

REID THIS!

The German Have A Word For K

There are times, surely, when you wonder just how much good all this textbook rignarole is going to do you after you leave Elon.

Some of it might just come in handy. You never can tell.

Back in 1944, I didn't see much significance in Frau Vera Hirsch's drilling me relentlessly in German vocabulary.

Die Mitternacht, die Schuller, die Universitat, etc. . . .

Badezimmer was one that threw me. It means bathroom.

I had another word for it. Frau Hirsch didn't think much of my word, either. I might add. She convinced me the formal word was more dignified. I thought mine was more descriptive, but I gave in. I accepted the dictionary version.

This was about the time Frau Hirsch tossed her annual German party for her students. I'd never been to one of these before. I knew there'd be home made cookies from choice Deutsche recipes. All we students had to do was to speak German. In asking for them, Frau Hirsch was no clunk. She was a wise woman. She knew the way to win a man was through his stomach. That we gentlemen students gave the German food vocabulary section of our textbooks a fit before the party is so foregone a conclusion that it's a waste of type to carry the thought any further.

Just to be certain about everything, though, I decided to get a running start. P. Reid (Charlotte, N. C., no kin, one of many room-mates) and I stuffed up on peanuts and Pepsis, an archtypal Carolina treat and worthy of a column sometime. This combination is not only enjoyable but filling. I have compensated for many a shoddy cafeteria lunch in this manner.

Well, on with the Deutsche Party. It turned out to be a rousing success. Frau Hirsch had sugar cookies stacked here, there and most everywhere else. For those who drank coffee, she had two and three story pots bubbling, steaming and hissing with some of the blackest stuff this side of the Danube. There were some more exotic German goodies that I wish I knew the name of to this day.

Now, the trouble was, I made a pig of myself. I learned more German nouns and ate more pffensnizzer or whatever you call it that day than I ever have since. It got so I couldn't hold any more information—or cookies, either. The Pepsis, you know.

So, I confidently offered one of my newer vocabulary additions. "Wo ist badezimmer?" I even used the accepted form of the word.

I do believe Frau Hirsch mistook my motive of asking directions for showing off. My privileges at the cookie jar were immediately kaput.

Still, as I say, you can hang on to things you learn at Elon. I mean if I'm ever in Bremørhaven and get caught short, I'll know what to ask for and I have a choice of two words.

WAA Active Throughout Fall Quarter

The Women's Athletic Association, which operates the intramural athletic program on the campus, has been unusually active during the Fall Quarter, according to a report from officers of the group.

Special activities this fall have included the sale of football programs at the varsity grid games, a special chapel program on the theme of "Patriotism," a hotly contested campus softball tournament for girls and the planned participation in the annual meeting of the North Carolina Athletic and Recreation Federation of College Women at Greensboro College next week.

There has been fine interest and participation in the sale of the football programs, and Mrs. Jeanne Griffin, who directs women's physical education, reports that results of the program sales have been much better than they were last year.

The chapel program, which was presented in upperclass chapel on Wednesday, October 29th, was under the direction of Mrs. Griffin, who introduced the student participants. Students who had parts in the program were Martha Langley, Kay Hughes, Louann Lambeth and Nancy Stephenson.

Softball Tourney
The softball tournament, which was directed by Marion Glasgow with the assistance of Frances Clark, drew four teams. The teams were Third Floor Virginia, captained by Helen Wright; First and Second Floors Virginia, captained by Frances Clark and Dixie Edwards; West Dorm, captained by Nancy Ellington; and Day Students, captained by Sara Summers.

The championship was won by First and Second Floors Virginia, which defeated West Dorm in the first round and then defeated Third Floor Virginia in the finals. Third Floor Virginia had defeated Day Students in the lower bracket first round.

Twelve girls were listed as outstanding players for the tournament, comprising a sort of all-tournament squad. They included Marion Glasgow, Frances Clark, Barbara Kennedy, Sara Summers, Carolyn Apple, Lulu Roberts, Martha Langley, Arlene DiNapoli, Penny Fuqua, Nancy Ellington, Jo McAdams and Katie Langley.

Greensboro Meeting
The WAA plans to have a delegation at the statewide meeting of the Athletic and Recreation Federation of College Women, which convenes at Greensboro College on Friday and Saturday, November 21st and 22nd.

