

Non Things I Love

By Violet Hoffman

The sweet freshness of the campus in the early morning and great breaths of cool spring air. The happy scramble for elusive books and pen, spurred by the fear of being late to class. The sleepy droning of the professor's voice lecturing on the day's problem, the thought-quickening discussions, and the power that comes from lessons well learned. The peaceful meditation in chapel, the swelling tones of the organ, and the low words of benediction. The quiet atmosphere of study in the library, the occasional rustle of paper or dull thump of book. The hot, dirty sunshine at ball games, the tense excitement when bat cracks against flying ball, the thrill of perfect teamwork, and wild shouts of victory. The hungry rush into the dining hall for dinner while the sun sets in amber glory. The social hours of the evening when we linger with friends and discuss today's proud attainments and tomorrow's confident hopes. The dark stillness of the night when we whisper our thanks for the opportunities of life and the dreams of youth.

One Hundred and Six Sign Library Picture

Leave it to Mrs. Johnson to always get the bright ideas — but this is a good one. On April first, an agent from Roy Young Studio, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, took a group picture of the student body of the anniversary year. There were three hundred and six in the picture. One hundred and six have signed; there are two hundred more yet to give their signatures. Each person on the picture is numbered, and signs on the chart beside his number. We haven't decided why Dwight Gentry signed by Dean Messick's number — through a mistake we hope. Dean Messick and Dr. French were the only faculty members in the picture and Mrs. Johnson regrets that she didn't know the faculty was supposed to be in it.

WANT ADS

Wanted: Will rent, beg, buy, borrow, or steal a volume, any volume, on "How To Influence Professors". This is needed before the end of this week, as something very important takes place then. Please have all such copies in the M & G office.

Wanted: About 10,000 sheets of good stationary and envelope. This is just an approximate figure as a few thousand more or less will make little difference. However, we need them shortly, as school is about out, and cruel fate will separate us for the summer. Please bring them to Joe Blanks or Doris Fonville.

Situations Wanted: Scalp treatments guaranteed to remove all streaks, dark spots, and drive away that dull and tired look from your hair. Bring forth the luster, brilliance and shine in your coiffure with my sure-shot, never-fail, product. Guaranteed not to split ends or mar loveliness. Apply to Imogene Lackey, Ladies Salon.

Wanted: A good home for a petite blond for occupancy at the close of the school year. Have been excellently trained and house-broken by experienced hands. Very efficient in cornering and pursuit of rats, mice and other household nuisances. Write or phone Rosie Pearce, Publishing House.

Dear Editor:
In the last issue of the Maroon and Gold, I advertised for a home for three kittens and a cat. Since that time I have had five replies, from prospective homes, and a vote of thanks from the rats in East Dormitory. After careful consideration I finally decided to accept one of the better offers. I feel greatly relieved to know that
