

Lambert hospitalized

Elon's head librarian Guy Lambert is listed in critical but stable condition in Wesley Long Hospital in Greensboro following a heart attack on Sept. 3.

Lambert has been unconscious since then. But Paul Aiello, a friend who has spent time with the family, said doctors consider his vital signs to be good, and that there is no immediate threat of another attack.

Mr. Lambert was appointed as the head librarian last year. He has worked at Elon since 1963.

England is calling

By Dr. David Crowe

England. For Americans, it's a name that conjures up images fed by years of James Bond movies and rock music. Sophisticated London that blends a rich past with a sophisticated present. Royalty, with its colorful splendor and majestic bearing. A deep green countryside of rolling hills, thatched roofs, and quaint, distant villages.

But is this England? Yes, this is England, but it is much, much more.

It is a country with an ancient past kept alive by such splendid monuments as Stonehenge and the Roman ruins in Bath, London, St. Albans, and other aged cities visited by the Elon College group. It is a country with a keen sense of history, a nation that blends its traditional heritage with a sense of the present and the future. It is a slow-paced country that welcomes the traveler into its quiet, friendly pubs for conversation and friendship.

The countryside is still green and checkered with neatly trimmed hedgerows in winter months. London and other British cities are still adorned with the tasteful decorations of the Christmas and New Year's holidays. The weather is moderate and fit for brisk walks through the heaths of Hampstead or the lush grass of Hyde Park.

The shops and bakeries in the towns and villages to be visited by Elon College students are filled with modern and traditional European finery and delicacies. Edinburgh with the distant mountains and sea is aglow in a late afternoon sunset, while, atop a peak in the Lake District, one can watch the clouds dance wistfully through the hills and valleys.

This is England in January; a land of romance, of color, of tradition. A world of many peoples and languages, a place to escape, to relax, to enjoy. Join us for January, 1982, in England.

Gifts cont. from p. 1

Steenken of Falls Church, Va., have established a fund to provide an annual prize of $25 for Colonnades, the college literary magazine.

The Steenken Prize will be given each year for the best poem, short story, or drawing, submitted by an Elon student, which best depicts the patriotic aspects of American life.

Criteria for judging and selecting the winning entry will be determined by the staff of Colonnades. The first award will be made during the 1981-82 academic year. The Steenkens' daughter, Kim Steffen, served as editor of Colonnades during 1980-81.

Ralph Harris, president of Century 21 Ralph Harris, a Burlington real estate and building firm, has donated a pipe organ to the Fine Arts Department of Elon College.

The organ is currently in use in the chapel of the First Presbyterian Church in Burlington, but will be installed in Whitley when a replacement organ for the chapel arrives. The donation is made in the name of Harris, along with his wife, Ann and his son, Craig. Mr. and Mrs. Harris are alumni of the college, and their son is currently attending Elon.

Colonnades staff invites new members ; entries needed

by Charlotte Alford
Colonnades Editor

Colonnades, the literary magazine of Elon College, invites any interested student to join its 1981-82 staff. The first meeting will be held Tuesday, Sept. 22, at 3:30 p.m. in Carlton 215.

This year the staff will again have the opportunity to read and consider for publication entries in the areas of poetry, short stories, essays, reviews, critical articles, fine arts, graphics, and photography.

The staff of Colonnades is also looking for additional entries. All submissions must be typed and clearly labeled with the writer's name and address. If the submissions are accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope, they will be returned.

Contest submissions must be typed in triplicate on 8x11 paper, with one unsigned copy for the judges.

Entries should be sent to Colonnades, Campus Box 5246, Elon College.

If anyone should have further questions or suggestions, he may contact the faculty adviser, Dr. Andrew Angyal, Ext. 258, or student editor, Charlotte Alford.