Theme for the meeting will be "Competition for College Women," with Dr. Caroline Sinclair, chairman of the women's physical education department at Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va. There will also be group discussions along the competition line, with Elon to furnish the group leaders for the session at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, when the topic will be "Competitive Sports in North Carolina Colleges."

The general meeting gets underway at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and will feature a banquet session at 6:30 o'clock that evening. A recreation feature will be Swedish Folk Dancing. All women students interested in attending the sessions at Greensboro should contact Mrs. Griffin at the gymnasium.

ONE OF LAST ACTION VIEWS INSIDE OLD ELON GYM

One of the last action photos taken inside the old North Gymnasium is shown above, a shot taken while Delta Upsilon Kappa and Beta Omicron Beta were battling in an intramural volleyball game during the season of 1949-50. The gym was last used for varsity basketball in December, 1949, with the present Alumni Memorial Gymnasium being opened for use in January, 1950. The picture above shows how close the walls and the spectators were crowded along the edge of the playing court. Students will note with interest that one of the players for Delta Upsilon Kappa in the left foreground was Jeanne Pittman, who is now Mrs. Jeanne Griffin, director of girls' physical education and recreation on the present Elon faculty.

Elon College Delegation At World Trade Meeting

Elon College was one of 32 colleges and universities represented at a recent two-day Conference on World Trade, which was held at Old Point Comfort, Va. Prof. William T. Reece, chairman of Elon's Department of Business Administration was the faculty representative. He was accompanied by Douglas Hartell, of Burlington, and Edmund Thompson, of Graham, both of whom are Business Administration seniors this year.

The first day of the conference was highlighted by a Luncheon Address by A. M. Sullivan, editor of "Dun's Review and Modern Industry." Later in the afternoon the delegates were taken on a harbor cruise of the Hampton Roads Waterways aboard the U. S. Coast Guard Cutter "Cherokee." The opening day ended with a buffet and an evening of relaxation and fellowship, featuring the Hampton Crusaders, a group of outstanding Negro vocalists.

The second day began with a breakfast meeting of all faculty representatives which was followed by a symposium on "The Hot and Cold War in International Trade". Guest panelists for this phase of the meeting were: Dr. H. E. Luedicke, editor, "Journal of Commerce, New York City; Forrest D. Murden, Jr., public relations manager for Ford International Division; T. Graydon Upton, vice president of Philadelphia National Bank; and Leon M. Herman, analyst on Soviet economics for the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress.

After a luncheon address by Dr. Clarence R. Decker, vice president of Fairleigh Dickinson University, Teaneck, N. J., and educational consultant for Creole Petroleum Corporation, a student forum was held for questions and answers between the visiting students and the trade experts.

The Tenth Annual Trade Conference closed with a banquet held in the Virginia Room of the Hotel Chamberlin, Old Point Comfort. The banquet address by Paul Gruda Koht, ambassador from Norway to the United States, was a very interesting presentation of the trade relationship between shipping companies of the United States and foreign countries.

NEWBERRY GAME

a wedge through center. An attempt to pass for the extra points failed, but Elon went out for rest time with a 13-0 lead.

Again in the third quarter, the Christians moved after Charlie Maidon grabbed an Indian fumble at the Elon twenty-seven, and it was three first downs in succession to the goal line. A pair of Maidon heaves to Tony Carcatera and a bull-like 41-yard run by Joe DeGais placed the ball on the three, from where DeGais plunged for his second TD of the night. It was Maidon to Harry Faust for the two-pointer that gave Elon a 21-0 edge.

That was the game as far as Elon was concerned, although the Indians took advantage of two consecutive 15-yard penalties against Elon and added a 25-yard pass from Vernon Prather to John Hudgens to set up the Newberry touchdown. The TD came on a one-yard plunge by Prather on a keeper, but try-for-point failed as the final score was written at 21-6.

Once more the victory came on a mighty team effort for Elon, with five backs sharing the ball-carrying honors and with a rugged Christian line halting the speedy Indian backs effectively. Both Maidon and DeGais had more than 100 yards total offense, and Tony Carcatera caught six passes to top the Elon attack.

