

Intercom

duke university medical center

VOLUME 19, NUMBER 20

MAY 26, 1972

DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

77 Receive B. S. Degrees in Nursing

Four years of study and training came to an end May 14 for the 77 women in the School of Nursing's 1972 graduating class.

At the annual recognition service May 13, the nurses received their long-awaited school pins, signifying entrance into the nursing profession. They then received their academic diplomas the following day at the University graduation ceremonies.

Also, fifteen graduate nurses received their master's degrees in nursing at the same commencement exercises.

Sixteen of the new B.S.N. graduates have accepted positions with the Duke Hospital Nursing Service.

Graduating with a B.S. degree in nursing were Carolyn Steuart Ames, Joan Della Arnold, Marcia Lynn Bade, Nancy Louise Beetham, Mary Augusta Bigelow, Barbara Ann Borshay, Patricia Louise Briggs, Suzanne Elizabeth Brittingham, Sandra Mae Budner, Meredith Louise Burke, Diane Burn, Carolyn Ann Bythewood and Anne Betts Carpenter.

Also, Erica Ann Caruso, Lizabeth Ann Chockley, Jean Ann Colgan, Brenda Nevidjon Corley, Juliet Elizabeth Crennel, Deborah Ann Crum, Jeana Glenn Davison, Deborah Denise Dickerson, Susan Elizabeth Dye, Jane Ellen Ehrensall, Barbara Ann Eshelman, Janet Finklea, Jean Marie Francis, Katharine Ann Gracely, Ruthanne Lamb Green, Marsha Lynne Hallman and Judy Jean Hamburg.

Deborah Ann Handrahan, Gayle Markeitha Bridges Harris, Barbara Susan Hopkins, Cathy Jo Whitley Horton, Sandra Marie Hower, Linda Carol Hurst, Sue Ella Iddings, Kathryn Jeanne Jaquette, Dora Jane Johnston, Jacquelyn Marie Kelley, Margaret Ann Lammert, Daryl Louise Maass, Anita Ragna Madea, Jane Mandeville, Kathy McCormick, Cheryl Ann Noncarrow and Suzanne Spieser Orkin.

(continued on page two)

AWARD RECIPIENTS—Honored for their outstanding achievement in nursing during their four years at Duke were, from left to right, B.S.N. graduates Debby Williamson, Marsha Hallman, and Sue Iddings. Miss Williamson was presented the Outstanding Service Award; Miss Hallman, the Duke School of Nursing Alumni Award; and Miss Iddings, the annual Moseley Award. Dean Ruby L. Wilson and Mary Anne Peter, president of the Alumnae Association, made the presentations at the School of Nursing's annual recognition service May 13. (photo by Thad Sparks)

Duke Gets $1 Million To Establish Two Professorships in Pediatrics

Duke has received gifts totaling $1 million to establish two professorships in general pediatrics.

The gift marks a re-emphasis at Duke and at medical schools throughout the country on training physicians for general application of their medical training.

The professorships, recipients of which have not been chosen, will be called the Wilburt C. Davison Professorships in General Pediatrics. Dr. Davison was dean of the Duke School of Medicine from 1927-60 whose specialty was pediatrics.

Half of the million-dollar gift came from the Duke Endowment and the other half from the Doris Duke Foundation. Miss Duke is the daughter of James B. Duke, who left funds for establishment of Duke University.

While Duke will continue to offer specialty training in many areas of pediatrics, such as pediatric cardiology, neurology and immunology-allergy, the new professorships will enable the Department of Pediatrics to concentrate more fully on the training of the general physician for infants and children.

(continued on page two)