rituals Pleasingly.

The annual entertainment of the Clio Literary Society was given last Friday evening, February 22, in the new society hall. The main feature of the program was the play, "The Hut," a comedy in three acts by Fannie Barnett Linsky. Two sketches, the first a blackface, "What Street?" by Clyde Rainey as George and J. H. Jones as Nicodemus, and the second, "Krazy Kat," by Darden Jones as Jack and H. Richardson as a messenger boy—added much to the enjoyment of the program. Another very entertaining number was the vocal solos in negro dialect by G. A. Pearce.

In the address of welcome J. T. Banks spoke of the nature of the work which the Clio society is doing, the place which the Clio motto, "Nitimur in Adversum," holds in the life of each Clio, and of the great life which symbolizes, as it were, the work of the Clio society and which is commemorated by the society in its annual entertainment each 22nd of February.

After the welcome address, before the curtain rose for the first act of the play, a beautiful piano duet, "The Approach of Spring," was given by F. Prescott and W. M. Sexton.

The scene of the play was laid in The Hut, a retreat for men, far in the mountains, ten miles from any town or village, and several miles from a highway, or a dwelling house. It was a place where men could live close to Nature and lead a simple, free life, away from the noise and the rush of the city with its worries and cares of business life, away from womankind with all her talk of styles, of theater-parties and of social life in general.

When the curtain rises for the first act, Orme and Carleton, two guests at The Hut, are alone in the living-room, Orme asleep in an armchair and Carleton whistling and whittling. Immediately Lodge enters. James Lodge, otherwise known as Jimmy, is a young man who has come to The Hut "to try to mend a broken heart," as he himself expressed it. His is not a case of disappointment in love; but on account of his failure to secure a promotion in his work, and consequently, an increase in salary, he feels that he can not afford to ask the girl whom he loves and who is a member of a very wealthy family, to marry him.

While Carleton and Lodge are discussing their sleeping companion, and wondering what secret trouble is worrying him, Mr. Orme awakes. Then the three of them discuss the newcomer at The Hut, Mr. John Rand, who has arrived only that morning. An auto horn sounds on the outside. As Lodge opens the door he collides forcibly with a man who is just entering. The stranger introduces himself as Simon Semple. Mr. Semple is very much disgusted when he learns that he will not be allowed to drink anything stronger than tea at The Hut, and that he will not be allowed to keep his auto-

MISS MABEL HINTON IS CHOSEN TRACK SPONSOR

The sponsor elections are still in vogue at Elon. The latest addition to the sponsor group is Miss Mabel Hinton, of Elon College, who has been elected as sponsor of the track team. Track at Elon has never been very prominent in the athletic world, but with the election of Miss Hinton as sponsor for the team it is expected that it will speed up a bit.

Miss Hinton is a former student of Elon and holds a responsible position with the Elon Bank and Trust Company of this place. The team has honored itself in her election.

C. C. HAWORTH SPEAKS TO STUDENT BODY HERE

Superintendent of Burlington Schools
Speaks at Chapel Service on Subject of "Democracy."

Supt. C. C. Haworth, of the Burlington City Schools, delivered a forceful address to the student body Thursday morning on "Democracy."

Superintendent Haworth is an interesting speaker and the students were much impressed by his remarks. In the beginning he spoke very commendably of the Elon students who had taught and are teaching in the Burlington schools. Good health, personality, adaptability, love for the people and a sense of humor are some of the essential qualities of a good teacher.

In speaking of Democracy he said, "We no longer experiment with it, but we deal with it." Democracy is a difficult theme to define, but as a definition he gave, "Democracy is a condition or spirit existing among a nation or people that makes possible the obedience of all the people to the will of the majority, which is directed through proper political channels."

It has been said by the scientists that the lower animals never think, man rarely. As a proof of this: We are Democrats because our parents are; we are Christians because our parents are, and there are many other things we do because our parents do it. In fact, how much of our own thinking do we do?

What is the ideal of Democracy? It is such that all people have an opportunity to express and develop their in-born capacities. If this be true, what about the child living in a rural district and having no advantages of school; a child born in a home where it does not have the proper nourishment; the child where its parents have to work ten hours a day and no one to care for it?

Do men get equal opportunities before the law? No. Money and friends have a great influence before the bar of justice. The one remedy for this is a higher level of intelligence. The great need of today is men who have been thoroughly schooled and drilled in this spirit we call Democracy.

College students should fix their own capitalization, locate their capital stock, analyze their capability, and leave the college with the feeling that they will be influential in bringing about the ideals of Democracy.

MANY SPEAK AT MASS MEETING IN COLLEGE CHAPEL SUNDAY NIGHT

Dr. Atkinson in the Principal Address Talks on "Finding God's Plan for Us."

"LIFE SERVICE" IS THEME

"Life Service" was the general theme of an interesting mass meeting held in the chapel on Sunday evening. The program was varied, being composed of musical numbers and discussions of different phases and organizations of religious life.

The chief number on the program was an address by Dr. J. O. Atkinson on the subject, "Finding God's Plan for Us." The program which preceded the address was as follows:

"Christian Endeavor"—R. H. Gunn.
"The Purpose of Y. M. C. A."—P. D. Rudd.
Piano solo: "Venetian Love Song"—Mary Addie White.
"The Work of Y. W. C. A."—Lucy Austin.
Vocal solo: "Only a Little Way"—Florence Moseley.
"The Student Volunteer Movement"—Victoria Adams.
"Christian Education as a Life Work"—W. T. Scott.

