ANAEMIC VOCABULARY.

Two attractive-looking young men—both Freshmen—met on the campus.

"Congratulations, Victor! I just beard," said one of them in the voice of a refined person.

"Thanks, ever so much, Jimmie Lee. Who told you?"

"Slocum Van Miller. It's grand, son—simply grand! I'm so glad for you! When were you engaged?"

"Christmas."

"That's fine, Victor! How many others?"

"Only four," with becoming modesty.

"You don't say! That's simply swell, Victor! It certainly is just grand."

"I think so, too."

"Yes, it's dandy—perfectly dandy! I don't know that bunch very well, except Fred Myrick."

"Fred Myrick! I'm not engaged Delta."

"You're not? What then?"

"Sigma, of course."

"Victor! Why, that's grand—simply grand! Congratulations, son! That's certainly fine!"

SOCIALLY SPEAKING.

The girls of the art class entertained the lady teachers in honor of their teacher, Miss Eula Long, at a six o'clock chafing dish dinner, Wednesday, February 26. The girls showed their artistic taste in the elaborate decorations, the color schemes being pink and white. Carnations and potted plants were effectively used. The girls were smartly dressed, using pink and white chafing dish aprons and caps.

Among the carefully prepared dishes were shredded beef, Welch rarebit, French fried potatoes, ham salad, date sandwiches, pickles, olives, cheese sandwiches, hot chocolate and fruit. The guests were graciously served by Misses Thompsie Holland, Naomie Joyner, and Thelma Clymer. Every one present declared that drawing wasn't the only art in which the girls are talented.

Those who were present were Misses Long, Barnes, Pitt, Clements, Holland, Joyner, Lawrence, Ellis, Hall, Taylor, Ruth Johnson, Lilian Johnson, Wicker, Hinton, Cole, Price, Williams, Neville, Fuller, Clymer, and Bagwell.

RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS

Our hearts have been made glad, since the last write-up for the Weekly, by seeing many souls being born into the kingdom of God. Many of our prayers have been answered. Did you ever realize how merciful and good God is, especially when we are in trouble and ask him for help?

Mr. W. H. Neese led last Wednesday evening, selecting his subject from the letter Paul wrote to Titus giving him advice when the latter was given charge of the church at Crete. The subject was very appropriate for ministerial students to consider. Among the temptations that fall to many of us the bridling of the tongue is one of the greatest. Several helpful ideas were expressed. The business meeting shortened our time, so many of us did not have an opportunity to express our ideas. Rev. J. F. Morgan is leader for next meeting. Members, won't you come and help your meetings to help you?

Y. M. C. A.

The meeting was led by Mr. W. C. Franks. His subject was "Purpose" and nearly every one in the Hall took part. We enjoyed the presence and talks of several visitors among whom was Prof. E. T. Hines. The attendance was above the average and many men who are not regular attendants were present.
