

Eighteen Colleges Represented At Women's Sports Meet

Ballet Russe Performance Given Praise

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, world-famous dance troupe which appeared in Williams High School Auditorium on November 2nd under sponsorship of the Elon College Student Government, drew a disappointing crowd and failed to prove a profitable venture for the student sponsors, but the performance itself was hailed one of the most beautiful ever seen in this area.

In writing of the Ballet Russe performance, a critic praised the ballet company to the fullest, saying that a well-trained dance corps of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo was more than suitable framing for the stars and soloists of the company in the program in Williams Auditorium.

The first presentation of the evening was the classic favorite, "Swan Lake." Without benefit of scenery, Irina Borowska and Kenneth Gillespie captured the imagination of the audience and transferred it to the magical land of Petipa. Miss Borowska, who has just recovered from a most serious illness, gave what must have been one of the most brilliant performances of her career. Her extensions and port de bras are wonderful to behold, and her tragic characterization of Odette, the Swan Queen, easily places her in the rank of a Prima Ballerina. Mr. Gillespie is more than an adequate partner, and his variation of quick beats and controlled tours brought much applause.

As if to complete the ballet, "Swan Lake," the second ballet on the program, was the magnificent Pas de Deux—known to the ballet world as the "Pas de Deux Classique." (The Black Swan).

Miss Nina Novak, long regarded as a ballerina of the first rank, more than won the approval of the audience. Her balance has always created fantastic awe in the eyes of her spectators, and this night was no exception. Her 32 fouettes climaxed an exciting evening of classical ballet at its best. Allan Howard, Miss Novak's partner, has made tremendous technical gains since his last appearance in North Carolina. One can easily see why he is now the ballet master of the company.

"Slovonic Dances" comprised the third portion of the evening. Choreography was by Edmund Novak, brother of Nina Novak. Eleanor D'Antuono and Irina Kovalska are the essence of perfection in the field of character ballet. "Sabre Dance," "The Girl and the Bird" and "A Suite of Russian" were warmly applauded by the 700 people in attendance. The music of this character ballet was based on folk songs of the Ukraine and brought back fond memories of the Moiseyev Ballet. The famous Russian keogha, (tours from one knee to the other), brought enthusiastic applause from the ballet audience.

George Zoritch was the star of the evening. His interpretation of the Baron in "Gaité Parisienne" was a joy to behold. What can one say about this internationally recognized danseur noble that hasn't already been said by critics the world over! His elegant tours, his magnificent stage presence, and his tender approach to the art of partnering placed him in the purest classical tradition.

Titilana Granzteva's interpretation of the Glove Seller in "Gaité Parisienne" was most unique for this young dancer who was performing the role for the third time. She is a dancer who will bear watching for the dramatic flair she gave this role.

SCENES AS ELON ENTERTAINED STATE PHYSICAL EDUCATION GROUP

Outstanding figures in the women's physical education program at various North Carolina colleges are pictured above in scene snapped at the annual statewide meeting of the Athletic and Recreation Federation of College Women, which was held on the Elon campus on Friday, November 6th. Shown at the left are the three panelists who led the discussion at the general session in Mooney Chapel Theatre in the afternoon. Left to right, they are Miss Dorothy Casey, of Wake Forest; Walter Rabb, of the University of North Carolina; and Miss Margaret Greene, of Women's College. Pictured at the right are those with seats at the speaker's table at the annual banquet meeting in McEwen Dining Hall at the night session. Left to right, those pictured are Miss Margaret Greene, of Woman's College; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Griffon, of Elon; Dr. J. L. Pierce, of the State Department of Public Instruction; Miss Helen Stuart, also of the State Department, who was the banquet speaker; Dr. J. E. Danieley, of Elon; Marion Glasgow, Elon student who presided over the meeting; Prof. John Graves, Elon chaplain; Mrs. Margaret Hester, Elon's dean of women; Prof. and Mrs. Jack Sanford, of Elon; and Miss Dorothy Casey of Wake Forest.

