NOTE RECEIVED FROM MRS. WOODROW WILSON

Expresses Appreciation of Resolutions of Sympathy Which Were Sent From the College.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson acknowledged the sympathy of the college by a card which reads: "Mrs. Woodrow Wilson wishes to express her deep appreciation of your kind sympathy."

At the time of the late President's death a committee was appointed to draft resolutions of respect which were forwarded to Mrs. Wilson, and a copy of which appeared in the Maroon and Gold. The card of Mrs. Wilson comes in response to those resolutions and also the messages of sympathy from the officials of the college here.

A movement has been started to establish a Wilson Memorial at Davidson College. The committee has been appointed, and every college president is associated on the committee. It is planned to raise between twenty-five and one hundred thousand dollars for that purpose. Just what form the memorial will take has not been decided. Mr. Wilson was the son of a Presbyterian minister, and was at one time a student at Davidson.

Rev. S. M. Lynam spoke at the Graham Christian church last Sunday morning for the Christian Institute work.

MISS BESSIE FRIEDMAN

MISS BESSIE FRIEDMAN GIVES DEMONSTRATION

One of the Greatest Typists of World Gives Demonstration on Underwood Machine Here.

Miss Bessie Friedman, one of the champion typists of the world, and a representative of the school department of the Underwood Typewriter Company, gave a demonstration in the College Chapel here Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock.

A large number of the students interested in stenographic work were present for the demonstration. Those present manifested much interest in the work of Miss Friedman.

The first test which she took was a speed test in which she wrote 147 words in one minute. She then showed how to secure a rhythmic touch, and what slow speed when properly ordered might do making 48 words at a very slow, but rhythmic speed. She then demonstrated the art concentration, adding four lines of figures as she wrote and securing a correct result.

Miss Friedman declared that speed, accuracy, and concentration were necessary to good typewriting. She then pointed out that her speed was attained only after years of hard work. She also demonstrated on one of the college machines showing that all Underwoods were exactly alike.

Miss Friedman was accompanied by the head of the Underwood office at Richmond, and by Mr. Green of the Raleigh office. The college here uses Underwood machines.

CLIO SOCIETY PROGRAM PROVES INTERESTING

Program Tuesday Night Best in Long Time—New Officers Are Formally Installed.

The Clio Society in regular session Tuesday night, rendered the best program that has been heard in the hall for some time. Perhaps the most important business item was the installation of officers elected at the last meeting. One would think from the flowery introductions which the incoming officers were given that each was equalled by few and excelled by none in fitness for his position. This ceremony is always a most enjoyable part of the program.

In the initial number of the literary program, J. P. Davis gave a brief history of the Monroe Doctrine and explained its valuable contribution to international peace.

Speaking on current events, G. B. Crews told the society of the latest radio invention which will make it possible to send a message direct to any particular station without its being received by any other station.

The next number, "How France Paid up in 1871," was given by Mr. Willard Cardwell.

The debate for the evening proved to be the apex of the program:

The query was: Resolved, That the government of the United States should adopt a policy of requiring one year of military training of all the able bodied men before they reach the age of 21. The affirmative was ably upheld by S. H. Abell, C. Jackson, and A. L. Combs. They declared that this policy was a wise one because:

1. It would give the government an efficient standing army.
2. It would give the nation an unlimited reserve.
3. It would make our citizens better Americans.

The affirmative based their verbal shafts at the opposition on the fact that preparedness is the best guarantee of peace.

W. C. Elder, C. W. Dunn, and J. T. Banks, in supporting the negative, pointed out the following facts:

1. This policy would increase taxes.
2. That we are living in an intellectual age and not in an age of warfare.
3. That this policy would interfere with our educational system.

4. It is not important that we be so well prepared because of the fact that we are isolated from other nations by national barriers.

In showing the evil effects of military training, J. T. Banks declared that the present army slogan which says, "Give me your boy and I will send you back a man," would be better rendered, "Give me your boy and I will send you back a bun."

The judges declared the debate won by the affirmative; S. H. Abell, best on affirmative; J. T. Banks, best on negative; and J. T. Banks, best oratorically.
