

SMILING AND HAPPY AT HALF-CENTURY—Dr. and Mrs. David T. Smith came to join the faculty and staff at the medical center the year it opened, in 1930. But their association with one another as husband and wife pre-dated that by seven years. One day last month at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill, family and friends joined them to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, when this picture was taken. They were married on Sept. 12, 1923, in Greenville, S.C. Dr. Smith, now James B. Duke Professor Emeritus of Microbiology, headed that department from 1930 until his retirement in 1960. Mrs. Susan Smith joined the staff as an associate in nutrition in 1930 and spent a quarter-century in nutritional research here. (Photo by Walter E. Shackelford)

Speech Problems Studied At Annual Meeting Here

Speech problems associated with clefts of the lip and palate are the subject of a symposium that started here yesterday and is extending through today.

More than 150 professionals from several states who work with cleft lip and palate children are attending the fifth annual symposium on "Orofacial Anomalies as Related to Speech Disorders." Participants include professionals in special education, speech and hearing, pediatrics, plastic surgery, dentistry, orthodontics, psychology, otolaryngology and vocational rehabilitation.

The seminar is being sponsored by the Divisions of Medical Speech Pathology, Orthodontics and Plastic, Maxillofacial-Oral Surgery. Members of the Cleft Lip and Palate Team at Duke and other faculty members from the sponsoring divisions are on the program.

The guest speaker yesterday was Dr. Mildred F. Berry, a retired professor and author from Illinois who discussed "Speech and Language Habilitation of the Cleft Palate Child."

Topics of discussion include control of dental disease, orthodontic problems, restorative dentistry, hearing problems, language acquisition, hypernasality, adenoid and tonsillar tissue and neurological problems in cleft lip and palate children.

The annual symposium was started five years ago by Dr. Raymond Massengill Jr., director of medical speech pathology.

Two Head Nurses Named

Two new head nurses have been named at the medical center. They are Mrs. Cheryl Mentzer on Hanes Ward and Miss Edith Stephenson in the Recovery Room.

A native of Meadville, Pa., Mrs. Mentzer received her nursing diploma from Meadville City Hospital School of Nursing in 1972. Following graduation, she came to Duke as a staff nurse on Hanes, a general medical unit.

In her free time, Mrs. Mentzer enjoys the hobby of grooming poodles. Her husband, James, is a graduate student in Canadian history at Duke.

Miss Stephenson of Billings, Mont., came to Duke in March of 1973 as a staff nurse in the Recovery Room.

She obtained a three-year diploma in 1971 from St. Vincent's in Billings. Prior to her arrival at Duke, she worked as a staff nurse at Columbus Hospital in Great Falls, Mont.

Aside from her nursing responsibilities, she enjoys hiking, swimming and sewing.
