. Fowkles, both of New York City, will be on hand for the dedication service.

The Durham Chess Club meets every Tuesday evening (7-11 p.m.) at the West Durham Recreation Hall (corner of Hillandale and Hillsboro Roads). All chess players are welcome.

12 Finish Dietetics Course

The Medical Center's Dietetics Internship Program graduated twelve women in September. Upon completion of the 12-month course, the dietitians earned membership in the American Dietetic Association and were presented the accompanying pin and certificate.

The program, under direction of the Medical Center's Department of Dietetics, is designed to provide students with practical experience in patient care dietetics and food administration along with additional class work in these areas. All the graduates had previously received degrees in foods and nutrition or institutional management.

Following a three-week orientation section, interns spent a total of 35 weeks training in several of Duke's patient care facilities—medical wards, surgical wards, infant, child and maternal health areas, research units and the outpatient departments. In addition, during the final twelve weeks of the course, each student assumed senior responsibility for one of the hospital's food services.

Interns received instruction in techniques of preparing food budgets, supervising personnel, ordering foods, planning food storage and organizing the serving systems.

Graduates and their home towns include the following:

Anita Kay Boatright, Rome, Ga.; Linda Danielson, Ft. Collins, Colo.; Reba Gail Howard, Carthage, Miss.; Lynn Ketcham, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Mary Kiser, Honolulu, Hawaii; Cary W. Lipscomb, San Antonio, Tex.; Brenda Lee Marshall, Danville, Va.; Charlene Louise Ott, Hagerstown, Md.; Dorothy Chapman Ready, Edgefield, S. C.; Margaret S. Rumbley, Greenville, N. C.; Elaine Waller, Kinston, N. C.; and Kathleen G. Westman, Grand Rapids, Mich.

To Benefit Employees New Retirement Plan

A change in the effective date of retirement benefits for non-academic employees was made at a meeting of the University Executive Council this month.

The normal retirement date still remains as the June 30 following the employee's 65th birthday. The change, however, gives the employee to option to retire on his 65th birthday and to receive the normal retirement allowance without having to wait until the June 30 following.
