Seattle is the most important distributing center for fresh and frozen fish products on the Pacific coast. As a fishing port it is exceeded in the United States only by Boston and Gloucester.

For the sum of $5,985 a real estate and building company of Culver City, California, advertised to sell bungalow homes, completely furnished, even to a "flivver" in the garage and five gallons of gasoline thrown in.

The whale is worth more money than any living creature. A single Greenland whale will have in its mouth about a ton of whalebone, which alone is worth from $7,500 to $10,000. From its blubber twenty-five tons of oil may be obtained. As whale oil brings something like $100 a ton, this represents another substantial sum. Another species, the sperm whale, not only provides enormous quantities of the finest oil, but may also prove to contain ambergris, which is worth considerably more than its weight in gold.

Denmark has established homes for Danish women students in France and in England.

Mrs. Angelette Walters, 90 years old, living near Steubenville, O., has never seen a street car or rode upon a railroad train.

THE FIRST INTERCOLLEGIATE FOOTBALL GAME

A match between Harvard and McGill (Montreal) played on May 13, 1874 was the first intercollegiate football game ever contested. Harvard won; but on the second day was held to a tie in a contest played according to Rugby rules.

The manner of playing was simple. A player could either run, throw or pass the ball when it came to him. "Many good struggles" are recorded in a contemporaneous account.

Eleven players participated in the first game; but as a matter of chance rather than design, four of the Canadian players having been detained in Montreal. For the first time in its history the Harvard team cast aside their usual costume consisting of the oldest clothes available and wore dark trousers, white undershirts and magnet scarfs wound about their heads. Their opponents appeared neatly uniformed in the English fashion.

The game consisted of three half-hour periods. Five hundred people witnessed the struggle.

The following clipped from the Raleigh Times, is reprinted as a challenge to Elon's poets. Come on, some of you inspired geniuses and send us your best.

Nov. 5th, I went to Raleigh that day and visited the Capitol grounds,
I saw many different kinds of leaves
they had turned to winter brown,
I saw spotted here and there seventeen different kinds of trees.
The whole Capitol square was spotted with natures brown colored leaves,
The several different monuments
they were all noble and grand,
They seemed to be upon good foundation
so that they might long stand,
I saw the cannon and the ball
whiteh seemed to be very round,
I saw the little bunny squirrels
they were playing here and their,
O, it was a beautiful day
no cloud at-all, the day was fair.

—G. P. Green, Youngsville.

Silk stockings are more hygienic than cotton hose, says a well-known doctor, but he condemns the too-light shoes worn by women and girls nowadays.

Women in Spain have had the right to attend the universities since early in the 13th century, but few availed themselves of the privilege until recently.

For 107 years the nuns of the Ursuline Convent in New Orleans have regularly commemorated the anniversary of General Jackson's victory over the British with a solemn high mass of thanksgiving for the salvation of the city from the invading army.

Mrs. Edward Lazansky, whose husband is a New York supreme court justice, believes that if more wives had interest in the business world, there would be fewer protests when business keeps husbands out of the home. Mrs. Lazansky knows whereof she speaks, since she is the proprietor of a successful interior decorating establishment in New York city.
