

COLORED INHABITANTS TO BE INSTRUCTED

Education Classes to Extend Practical Work to Negro Population.

Work for the colored population of the village will begin at an early date. Plans have already been outlined by the community service committee of the religious activities organization for this kind of work. The colored children of the town are to receive week day religious instruction similar to that offered to the white children. This will be given on Thursday afternoon at the colored school which is situated on the edge of the village. There is to be a night school for adults also. In this school the Bible will be taught for thirty minutes to everyone together. This will be followed by classes in arithmetic and sanitation and hygiene. The latter course, that in sanitation, will be under the general supervision of the State Health Department. Dr. Rankin has been asked to outline the course. It is reported that the course in sanitation will be followed in the spring with a course in home demonstration work.

The negroes of the town are manifesting a great deal of interest in the new work which is being planned and it is believed that it will result in great good to the colored population of the town and in a mutual understanding and harmony between the races.

The work of the night school is to be intensely practical, and from time to time may be broadened to meet the needs of those whom it is intended to serve.

The committee on community service has also inaugurated plans for a kindergarten of religious education at the Orphanage. These are new phases of work at Elon and are securing a great deal of attention from the student body. The new co-operative organization is making this vast amount of practical outside work possible by a careful conservation of time and energy, and by bringing into service a larger number of the students. This big extension work cannot but result in a better trained leadership for the church and the nation.

Beginning with the first Sunday in October definite courses of study will be offered by the various departments through the Sunday school.

The committee on study courses has not yet thoroughly completed its work, but the following courses have already been announced.

A course in Christian leadership will be offered to Y. M. C. A. members. The text will be "The Making of Men", by Dr. W. A. Harper, and one of Dr. Fosdick's books on character building.

A course in Christian missions is offered to Y. W. C. A. members. During the fall they will study foreign missions, and follow it up in the spring with a careful study of home conditions and home missions.

Courses in Christian Endeavor expert and teacher training have also been announced.

A course for the study of the great Southern problem of the races will be conducted for all those interested in that line of work. Dr. Weatherford's book on the negro of the South will be the opening text book. The course can be made very helpful in meeting and solving this momentous problem of the South.

PSIPHELIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

The Psiphelian Literary Society met with various feelings of suppressed excitement on the part of the individual members, on last Monday night. The Phi's and Clio's were to take in their new members, and, because of the loyal spirit of the Psiphelian girls, the young ladies were as much interested in the event that was to follow the society meetings, as the young men themselves. Calming themselves as best they could under the existing conditions they listened interestedly to the following program:

The North American Indian, by Miss Ora Pace.

Latest Beauty Hints, by Miss Ross Clark.

A Piano Solo, by Miss Annie Laurie Phillips.

Current Events, by Miss Esther Farmer.

What I Hope to Get From My Trip to Blue Ridge, by Miss Margaret Corbitt.

Miss Pace prepared and delivered a good paper. The subject, one of paramount interest to all red-blooded Americans, was delivered by her very creditably.

Miss Clark's beauty hints were well timed, instructive, and amusing, as she selected a number of advertisements rife in our magazines of the day. Their wonderfully curative and beautifying powers were strongly emphasized by Miss Clark, who performed her task as creditably as another Lillian Russell.

Miss Phillips played her piano solo without the use of notes, and did it well. She seems to have ability in music and the Society wishes for her much success in the musical world.

Miss Farmer varied her current events by bringing in a bit of fun. The dryness of the events was freshened up a great deal by the touches of fun she had in her paper. She delivered a good paper.

Miss Corbitt gave a delightfully interesting talk on Blue Ridge. It was an informal little speech, but given in her own individual way which pleases always her audience.

Immediately after the close of the meeting the girls crowded out on the second-floor porch of West Dormitory to serenade, respond to, and cheer the Clio's and Phi's. It was a great night and one long to be remembered by the participants.

News comes from London that an aeroplane shed which cost $150,000 has just been sold at public auction for a sum of $525.

RAIFF'S

This store, closely identified as it has been with the evolution of Burlington from a small town to the metropolis of this district, the city and the store have advanced hand in hand, and in every event of progress which has transpired, this store has most notably made its impress upon the welfare of the people. We merely reflect public opinion in this statement, for it has repeatedly been said that "the greatest single force in bringing the mercantile development of the city to its present high standard has been due to the inspiration born in this store."

September finds us well stocked with Fall and Winter Suits, Coats, Capes, Dresses, Shoes, Hose, Millinery, etc.
