

"The Lady of The Library" Presented by Psiphelians For Annual Entertainment

LARGE AUDIENCE

Enjoys Comedy Drama Given by Girls of Literary Society Saturday Evening.

MALE ROLES EXCELLENT

Fifteen Girls Take Part in Play—All Parts Well Played—Excellent Music Between Acts.

The annual entertainment of the Psiphelian Literary Society, which was given Saturday evening, April 19, in the Elon Graded School auditorium, was a splendid success. The main part of the program was a play, "The Lady of the Library," a comedy in three acts by Edith A. U. Panton. This was the first presented by the new Psiphelian Society.
Preceding the play Miss Madge Moffitt rendered some beautiful selections of popular music on the piano.

Miss Essie Cotten, in her address of welcome, took the opportunity to thank in behalf of the society all who had in any respect, through their kindness given assistance, especially those who had so patiently coached the play, for to these the success of the play would be largely due.

The play was very humorous. The scene was laid in the reading room of the public library in Rushmore, a new England village. The time is the present.

The characters of the play were:
Judge Oliver Whitcomb, the "Big Man" of Rushmore—Mary Hall Stryker; Burr Edgeworth, a high school student—Doris McLean; Rev. Harding, a young preacher—Bessie Martin; the postman—Alice Weber; Samuel Shadrack Sherman, the janitor—Arlene Lindsay; Mrs. Edgeworth, Burr's mother, president of the library board—Marjorie Burton; a high school teacher—Nannie Aldridge; Mrs.
Clara Nelson, mother of Ruth—Clara Tuck; Ruth, the postman's bride—Annie Lee Floyd; Katherine Carter, the village poetess—Margaret Rowland; Susanne, the movie actress—Rose Fulghum; Almira Hazlewood, the librarian's slim sister—Mabel Cheek; Rachel Hazlewood, the librarian's weighty sister—Louise Homewood; Pearl Reynolds, the assistant librarian—Fannie Glenn Elder; and Avis Hazlewood, the "Lady of the Library"— Della Cotten.

The play opens with Sam very busy at work in the library. He is not alone very long until Susanne came. She and him begin a conversation. They speak of the Misses Hazlewoods being old maids. Pearl and Burr who are in love with each other enter. Burr tells Pearl of Judge Whitcomb's and Miss Avis' love affairs. They have been in love for many years, but have been separated. Miss Crompton returns a book "Plutarch's Lives" and calls for another, a copy of "The Philosophy of Epictetus, but upon investigation Pearl fails to find the book.
However, Pearl says she will ask Miss Avis to look for the book. In the meantime Katherine asks for a rhyming dictionary. The Newly Weds exchange "greetings" in the library. Avis comes into the library, and she and Pearl begin talking of books. Miss Avis is a real lover of books. Mrs. Clara Nelson entering the conversation speaks of the old times when Avis and Judge Whitcomb were great friends which she confirms to be the same at this time.
Presently, Rev. Harding enters and as he

ELON BASEBALL TEAM LOSES THREE GAMES PLAYED DURING WEEK

Loses to N. C. State, Guilford and A. C. C.—Game With Guilford a Hard Fought Affair.

BARKER IS GOING STRONG

State College trounced the Christians here last Wednesday to the tune of 10 to 2, pounding the southpaw offerings of R. Brown for a total of 14 hits, six of which went for extra bases. The Christians were unable to connect to any advantage with the slants of Hill after the first inning.

Three hits in the first netted two runs for Elon, but after that the home team was able to get only three more hits and never threatened to score.

State began scoring from the first when the Christians became confused and by wild heaves let two men across the plate. The fifth was the big inning for State when three singles and two triples counted four men.

The pitching of Hill and the heavy hitting of the entire State team featured the contest.

Guilford Game

Guilford College defeated Elon College on Eastern Monday in the annual baseball game between the two institutions.
The count was 6 to 5.

Babe Smith, Quaker pitcher, had better support than Barker, Elon College moundsman, which helped in the victory.
The Quakers also had the edge in hitting.
They got off to a run lead in the first inning. Elon evened that in the second.

Guilford marked up three in the third frame, another in the fourth and another in the seventh. Elon counted one time in the fifth inning and made a great rally in the eighth, sending three men across, but failed to tie the score.

Hits for the two were the same, but Guilford's counted for most, the Christians wasting some, having nine men left on bases. Guilford played a shade the

EASTER CANTATA GIVEN BY ELON CHOIR SHOWS MUSIC FACULTY'S WORK

Receives High Praise Here and at Burlington—Burlington People Assist in Presentation.

GREENWOOD IS DIRECTOR

A beautiful Easter Cantata, "From Death to Life," by J. C. Bartlett, was rendered here Sunday night by the Elon choir and choirs of Burlington.

The cantata was the most beautiful of its kind ever presented at Elon. It took up the life of Christ at the time He was betrayed by Peter and followed on through the crucifixion and resurrection.
The music was very descriptive of the text and the audiences which heard it were able to follow the thought all the way through.

The men's section of the chorus was a special feature of the cantata. This was perhaps the largest number of men ever used in a cantata here. The chorus was assisted by nine soloists, whose work was of the very highest order. Besides the chorus and soloists there was an orchestra of ten pieces. The people who heard the cantata here say it was the finest thing in the way of a cantata ever presented at Elon.

The cantata was given at Burlington on Monday night at the First Christian church before an audience that thronged the balconies. The people of Burlington were unanimous in their praise of this musical number and prominent musicians of that city stated that it was without doubt the greatest thing in the way of a sacred cantata ever presented in Burlington.

Query Discussed Is, "Resolved— That Congress Should Enact Uniform Marriage Laws."

GOOD SPEECHES MADE

New Society Hall is Scene of Annual Contest Between Rival Classes; Much Enthusiasm is Shown.

The Freshman Class came out victorious over the Sophomores in their annual debate Friday evening in the new society hall.

The query for discussion was, "Resolved, That Congress should enact uniform marriage and divorce laws for all the States, Constitutionality waived." G. C. White acted as president and Miss Mary Addie White as secretary.

The judges for the occasion were: E.
S. W. Dameron, H. J. Rhodes and D. R.
Fonville, all of Burlington. The decision was two to one in favor of the affirmative. The Marshals for the occasion were: Lemuel Harrell, chief. Freshmen: Nonie Smith, Darden Jones; Sophomores: Fannie Glenn Elder, Jack Corbitt.

R. M. Hook spoke first for the Freshmen. He said the present system had failed. That the line between states were the same as a mark between a legitimate and illegitimate child. He pointed out that a man could be legally married in one state and be a bigamist in another.
He pointed out the great increase in the number of divorces.

Marie Nobles was second speaker of the affirmative and she proposed a plan
