FCA stresses fellowship among campus athletes

By Joel Maness

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes is an organization that stresses the "Christian" aspect of its title more than the "Athletes." Their purpose is to bring together students to talk about their concerns, doubts, feelings, and to share fellowship around a commitment to Jesus Christ.

You don't even have to be an athlete to participate in the FCA. This is because some high school athletes don't pursue athletics in college.

The stated purpose of the FCA is "to present to athletes and coaches, and all whom they influence, the challenge and adventure of receiving Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord, serving Him in their relationships and in the fellowship of the church."

Most of the FCA studies are geared to athletics and how one can work for Christ while being involved in sports. A typical FCA meeting opens with prayer. FCA president Cliff Parker discusses any business, plans, or activities planned.

Sometimes a guest speaker will deliver a message. For example, on one occasion Garry Baldwin, the FCA district director, spoke on the "challenge and adventure of following Christ."

Throughout the meeting the group usually has time for singing. The meeting closes in prayer.

One major event the FCA has planned for the near future is the Weekend of Champions, which will be held April 23-25 at Elon College. The event will draw professional and college athletes from all across the nation. They will share what role Christ plays in their lives.

FCA officers include Cliff Parker, president; Al Beck, president-elect; Lisa Brown, treasurer; Fred Applin, secretary; and Kel Peterson, chaplain.

Remember, you don't have to be an athlete to join FCA. The group meets Mondays at 9 p.m. in Jordan Gym.

Miller rewards cage prowess

College students who usually sit in the stands and dream of being Dr. J or Pete Maravich, will get a chance to bring their fantasies to life when Miller Brewing Company and I.H. Caffey Distributing Co. bring their Miller High Life One-on-One Basketball Tournament to Elon College.

Participants in this tournament will engage in a five-minute basketball game. The winner will be the first player to score 10 points, or who is leading by two or more points at the end of the game. To be eligible, all participants must be currently enrolled at Elon as a full-time student. Students having lettered in collegiate basketball are ineligible.

The winner will receive a $200 scholarship award and a trophy. In the event that he/she is not eligible to accept the award because of financial assistance restrictions, the money will be do-notated to the school's athletic department. Second, third, and fourth place winners will receive trophies. The top 50 participants will receive a pair of Miller athletic tube socks and a One-on-One jersey.

The tournament began Feb. 8 at the East Gym and will run throughout this week. Miller is an operating company of Phillip Morris Incorporated. Principal beer brands include Miller High Life, Lite and Lowenbrau.

Budweiser soccer comes to Elon

Elon College will host the "Budweiser Collegiate Indoor Soccer Tournament," on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 12-14. The tournament is sponsored by R.H. Barringer Distributing Company located in Greensboro and by Budweiser.

Twenty-four teams from the state and surrounding states will be represented in the three-day tournament including: N.C. State, Akron University of Ohio, University of South Carolina, Wake Forest, UNC-Chapel Hill, UNC-Asheville, East Carolina, High Point, Guilford, UNC-Greensboro, Campbell University, and North Carolina Wesleyan as well as the host institution, Elon College.

Friday's action begins at 5 p.m. stopping off at 10 p.m. and Saturday's action begins at 8 a.m. and continues through 5 p.m. in four team divisional round-robin tournaments. Sunday play also begins at 8 a.m. in a single elimination tournament with higher seeded teams from one division playing a lower seeded team from another division as determined by Friday and Saturday action. The championship game is scheduled for 4:15 p.m.

The tournament is open to the general public with a $1 admission charge for the three-day event.

Prof To Present Research
 The Faculty Research Committee will sponsor a presentation by Dr. Frank Harris entitled, "Summer Research at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory," on Friday, Feb. 19 at 1:30 p.m. in Mooney Theater. Faculty and students are invited. Refreshments will follow.
