

Autumn Term Examination Schedule Set

Six full days will be devoted to the examination schedule for the Fall Semester, according to an announcement made within the past week from the office of Dr. H. H. Cunningham, dean of the college.

In making public the schedule for the examinations, it was pointed out that the time of the various exams may not be changed from its scheduled date.

The complete examination schedule follows:

THURSDAY, JANUARY 19 — All 11:30 (TTS) classes will be given from 9 until 12 o'clock that morning, following by all hygiene and physical education activity tests from 2 until 5 o'clock that afternoon.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 20 — All 11:30 (MWF) classes will be given from 9 until 12 o'clock that morning, followed by all English 10 and English 11 classes from 2 until 5 o'clock that afternoon.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 21 — All 10:30 (TTS) classes will be given from 9 until 12 o'clock that morning, with no exams scheduled for that afternoon.

MONDAY, JANUARY 23 — All 10:30 (MWF) classes will be given from 9 until 12 o'clock that morning, with all French 11, Spanish 11 and German 11 classes given from 2 until 5 o'clock that afternoon.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 24 — All 9 o'clock (MWF) classes will be given from 9 until 12 o'clock that morning, with all 9 o'clock (TTS) classes given from 2 until 5 o'clock that afternoon.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25 — All 8 o'clock (MWF) classes will be given from 9 until 12 o'clock that morning, followed by all 8 o'clock (TTS) classes from 2 until 5 o'clock that afternoon.

Home To Vote

Ed Boelte, Elon student body president, believes in practicing what he preaches. The Elon student leader set up the pre-election program to create interest in the national election, urging all eligible persons to vote. Then he drove home to Vernon Hill, Va., on Monday and was the first person at the polls on Tuesday, November 8th, voting in time to return to Elon for his 8 o'clock class.

Kernodle Named Leader For Elon Loyalty Drive

Dr. Charles E. Kernodle, Jr., of Burlington, a graduate of Elon with the Class of 1938, has just been named chairman of the Elon College Loyalty Fund for the 1960-61 college year, according to an announcement made this week from the office of Prof. Robert Baxter, director of development for the college.

The Loyalty Fund program, which is a new undertaking for the college, is designed as an appeal to the loyal alumni and friends of the college for contributions to a fund, which will be applied to the financial needs of the institution. The appeal replaces the former system of collecting annual dues from the college's alumni.

Specific application of the Loyalty Fund contributions will be to provide an increase in faculty salaries and also to provide additional scholarship aid for worthy students. Both applications represent long-felt needs, and Dr. Kernodle has stated that he hopes to secure gifts from an increased number of donors this year.

Students Seek Campus Posts In Special Vote

Lee Mullis, a junior from Myrtle Beach, S. C., was named last week to fill a vacancy on the Student Council, being chosen in a special campus election in which a total of four offices were at stake.

At the same time Fred Shull, junior from Burlington, was chosen as one of five junior class members of the Student Senate, but lack of a majority made it necessary to hold a second balloting on Tuesday of this week to select a women's member of the Student Council and a sophomore member in the Student Senate.

The balloting yesterday saw Laura Marie Barnes, of Elon College, Arlene Side, of Franklin Square, N. Y., and Denyse Theodore, of North Belmor, N. Y., all running for the girls' post on the Student Council; while Clyde Ordson, of Burlington, and Nancy Rountree, of Sunbury, as candidates for the sophomore Senate seat. Results of yesterday's vote were not known at paper deadline time.

Elon Choir Will Appear In Twenty-Eighth Annual Presentation Of Hadel's 'Messiah' December 9th

The Elon College Choir will present its twenty-eighth annual rendition of Handel's immortal oratorio, "The Messiah," in Whitley Auditorium at 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, December 4th, according to plans just made public by the college music department this week.

The Handel masterpiece, which has thrilled Christmas season audiences in both Europe and America for more than 200 years, has been presented by the Elon Choir each Yule season for more than a quarter of a century, and it has become one of the real highlights of the musical calendar in this area each year.

The Elon student singers presented "The Messiah" for the first time in 1933, and the sequence of annual presentations has been unbroken since that time. Each year the oratorio attracts one of the largest crowds of the year on the campus, and hundreds of music lovers in this section of North Carolina return to bear again its thrilling arias and choruses.

