Francis Jackson - guest organist

Lyceum Sponsors Organist On Campus Sunday Night

Dr. Francis Jackson, internationally famous organist, will appear at Elon April 12 at 8 p.m. in Whitley Auditorium.

A native of Malton, Yorkshire, Francis Jackson was a chorister at York Minster from 1929 until 1933. In 1937 he became a Fellow of the Royal College of Organists and a Limpus Prize Winner.

Recognized as one of Great Britain's leading organists, he has appeared in many cathedrals, has toured the continents of Europe and Canada, and has played with the BBC Northern Orchestra.

Dr. Jackson is conductor of the York Musical Society and the York Symphony Orchestra and has composed music for organ and the church. He gave the opening recital of Westminster Abbey on the occasion of the International Congress of Organists in London in 1957.

In 1960 he was installed as President of the Incorporated Association of Organists, an office which he held for two years.

Dr. Jackson is also extremely interested in organ design and is on the advisory committee of the Central Council for the Churches in London.

Faculty Bylaws Are Proposed

By AL ZINK

A committee composed of eight members of the faculty and administration recently proposed a draft of Elon College Faculty Bylaws which may eventually restructure some major facets of this institution.

The committee, called for by the Board of trustees and elected by the faculty, had as its objective, "to enable the faculty to engage in conscious, deliberate, and purposeful cooperation with the Board of Trustees and administration personnel so that each may most effectively contribute to the growth, development, and functioning of Elon College." Two important propositions concern the formation of an Academic Council, and student participation on standing committees.

The Academic Council, as proposed, will assume many of the responsibilities now in the hands of the President of the College. The Council's duties include the following: "The Council shall deliberate on any matter within the province of the Faculty for the purpose of formulating the general policy for the approval or disapproval by the Faculty. Such matters may include the development of new programs and curricula, standards for faculty promotion and tenure, and evaluation and improvement of instruction." B - "The Council shall act in an advisory capacity to the President of the College." C - "The Council shall develop, maintain, and publish upon adoption by the Faculty a set of professional standards." D - "The Council shall serve as a hearing committee, if a hearing is to be held, in cases involving the dismissal or suspension of a faculty member or charges of unprofessional conduct against a faculty member."

The second most significant issue was a decision to involve the student body and to open membership to many of the standing committees. In order to qualify to be part of these committees, "student members shall be fulltime students, have at least a 2.0 cumulative average, and unless otherwise provided for in this article, be appointed annually in May by the newly - installed Student Government Association President."

The proposal calls for students to serve on eight standing committees. Curriculum Committee, two students; Library Committee, two students; Lyceum Committee, four students; Student Affairs Committee, three students; Teacher Education Committee, two students; Committee on Religious Life, four students.

The entire proposed draft must be accepted by the faculty; the draft will then be sent to the Board of Trustees for final acceptance. If the draft is passed, there will be in effect a large restructuring of policy and action.

Little Opposition In Races

By ERNIE WILKINSON

The filing for Student Government Association offices ended March 24. There was only one real race in the executive offices ended March 24. There was only one real race in the executive offices, the office of Vice President. York Poole and Alex Vardavas, both rising juniors filed for the office. In other executive offices, Lee Loy was unopposed for the Presidency and Dean McBrayer filed for the Treasurer's office.

The Sophomore class offered the greatest amount of competition as far as class officers go. Perry Crouch and Terry Harker sought the office of President. Kathy O'Conner had no opposition for the Vice President spot. Carolyn DeLuce and Penny Wynne ran for the office of Secretary - Treasurer.

Gminder Runs for State House

By ED BAKER

Dr. Albert Gminder, Head of the Department of Foreign Languages, has announced his candidacy for seat No. 2, North Carolina House of Representatives, in the upcoming November elections. Prompted to run as "a matter of conscience," he plans no political career but to begin the needed statewide reforms and then to "turn the reins over to someone else."

Included in the main points of his platform are the following:

1. Balancing the tax structure, "which is now weighed in favor of those with influence."
2. Improving the quality of the public school system, including teacher salaries.
3. Improving the efficiency of the state government.
4. Improving and instituting laws governing ecology.
5. Updating the North Carolina state constitution.
6. Upgrading the state retirement system, especially for teachers who are living on pensions under $100 per month.

7. Giving more home rule to the counties and cities, because the state legislature is overflowing with local bills.

Dr. Gminder, running on the Republican ticket for the 21st House District, does not feel that his party affiliation will injure his chances for election in the legendary Democratic South, but says, "The Seventies are likely to be Republican years." The present circumstances, according to