As an introduction to his address Dr. Atkinson read the 10th chapter of Mark, the story of a young man who asked God what he must do to be saved, and on hearing the answer, went away grieved. That young man had the same faults as many people of today. He did not seek to find God's plan for him, but he sought divine approval of his own plan.

Dr. Atkinson also discussed the opinion of Harry Emerson Fosdick that there is a plan for every human life dear to the heart of God. He said that God has a blueprint of every person's life before the person is born.

God created man next to the angels. He has a plan for the birds of the air,

Monday at 11:00 at the daily chapel period he will lecture on "John Knox, the Reformer," and daily thereafter at the same hour until Wednesday he will deliver a lecture. TRUSTEE OF COLLEGE PASSES AWAY SUNDAY

Rev. W. G. Clements, a prominent citizen of Wake county, died at his home in Morrisville Sunday at 12:15 p. m. Rev. Mr. Clements had been a member of the Board of Trustees of Elon for a number of years, and a great friend of the College. He was 83 years old, having been born December 1, 1840.

He fell six years ago and broke his hip, which had prevented him from walking since last September. He is survived by three sons and four daughters.

He served as County Superintendent of Schools in Wake county for 13 years, and organized the First Christian church in Raleigh, serving as its pastor for a number of years.

He was buried Tuesday afternoon at Morrisville. Many of the Elon faculty attended the funeral.

DR. J. O. ATKINSON GIVES TWO OF HIS LECTURES

Gives First One Sunday Morning at Church Service and Second Monday—Two Others to Follow.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Field Secretary of the Southern Christian Convention, began his annual series of lectures here Sunday morning at the regular church service.

Dr. Atkinson chose for his general theme "The Church and World Service," but his more specific subject was "The Church Equipped for World Service." He delivered his message in his usual compelling and fervent way and his power and vision could not but be transmitted to his hearers.

In the beginning of his sermon he stressed the fact that the church is better equipped for world service than is the state which emphasizes patriotism, or the home, the function of which is the rearing of citizens.

Since the war, more than ever before, the American people have been thinking in terms of the world, and have a different feeling toward the people of Africa, India, China and other foreign countries. We have come to realize that every race left in darkness is another dark spot on the map of the world of which our nation is a part. Thinking, Dr. Atkinson continued, is insufficient, and if we are to make the world safe for peace and freedom the fundamental power of love must manifest itself toward our brothers of heathen races. In this the church is qualified, because its might and majesty is love and its slogan has ever been the Christianization of the world.

Dr. Atkinson closed his sermon with an appeal that the church be given more consideration and less criticism and indifference.

Monday morning at the usual chapel hour Dr. Atkinson gave the second of his lectures, his subject being "The Church Challenging to World Service."

Among the interesting thoughts emphasized was that the greatest contributions which have been made to the world have been made by those who have accepted the challenge of the church. David Livingstone, William Carey, Woodrow Wilson and others were cited as great examples of this fact.

The biggest thoughts which have been given the world came from those who had access to Him Who declared Himself to be the Truth. Great universities and colleges all over the world such as Harvard, Yale and Oxford, were founded by men whose aims were to strengthen the church.

Dr. Atkinson closed by saying that

ELON DEFEATS LENOIR AND BOWS TO GUILFORD IN EXCELLENT GAMES

Game at Elon is Won by Score of 29-21 Over Lenoir—Guilford
Wins by Score of 40 to 32.

R. BROWN STARS IN GAMES

Lenoir College was defeated here last Wednesday night by the Elon quint 29 to 21, in a well played game which was close until the last half of the second period. Taking a spurt, with R. Brown caging three field goals from the middle of the court, the visitors were left behind.

In the early stages of the game the score was close and developed into a see-saw affair, first one team and then the other having a slight margin. At six different times the score was knotted. The first half ended 17-16 in favor of the Christians.

Lenoir took the lead in the second period but was soon overcome. "Bob" Brown was the highest individual scorer, making 13 of his team's 29 points. Boggs and Moose were the outstanding players for the Lutherans.

Guilford Game
The Guilford College basketball team by a rally in the last seven minutes came from behind to defeat the Elon quint at Guilford Saturday night, 40-32. It was anybody's game most of the time, with Elon leading all the way through the first half and the most of the second canto by a few points.

The game was played before the largest crowd that ever collected in the Guilford gymnasium. Elon had a large delegation of supporters, whose yells clashed with those of the Quakers and produced a deafening roar throughout the game. Both galleries were packed and the spaces between the sidelines and walls, were all jammed.

J. G. Frazier, with the entire Elon guard squadron surrounding him, led the scoring of both sides with eight field goals and two foul shots. Elon's men seemed uncaunty in their ability to find the basket for long shots. Their whole score came from shots near the middle of the floor. R. Browne, of Elon, succeeded in ringing up six field goals.

The Christians started scoring first by a foul shot and during the first half the count was tied three different times. But Elon managed to keep the edge during this section of the scrap, ending the first part 17-16 with Corboy's men holding the big end.

Immediately upon starting the second half, Guilford tied the score, only to fall back again and remain behind until the last few minutes of the fight. Rufus Smith, substituting for Thomas, Guilford guard, in the last part of the
