

Quaker Five Downs Elon By 80 To 75

The Guilford Quakers used points from the charity stripe to come from behind and defeat the Fighting Christians cagers 80 to 75 in Greensboro Coliseum in the final game of the regular season on Friday night, February 24th, but Elon played the reg-champs tooth-and-toenail right down to the wire.

The Christians played fine basketball and they jumped to a 16-7 lead over the Conference leaders early in the first half, but the Quakers came back to a 19-18 lead and set up a bucket-for-bucket scrap the rest of the way. The Elon cagers were ahead 40 to 36 at half-time and were ahead 69-68 with less than four minutes to go.

Big Bob Kauffman, 6-8 and 240 pounds, was a massive weapon for the Quakers as he rocked in 32 points and pulled down 21 rebounds. He also turned in a fine defensive job in holding Elon's Henry Goedeck to seven points, only the second time in 49 games that Goedeck has been in single figures.

Tom McGee had 23 and Tommy Davis 21 points, most of them at long range, to lead the Elon attack, but lanky Bill Bowes had another fine night as he got 15 points and 13 rebounds for the Christians. It was the fourteenth straight game in which Bowes has hit double figures.

Beale will also be tied up with winter football drills until the first of April, along with catcher Frankie Mensch and infielder Jim Ferebee, who are also drilling at this time with the Christian grid squad.

Coach Drake, who returns as coach to the Elon campus scenes where he won glory as a varsity pitcher some years ago, sums up his 1967 prospects with the statement that "If we hit the ball, we'll have a good year. Our pitching will come around after the first couple of weeks, and we'll be quite strong defensively. What we really need is a good power hitter for the clutch situations." He spoke with pleasure of the excellent discipline and fine attitude of all of his players.

Great Pianist

Also well-known as a teacher, Stravinsky has been a permanent member of the music faculty at the University of Illinois since 1950. His functions as a teacher, however, have not interrupted his activities on the concert stage. His professional activities have also included extensive tours as a lecturer on musical topics.

Whether performing at the piano or giving illustrated lectures, his programs always present cultural enlightenment as well as immediate pleasure for his hearers, and such promises to be the case with his program at Elon College on Tuesday night.

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS HAVE DONE MUCH TO SUPPORT TEAMS

The Elon College varsity cheerleaders, who have played a major role in both the Fighting Christian football and basketball seasons this year, are pictured above in a typical action pose. The cheering squad is due great appreciation from both the varsity athletes and from the student body at large for their fine work during this 1966-67 college term. The members of the pep group, shown left to right in the above picture are Jo Nelle Skipper, of Madison; Barbara Hudson, of Elkin; Jane Holler, of Winston-Salem; Sandra Bergman, (chief) of Uncasville, Conn.; Cecilia Cobo, of Arlington, Va.; Mary Ann Underwood, of Suffolk, Va.; and Junie Sparks, of Charlotte.

Determination Features Winter Grid Workouts

Team spirit and individual determination have been key words in the early days of the winter football drills for the Fighting Christian gridgers, who reported on Monday, February 20th, for their first workouts under Coach Red Wilson, newly named chief grid mentor for the Maroon and Gold squad.

The first day of the winter season was featured by a steady downpour of rain, which kept the more than forty Christian grid candidates indoors, but the time was not wasted, for Coach Wilson ran his charges through a lengthy "skull session" in the form of a get-acquainted meeting and preliminary instruction as to what would be expected of them during the practices.

In opening the meeting, Coach Wilson greeted his boys with the declaration that "we are going into this football season with a will to win." He then introduced other members of the Elon coaching staff, presenting Assistant Coaches Alan White and Jerry Tolley and Associate Coach Charlie Justice, the former Carolina All-American, and all the coaches were given the opportunity to talk briefly to the boys during the meeting.

Coach Wilson stressed in particular the necessity for "pride" in a football team, calling on the squad for "pride in performance and pride in appearance." Coach Justice, who spoke very briefly, urged the Christian gridgers to cultivate the spirit of "enjoyment" of football both in practice and games, telling them that "when football ceases to be fun, then a player should get out of the game."

Coach Wilson cited definite and detailed assignments for each member of the coaching staff and assured the individual players that they would receive individual attention both on and off the field, with the coaches serving as counsellors in academic and personal problems as well as football.

Among the innovations which he announced in training plans was the operation of a "squad fellowship table" or "training table" for the football players for the evening meal at Elon's McEwen Memorial Dining Hall, the first time that such a plan has been used for the Fighting Christians.

Declaring that the rainy days would not be wasted, Wilson stated that the Christians would work indoors on basic Single Wing football until the practice field becomes dry enough to be used. Closely detailed time schedules for each day's practice sessions assured, too, that there will be no wasted time on the field when the Christians get outdoors.

The gridgers were able to hit the practice field on the second day of the winter season, and they have been getting some excellent work in spite of the unseasonable cold that battered the section in the late February days. Coach Wilson still hopes to have his boys ready for a "single wing" scrimmage on Saturday of this week.

offer. We have no school spirit when it comes to support of athletic events either. At least none when we are losing. We don't even support the coaches. The football team had an unfortunate season this past year. Who is blamed? Why of course, the coaches. A whole new coaching staff is brought in. It is not the coaches' fault nor the players', but the lack of school spirit and school pride which is the problem.

But why should we have pride in a system which offers us nothing to be proud of. A reevaluation of the existing system is desperately needed. If not, Elon will be at the bottom of the age-old totem pole.

to overcome with the late rail Henry Logan, the Catamounts' All-American guard, banged in 35 points to top both teams for the night, but Greg Wittman was the only other Cat in double digits. Henry Goedeck led Elon with 25 points, trailed by Bill Bowes with 22 and Tommy Davis with 11 counters. Inability of Elon guards to hit outside on the Catamount zone proved costly.

Business Group Hears Program On Computers

The Elon College department of business administration and business education, continuing a program of informational programs concerning computers and data processing in modern business, conducted another in its series of symposiums or seminars on the subject on Wednesday afternoon, February 22nd.

The program, as was the case in earlier ones conducted last year, was under the direction of Mrs. Jeanne F. Williams, chairman of the business administration department, and of Prof. Allen Sanders, of the business faculty. Although the recent program was attended principally by business majors, it was open to the general public.

Antique Fair Is Set Next Week

Some of the largest crowds of the year will hit the Elon campus and the Alumni Memorial Gymnasium in particular next week when the ladies of the Alamance-Caswell Medical Auxiliary group stage their fifth annual Antiques Fair in Elon's huge gym.

The annual showing of antiques, which includes collections from New England to the Deep South, will get underway next Wednesday, March 8th, and will continue through Friday, March 10th. Many students have worked at the annual show in recent years, and other students and faculty members take advantage of the chance to view the fine workmanship of craftsmen of a by-gone era.
