Elon Band In Spring Concert

COLLEGE-COMMUNITY ORCHESTRA OFFERS CONCERT MONDAY NIGHT

The Elon College-Community Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Malvin N. Artley, who is professor of stringed music on the Elon music faculty, will present its annual spring concert in Whitley Auditorium at 8 o'clock on Monday night of next week.

The concert on Monday night climaxes the fifth successful season for the College-Community musical group, which was formed in the autumn of 1963 through the joint efforts of Dr. Artley and of Prof. Fletcher Moore, chairman of the Elon music department and academic dean of the college.

The orchestra is a joint campus and community effort, including members of the Elon faculty and student body and also musicians from the Burlington community area, including musicians of all ages, the only requirement being an interest in the orchestra and orchestral music.

Since it was organized in the fall of 1963, the College-Community Orchestra has presented two concerts each year and has appeared in cooperation with the Elon Choir in recent years in its presentation of the annual Yule season program of Handel's "Messiah."