The Handel production will be directed this year by Prof. Charles Lynam, who first began taking part in the annual Elon program as a student singer during his undergraduate days. Since graduation he has taken part several times, and last year he sang the mighty bass solos. He ascends the director's podium for the first time this year.

for many years, will be Prof. Fletcher Moore, who will play the accompaniment for the student singing group and soloists. Music lovers have to look forward each year to his organ interpretations of the great Handel musical composition.

In making public the plans for the 1960 presentation, Prof. Lynam stated that a number of Elon alumni, former members of the choir, have been invited to return and join once more in singing the great choruses they sang in their student days.

The four soloists who will appear as guest artists with the Elon Choir this year include three new stars, with three of the four soloists coming from Greensboro and the fourth from Reidsville.

Peggy Sue Russell, of Greensboro, will appear as soprano soloist; while Frances Wilson, of Reidsville, will sing the contralto numbers. Neil Jennings, of Greensboro, will appear as bass soloist; and Paul Berry, also of Greensboro, will sing the tenor parts. Miss Russell, Miss Wilson and Jennings are the new guests, but Berry sang the tenor role last winter.

The great oratorio, which is based upon the story of Christ, tells of the prophecies and anticipations of the coming of the Messiah, following with the story of his sufferings and death and finally his triumphant resurrection.

Paper Is Early Due To Holiday

The Maroon and Gold is making its appearance a bit earlier than usual with this Thanksgiving issue, it being slated for delivery on Wednesday morning of the holiday week rather than on its usual Friday morning schedule. The speed-up in publication for this fifth issue of the fall term was made necessary by the fact that many of the Elon students and faculty will be away from the campus the latter part of this week.

It is also announced at this time that there will be only one issue of the Maroon and Gold appearing during the period between Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays, since there will be only three weeks of classwork between the two vacation periods. Such being the case, there would not be time for publication of two papers, and the Christmas issue will be published during the final week before the Yule vacation.

Players To Give One-Act Plays December 8-9-10

The Elon Players will present two one-act plays, one entitled "A Cool Yule" and the other "The Christmas Stranger," in Mooney Chapel Theatre for three nights on December 8th, 9th and 10th. Curtain time each night will be at 8:30 o'clock. Sam White, dramatics major from Pittsboro, will direct both plays.

The cast for "A Cool Yule" includes Shirley Foskett, Carol Tregessor, Jane Harper, Linda Lester, Nancy Young, Cary Keogh, Judy Elliott and Rosalee Radcliffe. The play itself is a rib-tickler about a girl who decided that horse-and-buggy thinking had no part in a jet age.

The cast for "The Christmas Stranger" includes Sandra Russell, Edie Kopp, Connie Blake and Richard Milteer. It is a story of a mother and two daughters who are upset by tragedies on Christmas Eve until a mysterious stranger visits their home.

While many students never give much thought to the college annual until the year's end, there is a certain group of students who are diligently at work on the book and in some cases have been working on it since this past summer.

For those who are new at Elon the yearbook is called the Phi Psi Cli. This title probably sounds unusual, to say the least, to the majority, but it is derived from the first three letters of three literary societies which were active on the Elon campus many years ago.

It takes quite a few workers to produce an annual such as the Phi Psi Cli. The book is divided into several sections, each section handled by student editors. Teddy Standley is the editor-in-chief of the Phi Psi Cli and is the student who does most of the work. Ruth Lemmons is her chief aide, serving as assistant editor.

The editors handling class pictures and class organizations are Martha Brittle, Becky Hobbs, Donna Kampe, and Dorothy Hawks. The feature editors, working on May Day, Homecoming, and other such events are Judy Watson and Betsy Carden. Sara Summers, David Marshburn, and Bob Overton are sports editors, handling both varsity and intramural athletics. Sue Fisk and Jimmy Rosser serve as copy editors.

The invaluable typist positions are adequately filled by the Briggs twins, Charlesana and Mary Glenn, Glenda Baumgarner, Bill Cordes, and Don Terrell are the organizations editors. The job of this group is arranging pictures for fraternities, sororities, and the majority of campus organizations. Danny Gee handles one of the most important posts on the staff, business manager. He contacts local merchants and sells ads, which reduce the cost of the annual to the students.

This year, one of the valuable additions to the staff is not a student at Elon. Jack Lambeth, very competent photographer, is currently a student at Williams High School in Burlington. Most of the pictures which appear in this paper and in the annual are the result of his work.

One big change to be noticed in the 1961 Phi Psi Cli will be the presentation of a theme, which