Dr. Cunningham Named To Group

Dr. H. H. Cunningham, Elon College dean, has just been appointed to the executive committee of the Carolina Charter Tercentenary Commission, which will formulate plans for the celebration of the three-hundredth anniversary of the granting of the Carolina Charter of 1663.

He was appointed some weeks ago as a member of the commission itself, but his placement on the executive committee of the group comes as an added honor. He requested this week that people of the Alamance County area offer suggestions for the tercentenary observance.

Akers Serves As Consultant For Library

Dr. Susan Grey Akers, former dean of the School of Library Science at the University of North Carolina, is serving as a visiting consultant for the Elon College Library during the 1959-60 college year and will make recommendations for the improvement of the Elon library in both facilities and usage.

This was announced by Dr. J. E. Danieley, Elon's president, who stated that the study by Dr. Akers is part of the Elon self-study program, which is now in progress in all departments of the institution.

Dr. Akers, who is recognized as one of the outstanding library authorities in the United States, recently retired as head of library instruction at the University of North Carolina. She has been active in the library field in various institutions for a full half century. She received her A. B. degree from the University of Kentucky in 1909 and later attended the Library School of the University of Wisconsin, where she received a certificate in library science in 1913. She received the Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago in 1932.

Her active work in libraries included periods as librarian for the department of hygiene at Wellesley College; as director of cataloging at the University of North Dakota; and as professor of library science at the University of Wisconsin. She joined the University of North Carolina faculty in 1931 and served as assistant director, director and later dean of the School of Library Science there until 1954.

She was also a consultant for the U.S. Army in Japan and was a lecturer at the University of Tehran in Iran. She is also the author of a book on library cataloging.

Elon Girl Is Honored By Airborne Division

Faye Horton, Elon College sophomore from Fayetteville, who has recently been chosen "Miss Rock" and official sponsor for the United States Army's crack 82nd Airborne Division, will make her first appearance in that capacity at ceremonies to be held at Fort Bragg, which is home base of the famous army unit, Saturday of this week.

Miss Horton, who represented her home town as "Miss Fayetteville" in the annual "Miss North Carolina" contest last summer, was chosen by the airborne fighting group from a group of 638 entries. The judging was done from pictures submitted of the entering beauties from all parts of the United States.

It is a national honor for the Elon sophomore, and she will appear as "Miss 82nd Airborne" in many observances at army posts all over the United States. Already, in addition to this week's appearance at the home base at Fort Bragg, she has visits scheduled to Fort Lee in Virginia, to Fort Benning in Georgia and to a base in Ohio.

The shorter title of "Miss Rock" is in tribute to the "Rock" designation won by the 82nd for its hard fighting during World War II.

Miss Horton, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Horton, of Fayetteville, attended Peace Junior College in Raleigh last year for her freshman work, but she transferred to Elon as a member of the sophomore class this year.

She is an English major and writes poetry and has participated in dramatics in high school and community dramas at Fayetteville and also at Peace, where she was on the Dean's List and was a member of Sigma Phi Kappa social sorority. Her other hobbies include dancing, swimming and water skiing. Here at Elon she holds a position as a part-time student secretary in the office of Prof. Alfred Hassell, college registrar.

Elon Women Play Host For Group

Eighteen North Carolina colleges were represented at the annual meeting of the Athletic and Recreation Federation of College Women, which was held on the Elon College campus Friday afternoon and night, November 6th.

More than 150 women students and faculty advisors from both senior and junior colleges throughout North Carolina were in attendance at the afternoon meeting, and 112 persons were in attendance at the banquet session held that night.

The general session held in Mooney Chapel Theatre at 1:30 o'clock that afternoon featured a panel discussion on the subject of "The Possibilities of a Mixed Recreational Program." Those participating on the panel were Walter Rabb, of the University of North Carolina; Miss Margaret Greene, of Woman's College; and Miss Dorothy Casey, of Wake Forest.

