

Hafner Campaigns for Eight-Point Program

By Diane Costa

Laurie Hafner, a native of St. Petersburg, Fla., and political science major, is a candidate for the office of SGA President for the 1975-76 school term.

During her three-year involvement with the SGA, she has seen some changes. "I feel that in working with the students some changes might come about. There is a definite need for changes. I like the school very much, but I would also like to better it, to make it a finer school," says Ms. Hafner. "The changes I am talking about are nothing radical. It is merely stepping up to what other schools have had for twenty or thirty years."

"We should be treated as individuals and adults. College should prepare us for society. We must learn to stand on our own two feet and be mature enough to face the pressures of the outside world."

Laurie Hafner's platform consists of eight categorial stands. The first is that we should initiate a "voting student member on the Board of Trustees" to ensure direct communication. Laurie submitted a bill to this effect in the Student Senate about four weeks ago.

The second stand concerns "equality in athletics." Our women athletes must sometimes buy their own uniforms. Scholarships are few. This is highly inequitable when some of our women athletes are nationally acclaimed, she feels.

The third area is the necessity of "visitation on weekend evenings." Three times Ms. Hafner submitted a bill to this effect. But three times it was rejected by the administration. She will continue in attempting to reach this goal.

The fourth area is the need for a better student life in the dorms, in the cafeterias, and in the college in general. Stronger men and women's dorm government is the fifth area of her platform. More social involvement in the student body needs to be achieved. She would like to see a Public Interest Research Group organized and active on campus. Lastly, better communication between students, faculty and administration is critical.

"I don't think we are being heard. I don't think our opinions are being respected or that the Senate is a strong organizational body even though we represent the students. What I would really like to see

Snotherly Opts for "Total Involvement"

By Diane Costa

Bill Snotherly, a junior from Raleigh, is one of the two candidates for the office of SGA president. Bill is an active member of APO fraternity and past president of Mathetians, a religious service organization. He was the co-chairman of the Echo walkathon.

Snotherly has sent a letter to 30 friends announcing his candidacy. These are excerpts from his letter:

"Total Involvement of the student body is needed now! Neither the extreme liberal nor the extreme conservative persuasion can improve student-administration feelings. A feeling of concern and obligation has excited me into filing for the office of President of the Student Government Association."

"What can Bill Snotherly give to the SGA? Himself, or his time, energy, determination and 24-hour concern for student problems and wishes."

"Total Involvement is the key to getting something accomplished. Petitions, polls and word of mouth are but some of the vital means for attacking a problem. The job of administering student affairs belongs to the Senate and executive officers. Elect me SGA president and you will have someone who will work for the entire student."

"In short, my platform is: careful and evaluative consideration will be given to all seeking appointment as chairmen of SGA committees. I shall strive to be wholly unemotional and non-biased in all government duties."

that Bill felt needed improving were the situation of Elon as a "suitcase college" and the need for more diverse and frequent entertainment, not necessarily concerts. The Lyceum program is one in which Snotherly felt more student participation would be desirable. He though the amount of funds allotted was worthwhile.

Bill feels that his biggest job as SGA president would be the selection of committees and their chairmen. "To ensure student involvement, polling is a necessity; all those telephone calls and letters don't work."

The approximately 900 commuters, or 40 per cent of the student body, need "more say-so." The Coffeehouse, he felt, was a worthwhile function, bringing top movies and other forms of entertainment, including Jack White, the pool shark. The need for

Four Candidates Compete for SGA Vice-President's Position

Lu-Anne Winfree SGA
vice-presidential candidate

By Vicki Moeser

Lu-Anne Winfree, sophomore, is a candidate for vice-president of the SGA for the 1975-76 academic year. Having much experience in student government, Lu-Anne was president of her freshman class, is now president of the sophomore class, parliamentarian of the Senate, member of the judicial committee, campus affairs committee and student life committee.

Lu-Anne would "like to make the student government mean more to the student body than just $12.50 a semester."

From Greensboro and majoring in business administration, Lu-Anne also works in the financial aid office. She has a 3.22 grade point average.

"I would like to improve communications between the administration and students. Elon is a good school," Lu-Anne stated. "Students just need to become more involved. A solution can be to have more of the administration and faculty become responsive."

Idealistically, Lu-Anne would like to go on to law school after graduation. If this is not possible, perhaps she will be a recreational director.

"If elected," Lu-Anne said, "I will expect as much out of the Senate as they will expect from me. The vice-president is the speaker of the Senate, and I think I can capably handle the job."

Lu-Anne will live on-campus next year.

Randy Worsham, a junior from Manassas, Va., is also a candidate for vice-president of the SGA. If elected he will work toward visitation for men and women on an equal basis, and offering better academic as well as social programs on campus. He would like to see more courses offered within specific majors.

Randy hopes "to have better cooperation with the administration with nothing more than vague answers."

A history-political science major, Randy is also active in Kappa Sigma fraternity and intramural sports.

After graduation Randy would like to work with the State Department, perhaps in a foreign country.

Randy will live off-campus next year.

Spence Family Gift Brings 47,000 Volumes to Library

A gift by the family of a Greensboro businessman has made it possible for Elon College to purchase the library of the recently closed Stratford College in Danville, Va. The 47,000-volume collection has been appraised at over $750,000. It has been estimated that a similar collection through annual purchases, with proper allowance for inflation, would cost over $1 million.

The purchase was made possible by a gift from the family of Royall H. Spence Sr., including his wife Dolly L., daughters Mary Spence Boxley and Dolly Spence Dowdy, and son Royall H. Spence, Jr., a member of the Elon College Board of Trustees.

"This gift must rank as one of the significant contributions in the history of Elon College," said Dr. Fred Young, president of Elon College. "The library is the heart of the college academic program."

The Stratford library contains 47,315 volumes, the card catalogue, the shelving, study carrels, tables, and chairs. The collection will increase Elon holdings by approximately 50 per cent, bringing the number of volumes to more than 145,000.

"We will begin moving the collection right away and, since it is already catalogued and will be housed as a unit, our students and faculty will have access to the books just as soon as we move it," said Elon Librarian Theodore Perkins.
