Employee Flexibility

that you and your supervisor agreed on.

Any discretionary holidays that are accumulated must be taken by the end of February of the following year.

"The reason for change in holiday schedules at the medical center is because Duke Hospital must be open around the clock, every day of the year," said Richard Jackson, the university's assistant vice president for personnel. "The rest of the university can close, even for several days at a time, without interrupting patient-care activities. But the hospital cannot.

Four Appointed to Staff

Four appointments at the medical center have been announced by University Provost Frederic N. Cleveland.

Appointed to assistant professorships are Dr. James E. Hall, physiology; Dr. Edward W. Holmes, medicine; Dr. Robert David Nebes, medical psychology; and

Dr. John L. Sullivan, psychiatry.

Hall received his B.A. degree in 1963 from Pomona College in Claremont, Calif. He obtained his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in physics from the University of California in Riverside.

Following military service, Hall joined the Duke staff in 1970 as a postdoctoral research fellow working under Drs. Carver Mead in electrical sciences and Max Delbruck in biology.

A native of Winona, Miss., Holmes came to Duke in 1970 as a resident in medicine. He received his B.S. degree from Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va., and M.D. from the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in Philadelphia.

Prior to his recent appointment, Holmes served as chief medical resident at Duke.

A 1965 graduate of Tufts University in Medford, Mass., Nebes received his Ph.D. degree in psychobiology at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena in 1971.

He came to Duke in 1970 as a postdoctoral fellow in the Neurosciences Research Program and from 1971-72 served as a psychologist at the Durham Veterans Administration Hospital.

Sullivan received his A.B. degree from Duke in 1965 and his M.D. from Johns Hopkins School of Medicine in Baltimore, Md., in 1969. He served a straight medical internship at Johns Hopkins Hospital and was a resident in psychiatry at the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine in La Jolla.

Prior to his appointment at Duke, Sullivan was course lecturer and director of the Psychopharmacology Clinic in the Department of Psychiatry at the University of California.

R.T. Conference Begins Tomorrow

A regional educational seminar in respiratory therapy featuring several speakers from Duke will be held at Holiday Inn West tomorrow beginning at 9 a.m.

Fred Detterman, a respiratory therapist here, is helping arrange the conference, which is sponsored by the N.C. Society for Respiratory Therapy and Respiratory Care, Inc.

About 100 participants are expected. The program will include physiology of humidification and aerosolization; administration of humidity and aerosol; 2,3 Diphosphoglycerate and its action on the Oxyhemoglobin in Dissociation Curve; lung lavage; mist tent therapy; and the Aquapak story.

Duke speakers will be Dr. Samuel McMahon, Dr. Richard Dixon, Dr. Johannes Kylstra and Dr. Henderson Rourk. Also speaking will be R. Bruce Steinbach, director of respiratory therapy at N.C. Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill, and William J. Beal, educational coordinator of Respiratory Care, Inc.

Benjamin Mays Killed In Automobile Mishap

A technician in the Division of Audiovisual Education died Saturday night, March 9, from injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

Benjamin Thomas Mays, 34, of 2145 Pine Drive in Raleigh had been employed by the division for eight years. He worked in the Medical TV Facility as a projectionist and cameraman.

He was killed when his vehicle went out of control and struck a pole by the side of the highway.

"Ben was an excellent worker who was always willing to help those who came to him with a request," said Sam Agnello, director of Audiovisual Education. "He played an integral role in the classroom service activities, and was both well known and well liked by people throughout the medical center," he added.

Funeral services were held at 11 a.m. on Tuesday following the accident at Michell Funeral Home Chapel by the Rev. William Mills. Burial was in the Montlawn Memorial Park.

Dr. Dees Elected To Academy Post

Dr. Susan Dees, professor of pediatrics and chief of the Division of Pediatric Allergy, has been elected vice president of the American Academy of Allergy.

She is the first woman to hold a position on the academy's executive committee.

A graduate of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and a member of the Duke faculty since 1939, Dr. Dees is author of 58 articles on various subjects pertaining to allergy. She served on the White House Conference on Children and Youth in 1960 and is a past-president of the N.C. Pediatric Society and the Southeastern Allergy Association.

Dr. Dees and her husband, Dr. John Dees, professor of urology, have four children and three grandchildren.
