

The Pendulum

Vol. VII Number 15

Elon College, Elon College, NC 27244

Thursday, February 12, 1981

Colonnades literary winners include 12 students and faculty

Colonnades, Elon's literary magazine, has selected its 1980-81 prize winners, who are judged for their creative expressions in one of four categories—poetry, prose, fine arts, and cover design.

In poetry, Joan Wilburn of Greensboro was awarded first prize for her work "Diver." Richard Smith received second prize for his poem "Auden's Death."

For prose writing, Diane McSheehy, an Elon student from Plaistow, New Hampshire, was awarded first prize for her piece "Snow Angels," and Mary DeVaney received second for "On Rules and Rulers."

Dean Jones, an Elon student and resident of Burlington, N.C., received first prize in fine arts for his untitled sketch of a man. Jones also won first place for cover design. Second place was given to Susan Burleson for her photograph of a seascape. Susan is a student at Elon from High Point, N.C.

Ten students and two faculty members will have publications in Colonnades this year. They are students Vicki Blankenship, Susan Burleson, Day Irmiter, Dean Jones, Scott Mandeville, Diane McSheehy, Colin Peters, Tom Ryskiewich, Kim Steffen, Darlene Walker; Dr. Lawrence Willson, Religion Department; and Dr. Fred West, English Department.

Kim Steffen, editor of Colonnades, wishes to thank everyone for contributions and help.

Annual Fund

Phonathon starts soon

Elon College will be conducting its second Phonathon from Feb. 16—March 12. The groups will be making calls on Monday—Thursday nights from 6:30-9:30. Eight organizations will be making the calls to alumni, parents, and friends and inviting them to make donations to the college.

The calls will be made upstairs in Powell Building. All participants will be given 1981 Elon College Phonathon T-shirts. Cash prizes will be awarded nightly to any group who brings in 25 people or more to work. A grand prize of a sizeable amount will be given to the organization that gets the most pledges. Refreshments will also be served each night to student participants.

The money solicited becomes a part of the Annual Fund. Annual Fund monies are used to help carry on the college costs and expenses.

Sigma Phi fraternity won the grand prize last year of a color console T.V. Tri-Sigma placed second and won $200. Each participating group was given a $100 bill last year to be added to their budgets.

LIBRARY HOURS

Monday-Thursday	8 a.m.-midnight
Friday	8 a.m.-9 p.m.
Saturday	10 a.m.-4 p.m.
Sunday	2:30 p.m.-midnight

Coming next week is "SUB Awareness Week." What exactly is the Student Union Board and what do we do? The Student Union Board, or SUB as it is more commonly referred to, is an organization of students who do the planning of all outside entertainment on campus. This includes concerts featuring top artists, coffee houses featuring local student talent, talent shows and some lectures. To show you what we can and are doing we present:

SUB Awareness Week starting Feb. 17 and it's all free!

Tuesday: SUB College Program— 9:30 a.m., 8 p.m. Alumni gym— Championship wrestling

Wednesday: David Willis, magician/comedian, Whitley Auditorium, free admission, 8 p.m.

Thursday: Coffeeshouse 8 p.m. in the Grill, Susie Beatly

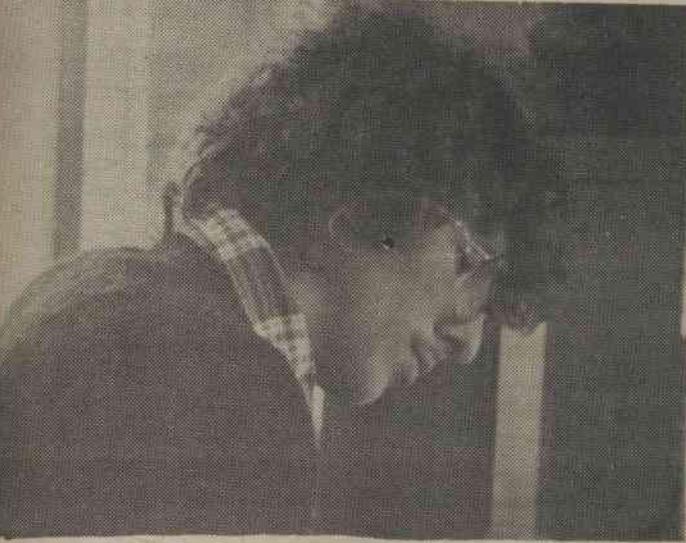

Friday: Film 8 p.m. in the Grill

Glenn recital

James Glenn of the Elon College Fine Arts faculty will present a voice recital on Sunday, Feb. 15 at 4 p.m. in Whitley Auditorium. His accompanist will be Paulette Glenn, also of the faculty.

Gabriel Faure's song cycle, "La Bonne Chanson," will be performed as well as selected English songs of Benjamin Britten. Mr. Glenn is a well-known tenor soloist and has performed in numerous musical events throughout the area.

The recital is open to the public without charge.

Dean Jones, first place winner in fine arts and cover design in the Colonnades contest, works quietly on another sketch.

Sociology major and six new courses join catalog listings

New social science courses and one major area were added to the curriculum by faculty members last Friday. A field of study in sociology and four new courses will be added to the previous catalog listings. The new classics are cultural anthropology, social stratification, social deviance, and sociological theory. The course descriptions for these new classes will be found in the 1981 catalog.

A new course in geography will also be offered. The new course title is Geography of North Carolina. The class will study North Carolina's natural environment, population, political organization, and economy.

A new history course entitled American Military History will deal with military history of the United States from 1775 to the present.

All the courses listed above will be added to the fall 1981 schedule.

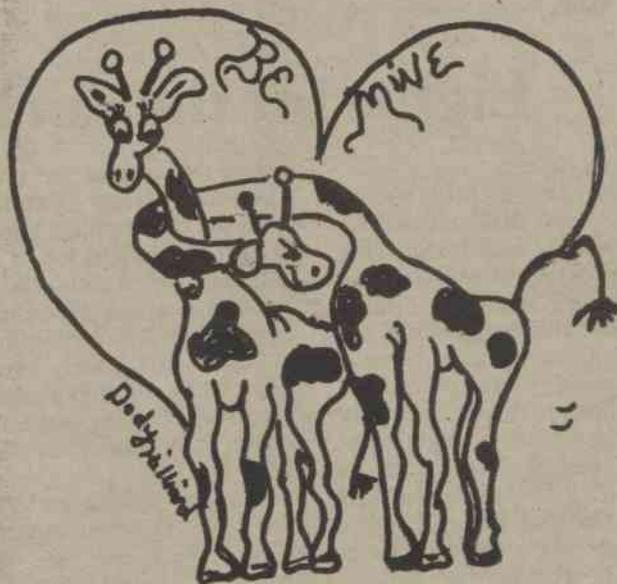

The history of Valentine's Day

Be my Valentine

By Mari Behrend

Millions of people around the world send friends and loved ones cards called valentines, boxes of candy, flowers, or other expressions of love each year on Feb. 14, known as Valentine's Day. How these and other traditions associated with this day began is not fully known but there are several stories of their origin.

Most experts believe it began with one or two saints in the early Christian church. One was the Bishop of Interamna, the other a Roman priest. The latter is the one who became known as the saint of lovers. It is not known, however, how

cont. on p. 7