TAG FOOTBALL

Gary Henson, George Allen and Pete Jones all passed for two touchdowns apiece in pacing East Dorm to its 56-12 win over the Road Runners, and Henson added to his laurels by taking two passes for touchdowns himself, Arnold Brownstein and Ted Spivey led the attack for the Road Runners.

In addition to the Playboys and East Dorm in the top spots, the league standings show Tidewater third with a 5-3 mark, the Bowers Boys fourth with 2-5, and the Road Runners and Vikings tied for fifth, each with 1-7 records in wins and losses.

LENOIR RHYNE

The Bears copped another win in 1939 by a 10-0 margin, but Elon closed out the pre-War years by winning 8-0 in 1940 and 14-0 in 1941. There was a break during World War II, and since the renewal the Bears have won ten of twelve games.

The Lenoir Rhyne wins in recent years were by 14-13 in 1946, 13-0 in 1947, 13-6 in 1948, 19-7 in 1949, 42-14 in 1950, 48-14 in 1951, 59-7 in 1952, 27-13 in 1953, 28-0 in 1955 and 27-13 in 1956. The Elon gridders broke through with a 14-6 victory in 1954 and then rolled over the Bears 20 to 7 last year.

Shoffner Heads Home Ec Group

Elizabeth Shoffner is the new president of the Home Economics Club, which has just completed its organization for the 1958-59 college year. The club, which is devoted to the interests of the Home Economics Department and of the home economics majors, operates under the direction of Mrs. Mary Butler as faculty sponsor.

In addition to the president, other officers of the club are Helen Garner, vice president and program chairman; Nancy Kidd, secretary; Helen Brown Smith, treasurer; and Jerolene Nall, reporter. The members of the program committee in addition to the chairman are Bessie Loretta Hilliard and Eula Mae Norton. Nancy Smith is to gather and edit material for the club scrapbook.

threat and then rebounded for their score. Two Bobby Cooper passes for 21 and 36 to end Jack Spady put the Cats down close, and Jamie Wilkes got first-and-ten on the Elon seven, but the Christian line rose up and stopped the drive inside the one. Joe DeGais punted to the Cat thirty-five, and on the next play Cooper hit Tom Broadwater with a pass for a score. A pass for extra points failed, and Elon led 7 to 6.

At that point Elon opened up with a display of power to count her second TD, taking the ensuing kick-off on the Christian sixteen and going all the way in sixteen plays. W. B. Simpson returned the kick 16 yards. The Christian backs alternated on ground gains with three passes figuring in the scoring drive. Charlie Maidon tossed to Harry Faust for ten and the touchdown. Faust then hit Luke Malloy in the end zone for a two-pointer that ended the scoring.

Maidon intercepted a long Catamount pass on the Elon seven as the half ended, and later interceptions by Tony Carcatera and Bob McLean halted other Western Carolina threats in the second half. McLean's interception came on the Elon seven, and a brilliant defensive play by Charlie Maidon broke up another threat when he slapped down a Bobby Cooper pass on the ten.

SCA Outlines Programs For Entire College Year

The Student Christian Association, which has already sponsored a number of events for Elon students this fall, has mapped a full schedule of regular Sunday programs for the entire year, and interest in the student religious group appears at a high level.

Under the leadership of President Douglas Albert and with Prof. John Graves as faculty sponsor, the SCA has already held a weiner roast along with its regular schedule of fall meetings, and the various student commissions are rotating in conducting programs.

The Campus Affairs Commission and the Religious Life Commission directed the programs for the two final Sundays in October, and the first three Sundays in November found the meetings devoted to Bible study.

The two programs for the period between Thanksgiving holidays and Christmas vacation are of special interest. On Sunday night, December 7th, the SCA members will hear the Elon Choir in its annual rendition of Handel's "Messiah," and on Sunday night, December 16th the World Order Commission will present a tape-recorded message from Louis Wilkins who was SCA president during the 1957-58 college year. He is now on a missionary assignment in Turkey with the American Board of Missions.

The programs for the months following Christmas holidays include a book review on the Near East for January 11th, a movie on the Near East for January 18th, an explanation of Symbolism by the Religious Life Commission on January 25th, a Campus Affair program for February 1st, a visit to a Jewish synagogue on February 8th, a visit to the Catholic church on February 15th, and a program by K. S. Klem on Alaska for February 22nd.

