BETTER THINGS

Say what you will of wealth, of all
 It brings of luxury and ease;
 It steals the music from the soul,
 Makes lustreless the eye which sees,
 Puts on the common things of life
 A price. Like angels bought and sold,
 It desecrates the beautiful.
 I'd rather have my dreams than gold.

I'd rather hear a brown thrush sing
 Thank clinking bits of gold for hours;
 I'd rather see the rainbow's hues
 And make my round among my flowers,
 Than sit and watch a miser's hoard
 And know 'twas mine. I'd rather hold
 A hand worn old in works of love
 Than have a gleaming pile of gold.

There's more worthwhile in one brief
 smile
 Than in an endless chain of gold;
 There's truth on babbling baby lips
 Not found so fresh on lips grown old.
 The sordid contacts with the world
 Leave more than wrinkles and dimmed eye,
 And happy is that man who lives
 Nor lets his faith in beauty die.

The steadily increasing attendance of Burlington people at various events occurring on the Hill is, we believe, evidence of the ever-growing interest and friendliness between the two places.

The people of Burlington are very kindly co-operating with the college in arranging for the students to attend the fourth number of the concert and lecture course that is being held in Burlington on account of the destruction of the auditorium here.

Those who believe we haven't an inventive genius in our midst should call at the power plant and look over the electric clock arranged by Superintendent Rothgeb. Mr. Rothgeb has a clock that, in accuracy, entirely outclasses the several-hundred-dollar bell system that was destroyed in the fire. The clock is for the purpose of calling the attention of the power house force at the proper time to blow the whistle.

The students and friends of Elon were generous in their monetary gifts for the purpose of purchasing miniature gold footballs to be presented to the last-season football players. The men are proud of their trophies and appreciate the spirit manifested by their supporters. Those who witnessed the impressive ceremony Wednesday night, at which time the trophies were awarded, were well repaid for the amount they invested in this way.

A SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS

Homer Hoyt, of the University of North Carolina, has recently announced his intention of conducting, in Washington, D. C., from June 14 to September 1, a school of economics.

Through this course Mr. Hoyt plans to have the students come in contact with various governmental agencies engaged in economic research; with the New York Stock and Cotton Exchange, and with the economic work of several of the largest private corporations in America. "Only students of exceptional ability, who have had previous training in economics or social science, and who have keen enthusiasm for working upon problems that are vital to the national welfare will be accepted," states Mr. Hoyt.

The originator of this course claims it is not his purpose to make it financially profitable to himself, that he is charging a small tuition to defray his expenses, because it is a private venture and is not subsidized by any organization.

This course is calculated to, and no doubt will, prove helpful to those students of the state who are interested in economics or social science, and Mr. Hoyt has displayed a commendable spirit in making such a venture.

COACH CORBOY

With Coach Corboy making a name for himself in so many various fields of endeavor it is hard to determine at which angle to present him. He has always been one of the best coaches in the state, and now he is coming into his own as a speaker and writer. All Elon students are familiar with the Coach's witty and humorous talks on various occasions. His most recent fame, however, lies in the realm of journalism.

In the February issue of the Athletic Journal, a national magazine for coaches, carries an interesting article from the pen of Coach Corboy. The article is entitled Basketball in North Carolina. An editor's note accompanying the article gives the record of the Coach as a player and a coach. He makes note of the fact that twice Coach Corboy's basketball teams have been the runner-up for the state championship.

The writer states in his article that basketball is just coming into its own in North Carolina, due primarily to the fact that only recently the officials have had a real knowledge of the game. The writer explains that the first scrimmage he held on a North Carolina court was a mad scramble around center; that there was no organized playing, but instead the men played a "knock-down, drag-out" sort of game. The writer declares that coaches and officials are becoming more efficient in this state and in the entire South. One instance mentioned as evidence of the development of basketball in the state is the winning of the state and South Atlantic championship last year by the University of North Carolina.

Elon students and friends know of the excellent work of Coach Corboy at Elon. Since becoming head of athletics here he has developed winning teams in all branches of athletics. In the past three years he has made Elon known throughout the Carolinas and Virginia for its keenly trained and fighting spirited athletic teams.

Elon is fortunate in having a man of Coach Corboy's ability and experience to head its athletics. Athletics are in the colleges to stay and the college that develops good athletes is "mighty attractive" to young men.

For the first time in the history of Pennsylvania a woman was named a member of the governor's cabinet. The position is Commissioner of Public Welfare.

TO THE MEN OF THE 1922 FOOTBALL TEAM

For the faithful service you rendered on the football field this year you have been awarded the memento presented you recently. This was not presented to you as a reward for the number of games won, but as a token of love and respect for the spirit you exhibited in playing your several parts.

You men have been honored as no others have ever been honored at your college. When, in future years, you look upon your miniature football, each of you can feel that you are deserving of this signal honor, for you played your part as best you saw it under any and all circumstances.

The team unquestionably this year was the best football team that ever represented this college, and not because of the fact that the individual members were of exceptional ability but because of the fact that you realized that individuality must be submerged for the benefit of the team.

