

Sahlmann Plays Elon Concert

ELON GRADUATE TO OFFER NEXT LYCEUM PROGRAM

FRED SAHLMANN REVISITS HIS ALMA MATER

Well Known Pianist In Lyceum Program

Fred Sahlmann, an Elon College graduate and former member of the Elon College music faculty, who might almost be called "Mr. Piano" by those who have known him on the campus, will return to the scenes of his student and early teaching days, when he presents the next Elon College Lyceum program in Whitley Auditorium at 8 o'clock next Tuesday night.

A native of Charleston, S.C., Fred Sahlmann began playing the piano at the age of five, played his first solo recital at the age of ten, and appeared as a piano soloist with a symphony orchestra when he was only fifteen years old.

All of this was before he came as a student to Elon College, where he studied in both piano and organ under Dean Fletcher Moore and won numerous honors as a performer on both piano and organ during his student days. He was recognized during his student days as one of the top pianists in the South and played frequently with the North Carolina Symphony.

He earned both the A.B. and B.M. degrees from Elon College and later received the MA degree from Teachers College of Columbia University. After two years in the armed services, Sahlmann spent a year at the Academy of Music in Vienna, Austria, as a Fulbright Scholar, but he then returned to Elon as a member of the faculty until 1963, when he accepted his present post as a professor at McNeese State College in Lake Charles, La.

In August of 1966 he completed requirements for the Doctor of Musical Arts degree in both Performance and Pedagogy at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y. While there he was a student of Jose Echaniz and qualified for a diploma in performance and appeared as a soloist with the famed Eastman Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of Dr. Howard Hanson.

The music critic with whom President Harry Truman fell out over criticism of Margaret Truman's voice had better things to say of Fred Sahlmann's piano playing, for Paul Hume, of the Washington Post, praised the pianist's "fine ear for the instrument's widest dynamism range" and his "brilliance and power" with the keyboard.

Reviewing the same recital, Day Thorpe, of the Washington Evening Star, said, "Sahlmann is a very fine pianist. In a program of many kinds of music he showed a technique that met every demand and a remarkable interpretive insight."

Brandes Speaker On Campus

Dr. Paul Brandes, of the faculty of the English Department at UNC-CH at Chapel Hill, was a guest speaker in Whitley Auditorium at 7:30 o'clock Monday night on the subject of "A Look At Latin America Today."

The speaker, who appeared as the guest of the Elon College Spanish today.

Following his talk, Dr. Brandes participated along with three members of the Elon College faculty in a panel discussion, during which members of the faculty and student body and others in the audience were invited to voice questions concerning Latin American problems.

The Elon faculty members joining the guest speaker on the panel included Dr. Albert Gminder, chairman of the Spanish Department; Dr. Jose M. Bohigas, a native of Cuba and resident there until 1961, who now teaches Spanish here; and Dr. Durward Stokes, of the Elon history faculty.

lems of all the nations in the Latin American bloc

SCENE AT GROUNDBREAKING FOR NEW BUILDING

Shown above is the ground-breaking scene for Elon's new living-dining complex, with Dr. J. E. Daniele and SGA President Dale Morrison releasing the bulldozer by cutting the ribbon. The scene took place on the eve of the Elon Homecoming Celebration on October 27th.

S.A.M. Presents Speaker

Richard Basile, eminent retailing executive from Philadelphia, Pa., spoke in McEwen Memorial Dining Hall at a dinner meeting on Wednesday night, appearing as a guest of the Elon College Chapter of the Society for Advancement of Management.

The guest speaker, who is the vice-president of the Automatic Retailers of America, spoke on the subject of "Food Service Management, Its Place In Business Today." The meeting was open to the

(Continued on page 4)