SCC Petitions For University Status

Architect's drawing of new proposed 25 million dollar campus for SCC.

Chorus To Leave On World Tour

Gary L. Zeller, chorus director, announced today that the Southeastern Community College Chorus would make an eleven nation concert tour during the summer of 1967.

The tour is under the auspices of the U. S. State Department. Mr. Zeller received a telegram from Sec. of State Dean Rusk's office confirming the tour arrangements.

The tour will begin June 16th in Washington with a special concert for President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. From there the chorus will go to New York City and sing in the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. The group will then board a TWA jet for Europe.

Highlights of the tour will include performances in London, Bonn, Zurich, The Hague, Paris, Rome, Cairo, Istanbul, and Beirut. After singing in Japan the gifted musicians will return to the United States via Hawaii and conclude their tour with a concert in San Francisco on August 10th.

Campus To Have Rathskeller

The management of the Rathskeller in Chapel Hill have announced plans to include Southeastern University in their chain of recreational facilities for four year universities in North Carolina.

There is a general agreement among the owners of the Rathskeller that the new house of joy should be modeled after the historic Rathskeller of Frankfurt, Germany. The place will be blessed with the presence of several 500 gallon kegs of delicious mouth water BOOZE! It

Coming Events

The concerts of the Fine Arts Series for the upcoming year will include the following performances and performers: New York Philharmonic Orchestra; Peter, Paul, and Mary; Al Hirt; Supremes in concert; and Bob Dylan and Joan Baez.

Drama Club To Do Virginia Woolf

James Erwin, faculty sponsor of the drama club, announced that the club's first production will be Edward Albee's play Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Mr. Erwin said that this play was decided on after much debate among the members of the club. Other contenders among the plays were Marat Sade and Macbird. There was even some discussion of reviving a medieval morality play.

Glen Allen and Linda Garris will portray the characters of George and Martha. The younger couple will be played by William McNeill and Vicki Barnes.

Rehearsals are underway and production is scheduled for May 24 and 25.

Oskar to Run For SGA Prez

The newspaper staff has had the extreme good fortune of conducting an interview of the candidates for S.G.A. presidency. Oskar explained his reasons for believing he is capable of winning the election.

"I think that I will win the election because I have so many friends among the students. Every student that passes me greets me and pats me on the head. I believe therefore that I have so many friends that I cannot lose. Most believe me to have a very friendly personality. I have been in public quite often and have great confidence in my ability to speak when I feel it necessary. If I am elected I will try to be around school as much as possible; I doubt that the other candidates could make such a claim. I do not need the help of others as I have always been able to stand on my own four feet."

Oskar announces himself as a candidate for president.

In an emergency meeting of the administration, faculty, and the board of trustees called by W. L. Eddins, business manager and acting president, it was unanimously decided to petition the North Carolina legislature to make Southeastern Community College a branch in the consolidated university system. Donald Causey, reading instructor, reported that he had received information from undisclosed sources to the effect that East Carolina College's chances of gaining university status were very slim. In view of this report we could become a pilot branch for the university in southeastern North Carolina and then when East Carolina's status had improved to an acceptable level they could possibly become a sub-branch of Southeastern.

NEED 26 MILLION

Mr. Eddins pointed out that a bond issue of $26 million would be needed in order to finance construction of the necessary new facilities. He stated that at the present time no policy existed concerning the procedure covering the situation and that he would have to ask Dr. I. E. Reedy, Director of Administration, Department of Community Colleges, in Raleigh exactly what posture should be assumed. After a telephone call to Raleigh, Mr. Eddins informed the group that Dr. Reedy suggested the proper posture could be assumed by bending forward and grasping the ankles with the hands. Dr. Charles R. King, Dean of Instruction, asked whether a $26 million bond issue was really necessary and moved the Mr. Eddins and the board might explore the possibility of acquiring the funds from profits realized through the sale of sandwiches in the lobby. Dr. King informed the Board that he had connections and would be willing to let them in on the deal. This motion was seconded by Mrs. Brady. After much discussion the motion was defeated.

Kenneth Jordan, History Instructor, made a motion that was seconded by Joe Nance, Basketball coach, that the monies be acquired through the sale of U. S. Savings Bonds sold via a chain letter. This motion was discussed at length and eventually defeated on the grounds that college officials might be liable for mail fraud should the matter reach the ears of the postal department.

Since none of the motions dealing with the necessary funds were passed, it was suggested that Mr. Eddins create another administrative position to handle the matter. This person would be known as the Dean of Fund Raising Activities.

WHAT NAME?

A lengthy and heated discussion developed over the name of the proposed branch of the University. The Whiteville faction led by Dr. Jesse Fisher, Vice-Chairman of the Board of Trustees and Rebecca Proctor, art instructor, contended that the new branch should be named The University of North Carolina at Whiteville. Equally vehement, though less coherent, was a clique represented by Sam Koonce, board member and Donald Causey, reading instructor, who insisted that the branch be known as The University of North Carolina at Chadbourn. Gary Zeller, humanities instructor, offered a compromise solution by suggesting that the entire student body forcibly invade Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw, take over their campus, and make it the site of the new branch which would then be known as the University of North Carolina at Lake Waccamaw. It was pointed out that with the campus at the Lake it would be more easy to facilitate eventual annexation of Wilmington College as a sub-branch. Armand Opitz, Dean of Student Personnel Services, made a motion that the decision for naming of the branch be left to his office and suggested that the student government association should hold a contest among the students to decide. Since many of the faculty members didn't know that the student government existed, this was soundly defeated. Henry Wyche, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, received Mr. Zeller's suggestion about situating the new branch at Lake Waccamaw. Mr. Wyche stressed the historical significance of the legend of Lake Waccamaw and pointed out that many and important institutions had Waccamaw in its name.

NEW DEGREES

Following this there was a short discussion which involved the new degrees that could be offered with the expanded facilities. Among the suggestions were graduate level courses in areas such as reading, adding, program materials, and quality point computation leading to the Doctorate in the respective field.

Ed Grigsby, math instructor, moved that the institution motto should be changed from "providing quality education for Southeastern North Carolina" to "providing quality baby sitting and draft deferments for Southeastern North Carolina."

Revisions

Those poor 4.0 students! The new point system at S. C. C. is 0.0 - A, 1.0 - B, 2.0 - C, 3.0 - D, 4.0 - F.

Mr. Eddins says "all students may park in the faculty parking lot". The teachers will now have to find their own parking space.

All final exams will now be given by the students to the instructor in each course so they may remain competent in their fields.

Students transferring to four year institutions have just learned only D'S and F'S are transferrable.

According to Mrs. Berry student nurses will have to carry 22 hours this summer semester since the present academic year has been at a slow pace.
