The Freshman Class Organizes

Mr. O. C. Johnson, of Durham, Elected President—Other Officers.

That the class of 1924 is full of pep and promise was amply demonstrated in the class organization and election of officers this week.

The nominees for president were O. C. Johnson, M. Z. Rhodes, S. N. Lynam and R. V. Surratt. Mr. Johnson was elected on the first ballot by a decisive majority.

For vice-president Miss Jennie Gunter, Mr. P. D. Rudd and Mr. M. Z. Rhodes were placed in nomination. Mr. Rudd was elected on the first ballot, with Miss Gunter a close second.

Misses Gatling, Sellars, Babcock, Hart and Kibler were nominated for secretary. The vote on these five candidates was well distributed, but Miss Gatling received a majority and was elected.

Miss Adams, Miss Babcock and Mr. S. H. Atkinson were the nominees for treasurer. Miss Adams and Mr. Atkinson were tied on the first ballot, each receiving 36 votes. On the second ballot Miss Adams was elected by a small majority.

There was no division in the selection of the Freshman debating team for the interclass debate with the Sophomores. Mr. Lynam, Mr. Helms, and Miss Gunter were elected by acclamation.

Mr. Fesmire was elected chaplain by a unanimous vote.

Miss Swanson was elected class poet by acclamation.

Then, from a host of candidates, Miss Lawrence was elected class historian and Miss Dofflemyer was elected corresponding secretary. After the transaction of routine business, the class adjourned.

We wonder when the Power House will be tried by the Student Senate for smoking on the campus?

Kappa Psi Nu Banquet A Brilliant Success

Fifty Members and Guests Enjoy Three Hours of Pure Happiness

The Kappa Psi Nu banquet was a brilliant success. That, in short, sums up the experience of the fifty or more members and their invited guests. Wednesday evening of October 27 will always be remembered by everyone present at the semi-annual feast of the good old K. P. N.

The decorations were tastefully arranged in blue and gold, the fraternity's colors. Each table was decorated with a vase of gorgeous chrysanthemums. The gold and blue color note was carried out not only in the decorations but in the refreshments as well.

The refreshments were a triumph. A dainty fruit salad, served in neat orange baskets with blue and gold paper handles, comprised the first course. Then came a course of tempting club sandwiches and hot chocolate. Delicious block ice cream and cake was served next, followed by mints and nuts.

The guests assembled in the reception room in the West Dormitory and were escorted to the Domestic Science Hall. After they were seated, the frat members gave their rousing frat yell. Mr. C. M. Cannon served as toastmaster and acquitted himself handsomely.

The address of welcome was delivered by W. D. Lambeth. He mentioned the ideals and aspirations of the Kappa Psi Nu, gave the significance of the name, and welcomed the guests in such a genial way as to make them feel perfectly at ease. The jovial spirit of the occasion was caught by all, and for three hours the world stood still for Kappa Psi Nu and their friends. Miss Lucy Eldridge responded in behalf of the girls.

L. B. Ezell then gave a toast to the girls, which was responded to by Miss Mary Miller. Following this R. S. Rainey gave a reading in which he characterized each member of the Kappa Psi Nu. This gave rise to much merriment. Miss Lula Lilly responded with a similar reading in which she characterized each of the young ladies. L. I. Ingle and J. W. Fix entertained the happy band with some well chosen humorous remarks, after which H. L. Scott gave a handsome toast to the girls.

H. G. Self was called upon for an address, and gave it with great accuracy and detail, down to the R. F. D. and box number. K. R. MacCauley tried a duet in G flat, but found difficulty in the rendition and saved himself by giving a humorous reading. I. O. Hauser then called upon several members and guests to tell what they would do first if presented with a million dollars. Responses were made by H. G. Self, W. M. Garrison, F. H. Hunter, C. L. Walker, Mrs. R. S. Rainey and L. B. Ezell. From the nature of these responses it is quite evident that poverty is a blessing in disguise, for some dire things were brought to light that would most certainly happen if these men should have sudden wealth thrust upon them. Mr. L. M. Cannon then favored the company with a toast.

All this time R. S. Rainey had been vainly endeavoring to read a "vera gude let-ter," and at last the toast master consented. The letter was indeed "vera gude." After Mr. J. E. MacCauley had told the best joke of the season, the happy occasion was brought to an end by a toast from C. M. Cannon, which fell as a benediction upon 50 happy hearts.

A NEW ONE.

Important Christian Endeavor Event

Northwestern District of Christian Endeavor Will Hold Its Conference at Elon, November 6-7.

The local Christian Endeavor Society is looking forward with great joy to the conference which will be held by the Northwestern District of the organization on November 6 and 7.

Indeed we are anticipating one of the greatest meetings held during the history of Alma Mater. The visitors will be the select few from the various organizations throughout the district, and their association during the conference will mean a great deal to us who are interested and deeply concerned about Christian Endeavor.

We hope to have a number of returned missionaries who will tell their wonderful experiences in the great work for the Kingdom. There will be other speakers to bring messages of inspiration and enthusiasm regarding the great programs of the homeland, and regarding the magnificent opportunities offered Christian Endeavor.

It is the sincere desire of the local officers that every one of the student body belonging to the Christian Endeavor make it a point to be on the Hill during the week-end of November 6-7. It will be worth while to hear the addresses and meet the visitors. Be sure to be here, and show the Delegates a most enjoyable time. You will share the joy with them.

"Recent events" was our topic for consideration last Sunday evening; we did not, however confine the discussion to recent happenings, but pointed out many events of a few years past. The World War was nothing less than a conspiracy to accomplish a selfish motive. Why have nations soared to great heights of power and crumbled? Simply because of some selfish ambition, an en-