Leaders of group discussions which followed the panel were Miss Annette Hall, of Mars Hill College on the subject of "What Should We Include in the Women's Recreational Program?" Miss Lorna Dillworth, of Duke University, on the subject of "How Can We Finance the Women's Recreational Program?" and Miss Ann Woodward, of Catawba College, on the subject of "How Can We Increase Participation in the Women's Recreational Program?"

Miss Helen Stuart, advisor for Health and Physical Education in the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, was speaker at the Friday night banquet at McEwen Dining Hall, speaking on the topic of "Girls Need To Be Fit Too." Miss Stuart was accompanied to the meeting by Dr. J. L. Pierce, a former chairman of Elon's physical education program, who is now with the state Department of Public Instruction at Raleigh.

Thirteen of the state's senior colleges with delegations at the meeting were the University of North Carolina, Woman's College, Greensboro College, Duke University, Wake Forest, Guilford, East Carolina, Meredith, Salem, Catawba, Queens, Atlantic Christian and Elon. Junior colleges with delegations present were Mars Hill, Wingate, Montreat, Peace and Sacred Heart of Belmont.

The election of officers for the coming year, chosen by colleges, included Wake Forest, president; Greensboro College, secretary and treasurer; Sacred Heart, membership chairman; and East Carolina, sports day chairman. Miss Dorothy Casey, of Wake Forest, was named statewide faculty advisor for the coming year.

Yesterday's meeting at Elon was conducted under the direction of Mrs. Jeanne Griffin, director of women's physical education on the Elon campus. Officers of the Elon Women's Athletic Association, who worked with Mrs. Griffin in planning the meeting, included Marion Glasgow, of Franklinville, president; Lulu Roberts, of Lawrenceville, Va., vice-president; Penny Fuqua, of Elon College, secretary; and Nancy Ellington, of Henderson, treasurer; and Katie Langley, of Staley, reporter.

In addition to the officers, a number of student committees worked on advance plans for entertaining the visiting delegates from the colleges throughout the state. Committees, with chairmen first, were as follows:

Registration Committee: Lulu Roberts, Frances Clark, Emma Allen, Lacala Patterson, Betty Raper.

Moore Member Of Committees

Prof. Fletcher Moore, chairman of the Elon College music department, helped plan two major North Carolina music activities while attending two statewide committee meetings in Charlotte and Greensboro on Saturday, October 31st, and Sunday, November 1st.

At Charlotte he was on the planning committee for the annual North Carolina Junior Music Festivals, and at Greensboro he helped map plans for the annual state convention of Music Teachers' National Association, to be held at Chapel Hill in January.

Campus Mail Delivery Will Start Soon

Mail service on the Elon campus will become a reality within the next few days, according to an announcement from Dr. Robert Benson, dean of students, who states that all students in daytime classes may begin signing up for mail boxes in his office next Monday, November 16th.

Installation of the student mail boxes in the southern end of the Student Union was completed some days ago, with a total of 640 boxes with numbers ranging from 1,001 to 1,640, and students will be assigned to the boxes in pairs.

In requesting the students to begin signing for boxes next Monday, Dr. Benson pointed out that both campus students and commuting students may sign up for a box.

There will be no charge for the use of the boxes for the remainder of the Fall Semester, but box rent will be collected at the beginning of the Spring Semester at the rate of 65 cents per student for the four and one-half month term. The full rental for each box, figured on two students to the box, will be $1.30 per semester or $2.60 for the entire year.

The schedule of mail delivery calls for mail to be brought over from the main post office at 7:30 o'clock in the morning and at 1:30 and 5:30 o'clock each afternoon. Outgoing mail, if it already has stamps, may be deposited in the Student Union and will be taken to the main post office for dispatch at 7 o'clock in the morning and at 12:30 and 5 o'clock each afternoon.

It is pointed out that no stamps will be for sale in the campus post office. Notices of packages or other mail to be picked up at the main post office will be placed in the student boxes, and such mail will have to be called for and signed for at the main post office.
