

Forum to present lecture on Research Triangle Park

Robert C. Page III, producer and editor of "North Carolina's Research Triangle," will head off a series of lectures sponsored by the Liberal Arts Forum of Elon College. This lecture will be presented tonight in Whitley Auditorium at 7:30.

The title of Page's lecture is "The Impact of the Research Triangle Park." The Park is an area of North Carolina that does a great deal of research in different fields of interest.

A slide presentation dealing with the history, growth, present status, and future of the Research Triangle, and other aspects of the Park will be featured.

Robert Page is president and owner of John Harden/Bob Page Communications, a public relations and advertising company serving a variety of clients across North Carolina. He is a graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill and has an AB degree in journalism.

His previous positions include publisher of The Village Advocate in Chapel Hill, political writer for The Durham Morning Herald and sports writer for The Charlotte Observer.

The Liberal Arts Forum of Elon College is a student-sponsored organization in its 24th year. Its principle function has been to foster intellectual and cultural interest concentrating on the humanities in the widest sense of the term.

These lectures are open to the college community, as well as the public, free of charge.

Emanons well received during winter term tour

by Jo Craven

Winter term at Elon College means different things to different students. Some choose to attend the mini term, while others elect to stay home and work or relax. However, a select group of Elon students passed up both of these options to instead travel and perform on a tour extending from Washington, D.C., all the way to Florida.

The group, of course, was the Emanons Band led by director Jack White and associate director David Bragg.

"The two of us groove the band," says White, referring to Bragg and himself, and apparently the band conducts the same excitement to the audience with matching success.

The Emanons were able to afford the tour with the aid of donations and the support of the college. Good will and hopes of recruiting new students provided reasons for the tour, as well as the benefit of the learning experience to the band members.

White describes the tour as "very successful. The Emanons were well received, and the big band sound caught high school students; it was tremendous".

Along with the big band and jazz sounds, this year the Emanons also featured popular hits of today. A few of these are "Celebration" by Kool and the Gang; Diana Ross' "Why Do Fools Fall In Love;" "Let's Groove" by Earth, Wind, and Fire; and the Commodores' "Lady." Susan Conner, Sue Hoggard, Steve Roberson, and Anthony Turner provided vocals for these tunes.

The Emanons delivered concerts to twenty-six high schools, a total of about 30,000 - 31,000 Students, and never missed a standing ovation. High schools where White recalls the most memorable responses include Virginia High School in Bristol, Virginia; Halifax High School in Halifax, Virginia; and Naples High School in Naples, Florida. The band also participated in high school band clinics and played for dinner and dance parties.

Other highlights of the tour for the band were performances in the Luau Room of the St. Petersburg Hilton and at Disney World. This marked the tenth year that the Emanons have played at Disney World.

"The set was absolutely beautiful," says White of the Tomorrow Land Amphitheater, a specially designed set that Disney has for acts like the jazz band. "This was the largest crowd we have played for. It was 85 degrees, and the place was packed!"

The drawing power of the Emanons surprised even White at one point: "We performed at the Fortune Cookie Disco on a Monday, which is usually a slow night. The place sold out, and there was standing room only; everyone was surprised."

During the entire tour, the Emanons missed only one performance. In Silver Springs, drummer Ricky Murray was ill, but the group was back in full force before long.

"The kids took it right in stride," says White. "It always amazes me; our students can play for a homogenous crowd and take it like professionals."

Although recruiting was a large reason for the tour, White pointed out perhaps the greatest benefit of the tour--the learning experience.