It was not a path of roses that you traveled this past fall, but one of hard work, discouragements, sickness, injuries and almost everything that would cause you to lose heart and give up, but you gave the best you had and wished that you had more to give. That is the reason you met with the success you attained.

You will, some of you in the near future, others at a later time, face this Old World to fight your individual battles, and if you will carry into that the same spirit that you evidenced on the football field, and meet the knocks and bruises, not physical but mental and spiritual, with the same attitude you showed here, I have no fear but that your life will be a success, and the world a better place for your having been here.

Personally, I want to say to each one of you that it was pleasure to work with you, and although it was necessary at times to take you to task and say things that were not pleasant to your ears, it was done for a purpose, and for your best interests. Such honors as have befallen you I think you are worthy of, and if you practice the things in the game of life that you learned on the football field, then I know that you will be the success that I want you to be, and your college will be proud to call you her son.

F. B. CORBOY.

MISS ALLIE MAE BROWN DIES AT HER HOME HERE

Messrs. Underwood, Flynn, Fesuire and Hatley.

The floral offering was profuse and exceptionally beautiful. The flower girls were members of the senior class and of the club, the Alpha Omega Eta, of which Miss Brown was a member. From the senior class were, Misses Mary Nelle and Lois Holland, Irene Goff, Esther Farmer, and Margaret Moring; from the Alpha Omega Eta, Misses Nannie Aldridge, Josephine Farmer, Opal Howell, Mabel Hinton, and Elise Caddell. Other flower bearers were Mrs. F. B. Corboy, Misses Marion Lee Newman, Lila Newman, Mary Adelia Atkinson, Georgia and Edith Moore.

The acting pall-bearers were Messrs. F. B. Corboy, L. J. Bray, L. J. Perry, J. M. McAdams, W. G. Stoner and C. P. Flynn. The honorary pall bearers were Messrs. O. B. Garmon, T. H. Andrews, John Whitesell, W. E. Marlette, W. M. Garrison and C. L. Walker.

The funeral was concluded at the cemetery where a large concourse of grief-stricken friends paid their last tribute to one whose life was so sweet and beautiful and pure that it was more fitting for the glories of Heaven than for the ways of earth.

Miss Lelia Wagoner is home for a few days.

SIMMON SEEDS

ABSOLUTELY, MR. SHEA

A health to the one's that we've sighed for.

To the radiant blonde and stately brunette,

We feel for them all, the short and the tall,
 And each was the best ever yet

A faint blushing smile at the table,

Is a heartache before springtime comes in,

For hearts need repairs, when hearts go in pairs,
 So bear it old man with a grin,

Only the freshies know true love,

For it follows on puppy love's heels,
 But gazing in eyes, as clear as the skies,
 Gives a hint of how poor freshie feels,

A health to the ones that just borrowed,

Our pins and our rings and our heart,
 It's part of the game, and there's no one to blame,

We knew it all jolly well from the start,

They've plucked us as well as their eye-brows,

They said, "this way out," with a smile,

But we owe them a debt, which we don't think of yet,

But we will when we're tired after-while.

DE FAT PROFESS'

Dees faculty, she's got all kinds
 Of men with, oh, such sharpa minds;
 Dey knows de bedtime of da flea,
 An' who shot who is heestory.

Dey knows how many times leetle two
 Will go in da billion thru an' thru;
 Dey knows da clouds, an' day by day
 Gues weather better dan da papers say.

Dey tell you how de mind she works,
 Knows da wisdom of da soda clerks;
 Dey measures off da plot of land,
 Dey say leetle rocks make da sand.

Dey knows so much, yet all da time
 On my poor frame dey want to climb,
 Dey say da fat girl ees immense,
 Dey tell da jokes at my expense.

Dey make me mad weeth too much fun,
 Or talk so hard dey cloud da sun.
 Yet one I like—you can no guess?—
 Dat's right; eet ees da fat profess'.

FACULTY NEVELE HOLDS ITS BI-MONTHLY MEETING

sion all too soon sped away.

A feature of the evening was a famous lovers contest in which Miss Mildred Kirkland, the most recent member of the club to be pierced by cupid's arrows, was declared the winner. On motion it was agreed that cupid is a revealer of secrets.

Following the social session the hostess assisted by Mrs. Janet Kirkland served delicious refreshment consisting of fruit salad, punch, coconut wafers and saltines. Each plate was decorated with a beautiful valentine favor which the club members declared they would preserve as a memento of the happy session.

The club adjourned to meet two weeks hence with Mrs. Alice Corboy as hostess in the Ladies' Hall.

WEEK SEES ELON VICTORIOUS AND DEFEATED ONE TIME EACH

passing but their offense would break when they neared the goals.

At the intermission the score stood 10 to 7 for Elon, the home team having had the lead throughout the first period. The visitors rallied about the middle of the second frame and succeeded in tying the score at 12-12, but two goals from the center of the court by Rob. Brown put the Christians out in front, and Perry and Fix added to the lead with their timely field goals.

Perry and Fix did stellar work for Elon with the two Frazier boys showing good work for the visitors, especially J. W. Frazier.