Later programs are Campus Affair for March 8th, tape recorded program from Georgia's Community of Love March 15th, a discussion of legal aspects of segregation on March 22nd, Campus Affairs on April 12th, a movie on race relations April 19th, program on Sabbath observance April 26th, a science and religion debate on May 3rd, Campus Affairs on May 10th; ecumenicity's latest movement on May 17th, and Campus Affairs on May 24th.

Johnson Directs Annual 'Messiah'

Prof. Pat Johnson will direct the Elon Choir in its twenty-sixth annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah," which is scheduled for Whitley Auditorium at 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, December 7th.

Plans are already underway for the presentation, which ranks each year as one of the outstanding features of the pre-Christmas season in this area of North Carolina, and this 1958 performance promises to attract as much interest as always.

The annual rendition of Handel's great oratorio has many times filled Whitley Auditorium to overflowing, and hundreds of people come back year after year to thrill to the brilliant arias and recitatives.

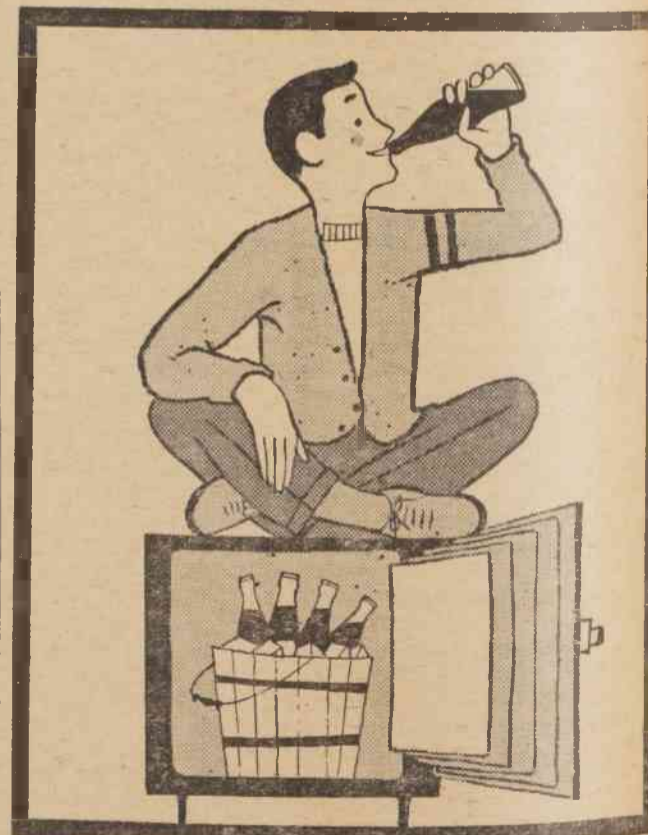

The Elon Choir began its annual series of Yule season "Messiah" programs in 1933, and since that time many outstanding American artists have appeared as guest soloists with the student group. The names of the guest soloists for this year's program will be announced in the near future.

Elizabeth, N. J.; Marty Collins, of Brattleboro, Vt.; Marsh Oakley, of Spray; Martin Oliver, of Fuquay Springs; Bill Daggelt, of Mount Kisco, N. Y.; Ralph Price, of Alexandria, Va.; Andy Johnson, of Charlotte; Bill Troutman, of Lewisburg, Pa.; Austin Cook, of Denton; and John Parietta, of Nyack, N. Y.

Most of the new boys are seeking guard positions, so it appears that the great need on this upcoming Christian cage squad will be for big men at the inside positions. New candidates thus far for the important inside posts are Marsh Oakley, who played for Tri-City High at Leaksville; and Andy Johnson, up from Harding High of Charlotte.

tor room and which also served as an indoor running track with fifteen laps to the mile. A second balcony circled the building at the fourth floor level, and from each balcony opened dormitory rooms for men students.

It was in the North Gymnasium that Elon's 1914 basketball team clinched the state championship in competition with all colleges in North Carolina, and there were many moments of glory for Elon teams in later years, including the North State Conference championship of 1947.

The gymnasium continued as the home of Elon basketball teams until the autumn of 1949, but it was discarded as the scene of sports events when the present Alumni Memorial Gymnasium was first put into use in January, 1950. The building, however, continued in use as a men's dormitory until the opening of Smith Hall, second of Elon's two new and modern men's dormitories, last January.
