

in the North State loop. Alumni should watch this lad. He'll be up there soon riding on the crest of a wave.

Paul loves the game with an admirable sincerity, which, alone, should get him there. He has everything for the grandstand—dash, ability, alertness and a genuine competitive spirit. Incidentally, Paul's the same Roye you read about during basketball season. He's a whizz on the hardwood.

Old Webb (Bull) Newsome really should not be omitted in this review. He's a plenty good pitcher and not a bad outfielder. Coach Walker has been using him at both places during this season. Webb has pitched several fine games, the most notable of which was the Elon-Wake Forest tilt which he won . . . And, he, too, made this year's all-conference.

And what Elon Baseball review would be complete without mention of Mike Briggs, another "smooth" guy. Mike did his best work of the season during the last conference game here against Guilford. He, of course, won it as he did many others during the season. Mike wrenched his arm muscle during mid-season, thus causing him to be shelved for a few games—which, they say, kept him off the all-conference.

Others, of course, deserve as much credit as anybody, but space simply won't permit this time.

There's the famous Smith brothers, Howard, the vet, and Hoke, the rookie. Howard was given an honorable mention on the all-conference as shortstop. Then there's Bob Fowler, a dandy rookie, Hugo Minette, catcher, from Irvington, N. J., who made all state high school and doubtless would have "gone to town" if Elon hadn't had a great catcher.

Lawrence Tuck, who fractured his leg early in the season to be shelved, deserves the entire column, but he knows the other guys deserve some space. Physicians report that Tuck will be okay by summer. He'll be back next year, though, and should show rail birds more than ever. He and Howard Smith were Co-Captains of Elon's conference winning basketball outfit.

All the alumni will sympathize with Mrs. Roy Dixon (Irene Nece Golf) '23 whose husband has been ill for the past six months.

dary education and also to college students who wish to earn credits toward a degree or who wish to work off some of the requirements for graduation.

The living conditions at Elon College during the summer are ideal. Beautiful commodious college buildings, excellently equipped laboratories, health invigorating summer breezes, and pure running water in all buildings afford ideal living conditions for study, recreation, and self-improvement.

Many students in the surrounding counties can drive daily from home and save expenses while securing the best educational advantages.

For further information address the Director of the Summer Session for a bulletin giving announcement of courses and other details of interest.

Resume of Alumni Shows Advancement

(Continued from page one) the association, a nominating committee was appointed to prepare this year a ballot containing the names of two alumni or alumnae for each major office. This slate has been sent to the alumni through the third and this, the fourth, issue of the MAROON of the Eastern Virginia Association. M. L. Patrick heads the High Point unit; F. F. Myrick is president of the Guilford county association; W. D. Loy is president of the Mecklenburg chapter; and M. A. McLeod, Dr. Fred K. Garvey, and Holt Fleming are heads of the county chapters of Lee, Forsyth and Alamance counties.

Another definite step forward was the mid-year meeting of the Alumni association at Elon on
